'PHANTOM' SPEECHES SINCE CONGRESS QUIT HAVE COST $18,697

NEVER SPOKEN IN HOUSE

HOST OF TOPICS COVERED

Many of the Undelivered Speeches Frankly Intended to Benefit the Speakers Politically.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—Although Congress adjourned on July 3, speechmaking continued until July 16, according to the Congressional Record. The printing of speeches listed as "extension of remarks" has cost the Government $18,697 since June 28, or an average of more than $2,000 a day, and yet not one word of all that was printed was ever spoken on the floor of the House of Representatives.

The unspoken orations appearing in the July 16 issue of the Record, for example, every one of them beginning "Mr. Speaker," entailed a printing cost, at $24 a column, of $5,213 for the Government. This was thirteen days after Congress adjourned.

The issue of July 12, only eight days after the adjournment, presented an even larger burst of silent oratory, the total for that day being $5,574. On July 8, four days following the departure of the members of the House, $2,083 was added to Uncle Sam's bill, the result being that of the more than $18,000 involved in this mass of unuttered words nearly $13,000 represents post-session speeches that nobody ever heard.

It costs $48 a page, or $24 a column, to set up the Congressional Record, and the space charges vary all the way from $1,284 worth of names inserted by Mr. Oldfield of Arkansas, Chairman of the Democratic National Congressional Committee, to a $10 effort by Mr. Yates of Illinois, who, however, inserted five other "silencers," as some Representatives call them, which brought the value of his space string to $498, of which amount more than $50 was charged up to poetry and song.

Wide Range of Subjects.

Every conceivable subject, it seems, was "discussed," ranging all the way from agricultural relief, the tariff and the Mammoth Cave to prohibition, the boll weevil and Sunday blue laws for the District of Columbia. This does not include hundreds of dollars paid for the reprinting in the Record of speeches made by members, or their friends, at dinners, over the radio, in churches and at other places.

Many of the "phantom speeches," notably those of Representative Wood, Chairman of the Republican National Congressional Committee; Mr. Oldfield, Mr. Tilson, the majority floor leader, and a score of others, are of a political nature frankly intended to let the country know just how deep the obligation of the voters is to the Republicans or Democrats, according to who is responsible for the unspoken speech.

The Representatives responsible for this clogging of the Record number 97, of whom 49 are Republicans, 45 Democrats, 2 Farmer-Labor and 1 member of the Philippine Nationalist Party.

The figures cited cover only the printing costs at $24 a column. The cost of handling the thousands of copies in the mails, or the franking of the "speeches" when sent out in pamphlet or circular form, is not included. That would add more thousands to the grand total if it were available for publication.

Expensive List of Roll-Calls.

The $1,486 unuttered effort of Mr. Oldfield was mainly a long list of roll-calls in this and past Congresses on prohibition, the tariff, agricultural relief, child labor, alien property, taxation, foreign debts, railroads and numerous other classes of legislation. It is safe to say that the printing of the names alone cost the Government in excess of $1,300.

Mr. Oldfield's $63 unspoken oration, however, was for the benefit of the Democratic Party. The manufacturers, he declared, were prosperous because of special privileges enjoyed by them at the expense of the farmers and consumers. Every person knew, he added, that the Fordney-McCumber tariff law was written by the "paid lobbyists of the special interests."

Addressing the empty chair of Speaker Longworth on July 16, thirteen days after Congress adjourned, Representative William R. Wood of Indiana, Chairman of the Republican National Congressional Committee, told "the phantom House" that the high tariff was a mighty good thing for the farmers. He touched on everything from ropes to oleomargarine and it cost the taxpayers $571 to print this unspoken oration.

A busy day for the "silent speakers" was July 8, only five days after Congress went home. Uncle Sam's space bill that day amounted to $2,083, the lead-off man being Representative Strother of West Virginia, who turned in a "story" which cost $76.50 to print, and in which he told "Mr. Speaker" what a great country the Fifth District of West Virginia happened to be.

$75 for Attack on "Straw Bosses."

Joseph D. Beck, a stanch La Follette follower from Wisconsin, who was read out of the party organization by the House leaders, also had his say on July 8 and, at a printing cost of $75,

ATTORNEY GEN. DAN MOODY, Who Has Long Lead in Contest for Democratic Nomination for Governor of Texas.

MILLS CHIDES BORAH ON DRY REFERENDUM

Says Even He Must Heed New York When 10,000,000 People Speak.

DEFENDS TAKING THE VOTE

Asserts Dry Victory Would Be a Mandate for State Law Like the Volstead Act.

Replying to United States Senator William E. Borah of Idaho, who in recent public utterances has denounced the New York State Prohibition referendum as a move looking to the nullification of the Eighteenth Amendment, Representative Ogden L. Mills made public yesterday a statement defending the referendum statute. He pronounced it a measure designed to bring about an adjustment of the Eighteenth Amendment to "the general structure and sipirt" of American institutions.

Representative Mills expressed the belief that ultimately a test would come to determine whether the Eighteenth Amendment remains a part of the Federal Constitution or is repealed. Years of controversy are bound to precede such action, he said, and in the meantime something must be done to make the amendment "if not popular at least not an object of scorn and contempt," which "it is today to millions of patriotic Americans."

Mr. Mills said if the drys won in the referendum it could mean nothing if not a mandate to the Legislature to pass an enforcement law along the lines of the Volstead act, but that if the proposal carried New York, it would suggest to the nation that enforcement would be better carried out if the statute be given that flexibility contemplated by the amendment itself.

There was some speculation yesterday among political observers aware of the contents of Congressman Mills's statement whether the challenge to Senator Borah would not be likely to bring the fiery Idaho statesman crusading into this State while the campaign for the re-election of Senator Wadsworth was in progress, especially as Congressman Mills had been cast for the important rôle of keynote orator at the Republican State Convention.

CONGRESSMAN'S STATEMENT.

Representative Mills's statement follows:

Senator Borah, usually a clear thinker, in his most recent speech contributed nothing but confusion to the prohibition muddle. He treated the Volstead act as if it were the Constitution itself and, apparently without bothering to study the proposal, placed the label of nullification on the plan to consult the people of New York as to a method of enforcing the Constitution which is fully as constitutional, and would be infinitely more effective than the present system. This kind of talk may get the Senator on the front page, but gets the country nowhere. The people of New York have a right to be consulted, and easy as it is for itinerant Western statesmen to pick New York as a target, when ten million people speak even the Senator

MOODY 108,000 AHEAD IN GROWING VICTORY OVER MRS. FERGUSON

AND OBVIATE A RUN-OFF

FERGUSONS WON'T YIELD

Special to The New York Times.

AUSTIN, Texas, July 25.—With Attorney General Dan Moody leading Governor Miriam A. Ferguson by more than 108,000 votes in the contest for the Democratic Gubernatorial nomination, it is assured that the rule of the first woman Governor of Texas was practically ended by the result of yesterday's primary.

Whether Governor Ferguson will resign her office immediately after the votes are officially canvassed next Saturday remains to be seen, but public feeling is that she will comply with the voluntary pledge she made to Mr. Moody, her principal opponent, that she would resign if she did not lead Mr. Moody by as many as 25,000 votes in the first primary. Mr. Moody accepted the challenge, and agreed to vacate the office of Attorney General if he did not lead her.

Returns from 238 of the 252 counties of the State, with fifty-six complete, gave Moody 338,957, Mrs. Ferguson 230,095, Lynch Davidson 100,846, Mrs. Edith Wilmans 3,685, the Rev. O. F. Zimmerman 1,997 and Mrs. K. M. Johnston 1,861.

On the basis of these figures Mr. Moody had a majority of 387 over the combined vote of all his opponents.

However, indications that a run-off primary may not be necessary were growing more pronounced as reports came in late tonight showing that the total vote is likely to run as high as 750,000, thus giving to Mr. Moody a wider range in which to accumulate the required majority.

Even if Mr. Moody should lack votes sufficient to obviate the necessity of a run-off primary on Aug. 28, it is regarded here as certain that the Fergusons would lose in the last lap of the race by a heavy majority because the vote of Lynch Davidson, or a large share of it, is expected to go to Mr. Moody.

"Ma" Serene While "Jim" Is Puzzled.

Governor "Ma" Ferguson today received the returns at the Executive Mansion, in the presence of her husband. She did not seem to be at all affected by the apparent outcome. It is the expressed opinion of some of her close friends that she finds it a relief to know that she is to be no longer bothered by politics and the turmoil of office.

On the other hand, Jim Ferguson keenly showed his disappointment. At the Ferguson headquarters last night, when he saw that the tide was running strongly against him and his wife, he sat with a puzzled look upon his face and admitted to the group of faithful supporters gathered around him that he could not understand how it all had happened. His surprise was especially great when former Ferguson strongholds sent in returns giving overwhelming majorities to Moody.

"The returns are too incomplete to forecast the final result. The Governor is making rapid gains with the coming in of late returns from the country. Let our friends be steadfast and hopeful.

"There are indications of election irregularities and I have been informed that the law has been violated in some instances. If the Governor gets a fair count, Moody's lead, if any, will not be enough to in any way discourage our forces. Let our friends con-

Coolidge to Consult Edsel Ford on Aviation; Reported Planning Extensive Air Program

PAUL SMITH'S, N. Y., July 25.—Edsel Ford is scheduled to confer with President Coolidge early this week on aviation and may make a proposal on behalf of himself and his father for the lease of Muscle Shoals.

While his mission is veiled in great secrecy his coming was confirmed today and it was said officially that the conference would deal with matters of much importance to the Government. It is understood that Mr. Ford has been experimenting with new engines for flying machines and that he also has a proposal to seek Government aid in the expansion of commercial aviation.

President Coolidge intends holding many conferences with persons interested in commercial aviation and before the Summer ends the three assistant secretaries recently appointed to develop aviation in the army and navy and encourage its expansion in trade channels will see the President at his camp.

The question of leasing the Government dirigible Los Angeles to private concerns for commercial use will be decided soon by the President after he receives proposals submitted to Secretary Hoover. John Hays Hammond and a group of promoters have made an offer and it is understood that the Government is anxious to lease the airship if an advantageous offer is made. Under the terms under which the Los Angeles was obtained it cannot be used for military purposes.

Secretary Wilbur and the President spent several hours last night going over the navy's aviation program, which will be announced in a few weeks. It is understood that President Coolidge favors increasing the strength of the aviation branch of the army and navy without delay and will accept the suggestions of officials for a program, provided Government finances permit.

The President and Mrs. Coolidge, accompanied by Secretary Wilbur, worshiped today at the First Presbyterian Church, Saranac, and later went for a long drive along the wooded road to Montreal.

LeRoy Jeffers, Explorer and Writer, Killed, Comrade Hurt, in Plane Crash in California

SAN FRANCISCO, July 25.—LeRoy Jeffers of New York City, author, lecturer and mountain climber, was instantly killed and Dr. Sterling Bunnell, San Francisco surgeon and amateur aviator, was seriously injured when the plane in which they were flying crashed to earth shortly before noon today at Wawona, Cal. The tragedy was witnessed by 200 guests of the Hotel Wawona, gathered at the flying field near by to greet the plane on the conclusion of its trip from Redwood City.

The two figures aloft waved to those below as the plane flew low over the field. Then the machine banked in preparation for landing midway of this manoeuvre, while the spectators stood stunned with horror, it plunged into a 100-foot nose dive.

The crowd ran across the field to the wreckage and extricated the two men. Jeffers was dead and Dr. Bunnell unconscious from head wounds and a fractured hip.

Jeffers, his wife and his mother, Mrs. C. S. Jeffers of Boston, had arrived in California only three days before, and the flying expedition was undertaken for the purpose of giving Jeffers an observation of the Sierras from the air as the topic of an article he was planning to contribute to a magazine. His wife and mother were motoring from San Francisco while Jeffers was traveling to Wawona by air. They did not learn of the accident until after arriving at the Hotel Wawona several hours later.

Although a librarian by training and vocation, LeRoy Jeffers was a mountaineer by avocation, and his many daring climbs of difficult peaks had made him known as one of the best mountain climbers in North America. He was born at Ipswich, Mass., in 1878. He was trained in library work and for a number of years served as librarian in various departments of the New York Public Library.

Mr. Jeffers had a keen appreciation of the natural beauties of the country which he traversed and the ability to write vividly and entertainingly. He was a frequent contributor to magazines and newspapers and was an advocate of the conservation of America's natural resources, particularly points of scenic beauty. On the lecture platform he made his audiences see the points of interest from Hawaii to Alaska and pleaded for conservation of these natural assets.

He was credited with being the first man to scale Mount Moran, a peak in the Teton range adjacent to Yellowstone Park. He made this ascent of 12,100 feet in 1920, accompanied part of the way by his wife. The last part of this climb was made at night.

Mr. Jeffers had been made a Fellow of the Royal Geographical Society in recognition of his contributions to science. He was organizer and secretary of the Bureau of Associated Mountaineering Clubs of North America, a member of the National Park Commission, librarian of the American Alpine Club, and member of the National Institute of Social Science, and the California Academy of Sciences. His New York City residence was at 65 Central Park West.

SIX BATHERS DROWN; CROWDS AT BEACHES

Rockaway, With 300,000 Visitors, Reports No Fatalities—Three Deaths Up-State.

The exodus of New Yorkers to the near by beaches, which was maintained so steadily during the hot wave of last week, was repeated yesterday, although the temperature was more nearly normal. The police at Coney Island reported a crowd of 750,000 visitors there, and Rockaway Beach reported 300,000, the largest number there this season.

Crowds also visited Long Beach, where Mayor Walton Sweeney and his assistant, James J. Farrell, helped the police lessen the traffic congestion by themselves directing automobile drivers. The water at Long Beach was unusually calm and there were no drownings there or at Rockaway, although life guards rescued fourteen bathers at the latter resort.

Before the throngs of pleasure seekers had returned home, however, six men were reported drowned, and a seventh fractured his spine in a dive from a rowboat. A body believed to be that of Miss Rose La Roche of Jamaica, missing for a week, was recovered off Coney Island, and three unidentified bodies, those of a girl and two men, were found in near by waters.

Subway Striker Drowned.

Louis Heilimon, 30 years old, of 1,509 Brook Avenue, the Bronx, a subway striker, was drowned while swimming in the East River off the foot of Lafayette Street in the Bronx. He collapsed in the presence of his wife and two small children while only fifty feet from shore. He was dead when life savers reached him.

Anthony Bernard, 21, of 338 East 113th Street was drowned when seized with cramps while swimming at South Beach, Staten Island. His body was not recovered. Thirteen bathers whose feet were cut by broken glass at this beach were treated at the Staten Island Hospital, New Brighton, S. I.

Three men were drowned at Coney Island. One, unidentified, was bathing at the foot of West Third Street when he called for help. Life Guard Joseph Monroe pulled him from the water, but he was dead.

Thomas McGuiness, 23 years old, of 1,664 East Forty-fifth Street, Brooklyn, was drowned when he jumped overboard for a swim from a rowboat in which he had been fishing with a friend, John Blondes of 1,621 Nostrand Avenue, Brooklyn. When McGuiness failed to come to the surface Blondes plunged in after him, but failed to find his body, which has not been recovered.

Louis Del Fino, 68 years old, of 2,810 West Second Street, Coney Island, was drowned while bathing there just before dusk. Michael Carras of the United States Volunteer Life Saving Corps swam to Del Fino's aid when he first went down and brought him ashore, but efforts to revive him failed.

Henry Daniels, 25, of Brooklyn, who operates a swanboat in Prospect Park Lake, Brooklyn, was drowned there last night when a rowboat in which he was coming ashore after anchoring the boat overturned. A 13-year-old boy, Richard Knoble, who was Daniel's assistant, kept himself afloat until saved by Vincent Carlesi, 25, of 4,040 Woodhull Street, Brooklyn, who swam out to him from the shore.

Miss Lillian O'Neil, 17 years old, of 68 Dean Street, Brooklyn, was saved from drowning by Patrolman John Isaacson of Brooklyn Police Headquarters, who was spending his day off at Coney Island. Miss O'Neil, a good swimmer, had gone some distance beyond the lifelines when she was attacked by cramps. Isaacson, although a powerful swimmer, was almost exhausted when he reached her, but managed to keep afloat with the girl until Patrolman James Henry reached them in a rowboat and brought them ashore.

GUNMEN FIGHT POLICE IN $13,000 HOLD-UP

ONE SUSPECT IS CAPTURED

Robbers invaded the offices of an ice cream company in Harlem yesterday afternoon, beat two employes, stole $13,000 in cash and checks and shot and seriously wounded one employe who tried to hinder their flight.

Speeding away in an automobile, they met with disaster when the car was wrecked more than a mile from the scene of the robbery. After a pistol battle with three policemen in which nearly twenty shots were fired, while street crowds scurried for safety, one of their number was captured.

The man shot as he tried to stop the holdup men was Cecil Linderman, 26 years old, of 924 Columbus Avenue. He was taken to Harlem Hospital, where it was feared he might die. The prisoner was Peter Powers of 1,713 Third Avenue. He has a long criminal record, according to the police.

The robbers, five in number, drew up in front of the plant of the Reid Ice Cream Company at 9 West 141st Street, near Fifth Avenue, shortly after 4 o'clock. Leaving one man at the wheel of the automobile, the four others climbed the stairs to the first floor offices.

William Peck of 563 Mott Avenue, the Bronx, a clerk, was alone in the front part of the office when the thieves entered. With pistols in their hands, they ordered him to throw up his hands.

Ordered to Open the Safe.

"Keep quiet or we'll blow your head off" said the leader of the band to the startled Peck.

Peck threw up his hands and waited.

"Now open the safe," commanded the robber.

Peck said that another, whom he identified later as Powers, stepped up to him, pushed a pistol against his stomach and directed that he obey the command. Peck opened the safe. Powers, he said, pulled out a tin box containing $6,000 in cash and about $7,000 in checks.

Without any apparent provocation, the robbers then set on Peck with their fists and beat him. The scuffling was heard by Lester Concannon, the office manager, who had been in a rear part of the office. As he came running in several of the holdup men seized him and beat him so badly that he fell unconscious.

Despite the noise, several dozen men working on the ground floor of the plant where, according to the police, arms and ammunition more than sufficient to drive off the thieves, were kept, went on with their tasks.

When Concannon fell, the holdup men started from the office. Hurrying down the stairs they met Linderman, a driver, on his way to the office to check his accounts with Peck. Linderman divined the identity of the men. As they tried to rush past him, he dived for the legs of one man.

Shoot, Then Continue Flight.

The fugitive wriggled loose and fired. Linderman fell back with a bullet in his abdomen. The thieves pushed the fallen man out of the way, ran to the waiting automobile and jumped in. The car sped south on Fifth Avenue to 122d Street, weaving swiftly in an out through the heavy Sunday afternoon traffic, and then turned east.

Going at high speed, the car made the turn south into Third Avenue on two wheels. The driver lost control. The car veered, mounted the sidewalk, crashed into a fire hydrant and was wrecked. Herbert Cassile of 111 East 122d Street, who was standing near by, was knocked down.

The broken fire hydrant spurted water in all directions, and as the robbers piled out the large crowds on the avenue commenced to gather around the wrecked automobile. Patrolmen Martin Mahoney and Timothy Degnan and Probationary Patrolman Henry Rogan, who were on their way home from a tour of duty, saw the PARIS, July 25.—It is understood that the new Cabinet has decided to submit the English and American debt accords to Parliament without recommendation and without making their approval a question of confidence.

While there is every evidence that a majority of the Chamber is against the Bérenger-Mellon agreement, opposition is much less to the British agreement, due largely to the skillful manner in which the London diplomats handled the French, coupled with the benign propaganda which has enveloped the Caillaux-Churchill treaty. In other words, it appears likely that the British accord will be ratified, and it appears unlikely that the American accord will be approved.

In view of this situation special importance attaches to the statement that English and Dutch bankers gave the French assurances of credits for carrying out the experts' plan for restoration of the French finances.

Says Formal Promise Was Made.

This statement contained a declaration made by Jacques Duboin, a member of the Experts' Committee and Under Secretary of Finance in the Briand Cabinet, published today, in which he says:

"It is exact, so far as America is concerned, that no direct credit will be granted us before ratification of the Washington agreement. But it remains true that we obtained from England and Holland specifically a formal promise of immediate and amply sufficient aid to assure complete functioning of the experts' plan."

For some time there had been reports both in London and Paris that the English had promised credits to France if the English debt accord were ratified, and the statement of M. Duboin tends to confirm these reports.

While there is no agreement in the Cabinet as to merits of the Berenger Treaty, it is known that a majority of the Ministers are against it. They have publicly gone on record to that effect. It remains true that Foreign Minister Briand is committed to the treaty, since as Premier he authorized Ambassador Berenger to sign it. The decision to leave the matter to Parliament is considered as a graceful acknowledgment that there is no agreement in the Cabinet.

The Echo de Paris today says M. Poincaré personally is still opposed to the Washington settlement and since he does not intend to seek American credits seems in no hurry about dealing with the matter. This paper, generally excellently informed about the moves of M. Poincaré, says he intends to let Parliament go on its vacation without ratification of the Washington accord and then to seek changes in it which will correspond to the assurance given by the English. For this purpose the Echo de Paris says he will send an Ambassador to Washington who will not be M. Berenger.

Cabinet Adopts Fiscal Program.

Premier Poincaré's financial program was unanimously adopted by the Cabinet today despite the variety of political hues of its members. The battle is thus half won and the Government has tomorrow in which to draw up its Ministerial declaration and get President Doumergue's approval before the second half of the battle opened in the Chamber of Deputies.

It is learned that the Premier will not ask for full power. He will not deprive Parliament of any of its prerogatives. Nor will he give the country the impression that it is in the midst of a terrible crisis.

The whole object of M. Poincaré's program is to provide the Treasury with sufficient additional resources

ABOARD THE SCHOONER MORRISSEY (CARRYING THE PUTNAM ARCTIC EXPEDITION), Monday, July 26.—At 2 o'clock this morning, ship's time, the Morrissey struck a sunken rock off Northumberland Island at the mouth of Whale Sound.

The vessel's oak bottom is intact and no water is being taken in. The sea is smooth and the ice is not menacing.

The anchors were thrown out and an effort was made to warp the Morrissey free of the ledge. Unfortunately the deck cargo of oil shifted and we must now wait until the next flood tide. Meantime, there is no danger.

SOVIET SUPPRESSES NEW OPPOSITION

DIFFERED AS TO METHODS

By WALTER DURANTY.

MOSCOW, July 25.—The Communist Party Administration machine has fired a broadside against new—it is perhaps more correct to say "renewed"—opposition within the party ranks.

Gregory Zinovieff, the world-known President of the Communist International has been removed from the "Political Bureau," which is the inner governing group of the Communist Party, and his behavior subjected to the strongest public censure, while another "opposition" leader, Lashevich, has been removed from his position as a candidate—which here is equivalent to a substitute or subsidiary member—for the Central Committee of the Communist Party, dismissed from his post of Assistant War Minister and forbidden to undertake responsible party work for two years.

The resolution of the combined session of the Central Committee and Control Committee of the party wherein the above decisions are embodied gives full publicity to the "illegal conspirative" (that is the literal wording) campaign carried on by the opposition group against the Central Committee.

The resolution states that M. Zinovieff made use of the Communist International machinery inside of Russia to further this campaign by holding secret meetings, "by reproducing and transmitting, not only in Moscow but in the provincial centres of Briansk, Saratof, Valdivostok, Omsk, Gomel, Odessa, Piati, Gorsk, and elsewhere, confidential documents of the Political Bureau itself by sending agents to various party organizations with the view to the formation of fractional underground groups."

Then the resolution refers to an "illegal fractional meeting," in a wood near Moscow, which has been the topic of conversation in well-informed circles in Moscow for the past few weeks, and even of comment in the Russian émigré Press in Berlin. This meeting was arranged, says the resolution, by a certain Belenki, who was expelled some time ago from the Communist Party as a member of the "workers' opposition, but who was allowed to continue his work in the Communist International.

Not only was this "an unprecedented schismatic step in the history of our party," it says, but to this "conspirative meeting with patrols and secret individual summons" there came—which is also unprecedented in the history of the party—the candidate of the Central Committee, M. Lashevich, and made a speech advocating an organized struggle against the Central Committee.

It is no secret that the discussions of the combined session of the Communist leaders which issued the resolution was arduous and passionate.

At this point, to avoid misapprehension abroad, one fact must be stated most emphatically. All this talk of dissension and censure of critics of the opposition does not mean and will not mean that the Soviet régime is in danger or that the "Bolsheviki are fighting among themselves."

There is a typical case at present in France of kaleidoscopic political views of persons, but Poincaré, Briand, Caillaux, Herriot and Loucheur are all

Berlin Lets Reichsbanner Arm 3,000,000; Total of 5,000,000 Now Have Right to Rifles

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, July 25.—The executives of the Reichsbanner, the black, red and gold militant association for the defense of the German Republic, decided at Magdeburg today to arm its 3,000,000 members with rifles. Simultaneously the Federal Government let it be known that there was no official objection to target practice with small-calibre weapons.

These two decisions mean that within a few weeks there will be 5,000,000 Germans armed with .22 calibre rifles and pistols. What action the Allies will take cannot be foreseen save that the Interallied Control Commission already has protested against the use of small-calibre arms by the monarchistic fatherland societies.

Apparently as a counter-move against possible allied objections to the arming of the so-called patriotic leagues in Germany, Dr. Bell, the newly appointed Minister of Justice and the Liberated Regions, issued a declaration today denouncing the presence of 85,000 allied troops in the occupied Rhineland. The French Government, Dr. Bell said, had accepted the German contention that "normal strength" occupation should be limited to the pre-war total of the German Rhenish garrisons, namely, 50,000 men, but that the reductions hoped for had not been realized.

A dispatch to THE TIMES from Berlin Saturday told of the arming of 2,000,000 members of the reactionary and monarchistic United Fatherland Societies, the imminence of the Reichsbanner decision to arm and a demand of the Communists for the same privilege. In the fear of fratricidal strife pleas were being voiced for a Government ban on the carrying of rifles.

MEXICO CITY, July 25.—Unprecedented demonstrations of Catholicity took place throughout the republic today, probably the last Sunday on which services will be held in the churches for a long time.

During the day the Church in Mexico announced its program of protest against the religious regulations of the Government when it issued a pastoral letter, signed by the Most Rev. Mora y del Rio, Archbishop of Mexico City, the seven other Archbishops and twenty-nine Bishops of the Republic, ordering the suspension of all services in the churches in which the offices of priests are required. The suspension will take effect on July 31 and will be operative until further notice.

President Calles issued a statement during the day declaring that the economic boycott planned by Catholics as a protest against the religious regulations would fail. He asserted that the campaign was backed by only a few leaders of the Church and some laymen.

Great Procession to Guadalupe.

The greatest religious manifestation of the day, and perhaps the greatest Mexico has witnessed in many years, was along the dusty road from Mexico City to the Shrine of Guadalupe, over which streamed throngs of worshipers on their way to devotions to the famous Virgin of Guadalupe.

Barefoot Indians in native costume, pouring on to the highway from all parts of the surrounding country, trudged patiently amid the clouds of dust raised by the passing of the automobiles of well-to-do Mexicans. Thousands of Indians passed the Shrine, some in tears, passionately making the sign of the cross as they approached and others kneeling for a moment at the altar.

Men, women and children, a mingling of all classes, were bowed in sadness as the vast multitude surged through the doors of the church. A reverent hush prevailed inside the edifice which was packed till there was not even elbow room.

Then a volume of sound arose from the voices of prayer and a slow movement began through the church. Many of the Indians bore pictures of the Virgin. Others carried lighted candles, whose myriad lights twinkled under the sombre dome of the shrine.

Another throng waited patiently outside the church for the opportunity to enter and hundreds of those who could not get in knelt before the principal entrance, making the sign of the cross and praying fervently for the Virgin to help solve the religious difficulties with the State.

Despite their traditional stoical reserve the Indians could not hide their sorrow. Groups would meet in the environs of the shrine and begin to talk and then suddenly break up with downcast faces.

The Mexicans of the higher classes carried their grief with dignity but their silence on the way to and from the shrine betokened their inner thoughts.

Other shrines near Mexico City were thronged throughout the day as countless pilgrimages were organized for the faithful to pay their final devotions before the priests are withdrawn.

Contrasts in Church Throngs.

Women in the most expensive attire, rubbed shoulders with their poorer shawl-clad sisters and workmen in overalls during the rush of Catholics to enter the Cathedral in Mexico City this morning. The entire interior of the edifice was filled with kneeling figures who were busied in earnest prayer. A lone priest remained at the altar with a single altar boy, observing the usual services.

Hundreds of women, mostly of the poorer classes, remained in long lines in Sagrario, waiting their turn to enter and have their children baptized. Peons in overalls, barefooted women with rosaries carefully wrapped in shawls, and with children clinging to their skirts, and proud fathers with sons and daughters in their arms waited patiently under a broiling sun to enter the church and have their children confirmed in their religious faith.

The scene outside the church was that of a fair. There were dozens of stands where cold drinks, candy and ice cream were sold, the vendors doing a rushing business.

At one small church in the Santa Maria colony of the Federal District, forty-five marriages were celebrated this morning of couples eager to be wed before the priests were withdrawn.

In spite of the fact that the faithful have crowded the churches for the past week, the churches were jammed at every mass on Sunday and the streets leading to the churches were filled with communicants on their way to what were probably the last services for a long time.

Calles Attacks Catholics' Course.

President Calles, in a statement given to the press today, characterized as criminal and seditious the attempt of Catholics of Mexico to cripple the business and social life of the republic in the hope of forcing the Government to revoke or amend its religious regulations.

The President declared that the Government was convinced that events would soon show that the proposed boycott would fail. It would have no effect on the economic life of the country and all that the campaign would do would be to cause rich Catholics to refrain from attending social gatherings where their presence might constitute scandal, a scandal to other members of the Church. These people, he thought, however, would visit cabarets, and other places of amusement.

The economic life of Mexico, he declared, does not depend on a dozen agitators who have made the Catholic religion a pretext for showing their anger against the Government's new measures. He was waiting for the next step by these agitators, he said.

The constant enemies of the country were the bad Mexican Catholic clergy, agitators and politicians. At the last anniversary of the Constitution, which directs the destinies of Mexico, there was produced in the Universal, President Calles said, an old document which stated that the clergy refused to acknowledge the Constitution of the republic. The Government, on his advice, he contined, paid no attention to this article, but the Universal had lately repeated it.

His Government, he said, was unwilling to believe that the clergy intended not to recognize the Constitution and were hostile to the fundamental law of the country.

Charges Agitators Impel Clergy.

The recent modifications of the Penal Code had provoked the campaign to paralyze the economic and social life of Mexico, and it was now seen that the Archbishop and Bishops who refused to acknowledge the Constitution were exciting rebellion, as was charged in the article in The Universal.

The truth was, he said, that the proceedings to apply the article of the Constitution to clergy would be to their benefit through the automatic elimination of foreign priests, who, in many cases were less trouble to the Government than the Mexican clergy. The belief was that those behind the clergy were agitators trying to disturb the administration of the Government and that they had disguised themselves as religious followers in order to hide their reactionary tendencies.

Behind the National League for Defense of Religious Freedom were lawyers who were making a show of religion for business reasons, said President Calles. They were seeking to obtain the management of the financial affairs of the colleges and churches.

The second group of political agitators, he said, were those who had formed the National Catholic Party and were now using the National League in an effort to destroy the riches of Mexico by means of a boycott.

Will Punish Law-Breakers.

The President said that Mexico ever since it got its independence had always been confronted with the problem of the Catholic Church mixing in temporal affairs and that this interference had produced a weakness in the spiritual influence of the church in Mexico. Some Catholics, he said, saw the depth of the question through a sea of intrigue.

"Naturally," he said, "my Government does not expect to change the reforms in the penal code, which certain leaders have made a pretext to oppose the reconstruction work and social revolution which we are carrying on.

"Each maifestation of hostility or opposition to the work of my Government will meet with a new means of repression against those who do not recognize our laws and any actions, such as an attempt at paralyzation of the economic life of Mexico will only show the lack of force of those behind it."

Pressing of Boycott Urged.

At the door of one of the main churches today members of the Young Men's Catholic Association were distributing a new circular, urging all to proceed with the boycott. It said in part:

"There is no crime of sedition, as the extraordinary powers granted the President by Congress are not constitutional. Even if they were constitutional they could not give the President power to violate liberty of conscience and freedon in education. To establish a charge of sedition disorder is essential, and our boycott is not disorderly. The boycott does not propose to prevent the promulgation of the law, but simply to force the revocation of the law.

"All the world is watching what Mexicans will do to reconquer their liberty of conscience. This is an affair of not Catholics alone. It is one that should interest all free men. It is an affair of our honor."

The labor federations of the Federal district in sessions today declared the Catholics were trying to overthrow the Government and erect upon its ruins a golden calf. They hold that the Catholics are capitalists, trying to destroy gains made by the proletariat in many revolutions.

Their declaration went on:

"We have decided that we must back the Government of President Calles in order to permit labor to achieve its highest airms, that benefits gained by sacrifices may not be lost.

"Reaction is playing its last card to destroying work of the revolutions which have given the proletariat better means of living."

Text of the Pastoral Letter.

MEXICO CITY, July 25 (AP).—The pastoral letter, issued by the Bishops of Mexico to the Catholics, reads as follows:

"His Holiness, Pope Pius, has been profoundly moved by the religious persecution which for some time has been unchained in Mexico, and, even before the heinous recrudescence of the last few months, his Holiness, in his last apostolic letter, Feb. 2, spoke of the iniquity of the decrees and laws which had been sanctioned by statesmen, enemies of the Church, against Catholics in Mexico.

"In that letter Pope Pius recalled that his predecessor, Benedict XV, rejected the same character of Mexican laws, and Pope Pius, in his February letter, repeated and ratified Benedict's repudiation of such Mexican laws.

"Since 1917, when we (the Mexican Episcopate) raised our voice in protest to His Holiness Benedict XV, until the present time, our conduct has always been that of prudent silence, because the Mexican anti-religious clauses were not applied to the extent of making impossible the existence of the Church.

Grave Persecution Charged.

"In truth, the Governments in power during that period of time undoubtedly placed great obstacles before the Church and passed against the Church several administrative measures excessively vigorous and sometimes unconstitutional, but they never made impossible the administration of the sacraments and the exercise of services in general.

"Against that grave persecution, which could be considered as isolated and transitory, we could observe an expectant attitude, seeking harmony, tolerating humiliations, always having in mind the principles of the divine constitution of the Church.

"But the regulations now issued by the Federal Executive, which injure to such an extent the divine rights of the Church entrusted to our guardianship, are secondary to the natural rights which both consecrate religious liberty as the primordial foundation of civilization and positively prescribe social and individual duty to worship God and are so contrary to the Mexican constitutional rights that before such violation of so sacred moral values it is impossible for us to yield any further.

"It would be a crime on our part to tolerate such a situation, and we do not desire that when brought before the tribunal of God the tardy lamentations of the prophet might come to our mind—'Woe is me because I have kept silent.'

"Who will not recognize that an offense truly incredible is done divine rights and natural rights, and to the dearest and most sacred interests of the Mexican nation, when, according to the latest decree of the Federal Executive, the acts ordered or advised by God, and, therefore, most sacred—acts which the legislation of civilized countries protect, acts which for centuries have been the soul and life of the Mexican people—are made criminal offenses, with penalties more rigorous than moral crimes in general or crimes against life and property?

"Who fails to recognize that the present decree, instead, tends to make the 1917 Constitution unchangeable, whereas the Mexican people for a thousand reasons desire it amended?

"Is it not clear that the decree, instead of promoting the common welfare and assuring religious liberty, as the Constitution requires, tends only to make Mexico un-Catholic and to create for the Government a serious problem and a sad inheritance for its successors?

"For this reason, and following the Pontiff's example, we protest against the decree before God, before civilized humanity, before the country and before history. With God's favor and your (the Catholics of Mexico) cooperation we will work to effect an amendment of the decree and the anti-religious provisions of the Constitution, and we will not desist from our purpose until it is attained.

Services Ordered Suspended.

"As we have said in a previous pastoral letter, our conduct is not rebellion, because this same Constitution containing anti-religious clauses leaves the way open for its amendment; also because our attitude is just obedience of orders and because it is just defense of legitimate rights.

"Therefore, confronting the impossibility of practising our sacred ministry under the conditions imposed by this decree, and, after having consulted the Most Holy Father, His Holiness the Pope, and with his ratification, we order that after July 31, until we order otherwise, all religious services requiring the intervention of priests shall be suspended in all the churches of the country.

"We advise you, beloved sons, that this is not meant to impose on you the grave penalty of interdiction, but we merely intend to use the only weapon at present at our disposal to protest against the anti-religious clauses of the Constitution and the laws thereby sanctioned.

"Church buildings will not be closed, so worshipers may pray within them. The priests in charge of the buildings will be withdrawn in order to release them from the penalties imposed by the decree, and so priests will not have to give the notifications required by the law.

"We leave the churches under the care of the worshipers, and we are sure they will guard the sanctuaries which they inherited from their ancestors or which they built themselves for the worship of God.

"As the law does not grant Catholic primary schools the necessary permission to impart religious teachings to which they are bound, we impose it upon the conscience of all fathers to prevent their sons from attending schools where their faith and good customs are endangered and where the texts violate that religious neutrality recognized by the Constitution itself.

"It is painful, indeed, to our paternal heart that we are forced to adopt such grave measures, for which we assume full responsibility. But you will understand by what has been said that we cannot adopt other lines of conduct.

"Have faith in us, beloved sons, as we have faith in your unbreakable loyalty. Let us all have faith in God. But do not lead a barren life because of this confidence. Remember that Nineveh was saved from destruction by prayers of penitents. Persevere through God and the Holy Virgin with prayers, fasts and penitence also.

Support of Priests Asked.

"Do not forget those poor priests who are left without means to live. Show your pain by refusing to attend mundane amusements. Seek by all permissible and peaceful means annulment of those laws that will deprive you and your sons of the priceless and necessary treasure, religious life.

"Neither your social standing, nor orders you may receive, nor anything whatsoever will relieve you of the grave crime before God and man of cooperating in the serious evils which are brought about by the application of the anti-Catholic laws.

"And for a greater reason it is necessary to attach the shameful title of traitor to our own religion and to apply heavy canonical penalties to any persons who, under cover of so-called popular action, may give information against the clergy or sacred property. (This refers to the procedure whereby persons may inform the Government of cases where the clergy or churches own property forbidden by the Constitution, enabling the Government to confiscate such property, the identity of their informers remaining secret.)

Possible Penalties Enumerated.

"Some of the penalties which the Catholic Church may impose upon persons who have been baptised therein are:

"Excommunication of those who issue laws, regulations or decrees against the rights and liberty of the Church.

"Excommunication of those who dare to bring a Bishop before a laical court.

"Excommunication of those giving their names to Masonry or similar sects that plot against the Church or against the Church authorities.

"Excommunication of those who usurp, themselves or through others, ecclesiastical property of any nature, or prevent those rightfully entitled to such property from receiving its benefits.

"On Aug. 1 his Holiness the Pope and the whole Catholic world will pray for the Mexican Church. Let us join the Holy Father and our brothers throughout the world in making that a day of special prayer and penitence.

"Let us strengthen our spirits, remembering how Jesus was persecuted and reviled, but resurrected. And so with the Mexican Church, after the persecutions it will be resurrected more glorious than before."

The letter concludes by imparting the Papal benediction.

Calles Denies Revolutionary Move.

President Calles, in a telegram to The Associated Press last night, declared the situation in his country to be normal and denied rumors of anti-Governmental activity. In response to a query sent him as to the situation in Mexico, he telegraphed:

"Rumors which you say circulate in that country of impending revolution in Mexico unfounded. Situation is normal, with few unimportant incidents provoked by political campaign of reactionaries under cover of the robe of Catholicism.

"It is only a new phase of the old fight of reaction against the administrative work and the reconstrutive labor and the consolidation of the revolutionary principles that the Government is endeavoring to bring about."

OSSINING, July 25.—Warden Lewis E. Lawes of Sing Sing confirmed this evening a report that Charles E. Chapin, former city editor of a New York evening newspaper, now serving a life sentence for murder of his wife, is seriously ill and, to use the warden's own words, "is fast slipping away and cannot last long if kept in confinement."

Prison attendants say that Chapin has acute gastritis and they are informed that efforts will be made to try to have him pardoned by Governor Smith.

Warden Lawes said today he had heard of no actual move on the part of anybody now to get Chapin pardoned but that, from time to time, a number of persons who had seen him had expressed readiness to try to have him released because of his advancing years and fast failing health. The warden said that among those who had spoken of being ready to aid in an effort to have Chapin pardoned are John S. Kennedy of Brooklyn and Irvin S. Cobb, the writer.

The warden declared that while Chapin has gastritis and has been ill for five days in his cell he refuses to go to the prison hospital. He is being treated by Dr. C. C. Sweet, the surgeon who is temporarily acting as head prison physician, and Dr. Robert Bloom of Ossining. Chapin is in one of the so-called trusties' cells in what was formerly the old death-house. The warden said that rheumatism, as well as stomach trouble, has greatly weakened Chapin's vitality.

"He refuses to go to the hospital," said Warden Lawes, "but he has not been out of his cell for five days. The doctors see him there every day. He has been losing weight for some time. It would be better for his health to be away from here. He is fast slipping and cannot last long if kept in confinement."

The warden said that Chapin was "one of the best workers around the place. He is worth more than any other ten inmates together. He looks after all the flowers and lawns, inside and outside the walls."

Chapin is 68 years old, but Warden Lawes says he looks much older. His story about the murder was that he killed his wife in a fit of discouragement and intended to die with her but lost his nerve. He went to prison seven and a half years ago, his actual sentence being from twenty years to life. He would be eligible for parole in seven and a half years more. He used to edit the Sing Sing Bulletin, the prison newspaper, until the warden discontinued it.

ALL CATHOLICS HERE ARE CALLED TO PRAYER

Cardinal Hayes's Pastoral Letter on Mexican Persecutions Read in Churches.

In accordance with the request of Pope Pius XI that prayers be offered throughout the world next Sunday for the cessation of reported persecution of Roman Catholics in Mexico, a pastoral letter of Patrick Cardinal Hayes calling the Catholics here to prayer on that day was read yesterday at every mass in every Catholic Church in the Arch-Diocese of New York.

Pursuant to the Pope's request, Cardinal Hayes directed that next Sunday—the Feast of St. Peter-in-Chains—be set aside as a day of solemn prayer for the Catholics in Mexico. His letter, which began by mentioning "the shocking injustices perpetrated by an anti-Christian Government," quoted in full a communication from Cardinal Gasparri, Papal Secretary of State, and enumerated the alleged offenses of Mexican officials against Catholic clergy and laity.

Pope to Say Special Prayers.

The Pope himself, according to despatches from Rome, has been so affected by the situation in Mexico that he will say special prayers in the Pauline Chapel on Sunday.

In several churches of the Arch-Diocese, after reading the pastoral letter, priests preached on the attitude of Mexico toward religion. At St. Patrick's Cathedral the letter was read by the Rev. Bryan J. McEntaggart, who compared the actions of the Mexican Government to the persecution by the Romans of the early Christians.

"How futile such persecution is," Father McEntaggart exclaimed. "Man may wage war against the Church of Christ but in the end it is the Church which triumphs."

In his sermon at St. Agnes's Church, 143 East Forty-third Street, Mgr. John P. Chidwick, who was chaplain of the Maine when it was blown up, declared that the United States should withdraw its recognition of the Mexican Government because of persecution of Catholics.

"The United States should refuse recognition to any nation on the continent of America which degrades American ideals of manhood and citizenship," he said. "We stand before the world as a nation upholding the rights of man, the freedom of the citizen and the happiness of the individual—and we have always been helpful, even with our arms, to people who are striving for these ideals of government.

Cites Our Wars on Tyranny.

"We have aided Cuba, and in the late war we fought to defeat despotism and tyranny. That we should stand still, be unmoved, and even give our recognition—which means our approval—to a nation at our border which denies to her citizens and to our own citizens who may be living within her boundary the ordinary natural rights of man is past all understanding.

"It is a contradiction to all our action in similar cases in the past. Particularly inexplicable is the silence of our country on the rights of her own people in Mexico. An American Catholic citizen who happens to be a priest is not permitted to enter Mexico, or if he be in Mexico is expelled. An American citizen residing in Mexico, should he desire to have the rites of his church at his home where he may be ill, is refused the privilege. He cannot exercise his freedom of conscience in Mexico.

"The weakness of our Government in permitting a condition of this kind at our border is deplorable and may some day be fuel to a fire of similar nature in our own country and a menace to the liberties that we now enjoy.

"Our Monroe Doctrine was intended to save the Governments of America from the invasion of European despotic and monarchical ideals. Surely while we extend this protection to these Governments we should consider it our duty that they shall in no way lower the standards of our American ideals of liberty and citizenship."

At St. Peter's Church, 20 Barclay Street, the Rev. John Thomann of Mary Knoll Mission said:

"The persecution of the Catholic Church in Mexico is in direct opposition to all those principles for which America stands. Let us pray for the deliverance of our brothers and sisters in Mexico, not only as loyal Catholics, but also as citizens of a nation which looks with horror on religious persecution."

The Rev. Thomas Mahan of St. Joseph's of Beulah Hill, London, who read the pastoral letter at the 8 and 9 o'clock masses at the church, declared that the American heritage of religious freedom made such prayers as directed doubly significant.

The text of the pastoral letter follows:

Reverend and Dear Father:

The distressful and dreadful crisis with which the Church in Mexico is confronted has called forth from the Vicar of Christ, Pope Pius XI, an enumeration of the shocking injustices perpetuated by an anti-Christian Government against priests, religious and a faithful Catholic people.

No pen can present the situation more truly and impressively than does the letter of His Eminence, Cardinal Gasparri, Secretary of State, writing in the name of our Holy Father. The letter reads as follows:

"Deplorable news continues to reach us concerning the sad vicissitudes of the Church in the Republic of Mexico, where, under a hypocritical form of pretended legality, those who hold the reins of Government are carrying out a true and real persecution against the Catholic religion in that unhappy nation. It is not necessary for us to review the serious, painful facts now daily multiplied in that republic. While amplest liberty is allowed by the present Mexican Government to representatives of other religions, that same liberty is denied to all Catholics in a manner which would dishonor any civilized people. The Mexican Government not only persists in refusing to allow the Papal representative to remain in Mexico, but has gone so far as to expel the Apostolic delegate, Archbishop Caruana, alleging, in justification of such action, false and calumnious charges.

Inhuman Methods Charged.

"The Mexican Government, moreover, continues to drive from the republic foreign-born priests and religious and sisters in such an inhuman way as would scarcely be used against the worst of criminals.

"The Mexican Government has proceeded to limit arbitrarily the number of even the native-born priests of Mexico, and the number of dioceses. The Mexican Government has closed colleges and seminaries and imposed upon priests who venture to exercise their ministry such conditions as are intolerable to conscience.

"Churches from which priests were driven by violence are being taken over by civil authorities, under the pretext that such churches were abandoned.

"His Holiness is deeply grieved that so beloved a portion of his flock is subjected to such a persecution. In his consistorial allocution of Dec. 14, 1925, His Holiness manifested his great sorrow and declared that in the present hour of tribulation for the Church in Mexico be placed his every confidence in the divine goodness to whom he daily addressed fervent prayer. Lately His Holiness wrote with his own hand a letter to the Cardinal Vicar charging him to ask the faithful of Rome to unite with him in these prayers for our suffering Mexican brethren.

"In that letter his Holiness also expressed the wish that the entire Catholic world would follow the example of the Catholics of Rome, and a far-reaching response was the result. Now that the suffering of our Mexican brethren is increased, it is all the more necessary that we increase our prayers for them.

To Join Pope in Prayer.

"The august Pontiff has directed me to convey to you this grave charge, that with all solicitude you inform the Episcopate of his Holiness's desire, so that, in turn, all the faithful be invited to unite their prayers to those of the Holy Father. His Holiness desires that these prayers be offered on the first of August, the Feast of St. Peter in Chains. The date is most opportune since it recalls how the prayers of the faithful in the first persecution of the Church secured such miraculous intervention from God. Another happy coincidence is that the prayers thus offered will begin on the day of the great Portiuncula Indulgence, of more solemn import this year because it marks the seventh centenary of the death of St. Francis.

"All these circumstances will, no doubt, render more fervent and more acceptable to God the prayers of all the faithful for the ending of the persecution in Mexico and for the pardon of the persecutors.

"Finally, the Holy Father decrees that these same intentions be added to those already recommended in the bull extending the holy year to the entire world.

"(Signed) P. CARD. GASPARRI.

The Cardinal's Instructions.

In accordance with the wishes of his Holiness it is herewith directed that on Sunday, Aug. 1, the feast of St. Peter in Chains, the following instructions will be observed throughout this diocese in all our churches and chapels of religious communities:

I. Oratio imperata from the mass pro quacumque necessitate in all the masses.

I. Litany of the Saints to be chanted or recited after the principal mass.

III. Exposition of the blessed sacrament after the principal mass until evening; or for one hour during Sunday afternoon if the number of adorers does not warrant the longer exposition; in the smaller parishes at least benediction of the blessed sacrament at a convenient hour.

IV. Prayers to be recited coram sanctissimo are rosary and prayer to St. Joseph used during October devotions.

V. Besides the public prayers the faithful are to be invited to pray in their private devotions for the intention of our Holy Father. It would be most commendable for as many as possible to offer holy communion for the Church in Mexico.

Praying for you and your devoted flock every blessing, I am,

Faithfully yours in Christ,

PATRICK CARDINAL HAYES,
Archbishop of New York.

NEW PYRAMID PREDICTION.

English Prophet Says Cheops Points to Aug. 22 as Momentous.

CHESHAM, England, July 25 (AP).—Preaching in the Free Church here tonight, the Rev. Walter Wynn, who says he believes that there is an architectural allegory presented in the great Cheops Pyramid, announced that the next pyramid date for a momentous world event was Aug. 22.

Mr. Wynn uttered a scathing denunciation of certain English newspapers which asserted that he had predicted the end of the world on July 20. He told the congregation that the pyramid "fixed astronomically and geometrically July 20, 1926, as a day marking an event indicating depression and chaos, and on that day the franc touched bottom and the scenes in Paris recalled those of the French Revolution."

Referring to his prediction about the next world war, for 1928, Mr. Wynn said earnestly:

"I am sure, after forty years' study of the pyramid prophecy concerning the period 1914-26. Its divine message is especially directed to the English-speaking people. Time will tell."

DISCREDITS NEW SHIP DEAL.

J. H. Thomas Denies Reopening of White Star Negotiations.

J. H. Thomas, Vice President of the International Mercantile Marine, said yesterday that from what he knew of the situation there was no truth in reports from London that negotiations for the purchase of the White Star Line by Furness, Withy & Co., Ltd., had been reopened. He said that, as far as he knew, P. A. S. Franklin, President of the International, had made no change in his plans to return here from England in about a week.

"If Mr. Franklin had any intention of reopening negotiations I would know of it," said Mr. Thomas. "The statement in the report that J. P. Morgan may enter the negotiations is without foundation. The whole report about the reopening of negotiations was probably started by Mr. Morgan's arrival in London."

JOHNSON ASSAILS FOREIGN CRITICS

WOULD QUIT WORLD COURT

He Is Sure Reservations Will Be Rejected, Thus Saving America From Itself.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—Senator Hiram Johnson, Republican, of California, a member of the irreconcilable group, issued a statement tonight replying to the criticism of the United States in Europe and suggesting that this country counter by withdrawing its application for membership in the World Court. Senator Johnson's declaration supplemented that made yesterday by Senator Borah and added to the general conviction here that the issue of entry into the World Court and ratification of the allied debt compacts would be carried into the Congressional campaign this Fall.

Mr. Johnson contends that the French and British showed poor taste in attacking the United States as a "Shylock" when it had been demonstrated by statements made by Secretary Mellon that in making the compacts America had canceled billions of dollars of the debts owed to us by European nations.

Text of the Statement.

Senator Johnson's statement follows:

"I commend to those good people who don't know what they are talking about, but who are forever prating of our 'moral obligation' to Europe, what is happening there today. The greatest of the English newspapers are denouncing us without stint; the French press is ablaze in its bitterness against us; the Italian papers emulate those of other countries in applying opprobrious epithets to us. One of them today shrieks at us: 'But there is one thing to be remembered outside of Europe; in the world there is Asia, and in Asia there is Japan.'

"Well-dressed crowds of Frenchmen in the streets of Paris hiss and hoot and mob Americans. In our leading international newspaper, THE NEW YORK TIMES, we read today from its Paris correspondent, who always voices the foreign view, that what is occurring has the potentiality of trouble. The United States is the pariah among nations, openly accused of being a moneybag and a Shylock, hated and despised alike by all. And apparently the cause of it all is because the United States is seeking to collect a portion, and only a small portion, of the promissory notes given to the United States by foreign nations.

Makes Attack on Mellon.

"We have just learned from Mr. Mellon for the first time that in the case of Italy we forgave all of the money we loaned during the war and collected but half of that loaned after the war, and we learned this despite the fact that until now Mr. Mellon and his spokesmen in and out of the Congress, insisted we were collecting every dollar of the principal due us.

"With Europe united in but one thing, hatred of the United States, a part of our citizenship is so blind, a part so weak and flabby, that they would take this hated creditor nation into a World Court dominated by its hating debtors.

"It comes to us from various sources that our reservations will be accepted by no great nation of Europe. But three small nations have acquiesced in them. We may be saved from ourselves by those who hate us most; but it would be infinitely better with the knowledge existing in the State Department today and with the knowledge that has been conveyed to our people by the daily news dispatches, that without delay we withdraw our proposal for entry."

SEES LEAGUE BRINGING PEACE TO BALKANS

Dr. Politis Says It Provides the Means for States to Establish Independence.

The League of Nations is the only thing which will make for permanent peace in the Balkan States after its hundred years of continual fighting, said Dr. Nicolas Politis, former Greek Minister to France, last night, speaking at a meeting at International House.

"The League of Nations is one of the things which is derived from the great war, and it has given the Balkan States an opportunity to get together and has established independence for them. The trouble with the situation hitherto has been that the greater European powers have always tried to control the States on the Balkan Peninsula, with the result that there have always been wars either incited by these greater powers or in rebellion against them. The League has changed all that, and has already solved some problems. It has made the new idea among these States that of contact and aid for one another rather than conflict.

"The members of the Balkan States are not as bad as they are pictured. They are only trying to gain their freedom, and are justified in doing it even by force. Independence is not real, however, until all foreign control and intervention are removed. Some of the foreign powers mixed themselves into Balkan affairs because they had assisted in attempts to gain them freedom; some have mixed for no reason at all. They have had to tolerate foreign intervention because they are too weak to take the step the United Sates took under President Monroe. It is in this attitude where the League of Nations will help; and when trouble springs up, it will arbitrate."

Setback Seen to Women in Office.

Mr. Moody today gave out the following statement:

"There is now no doubt of the success of our cause. The loyal support given to my candidacy by men and women in all walks of life and in all parts of Texas is gratifying. I have no delusion that the result is a personal victory. It is the triumph of the principles of free government and democracy in which the people of Texas believe. I appreciate the support given these principles by the people of Texas in this campaign."

It is safe to say that the experience which the people of Texas have had in electing a woman as Governor has served as a serious setback to women holding office in this State. It is regarded as possible that in the years to come a woman may again be elected Governor of Texas, but if so, she will be picked from the unmarried list, if the feeling that is now expressed continues to exist.

One of the interesting features of yesterday's primary was that comparatively few women voted for Governor Ferguson. Practically all of the women's civic and political clubs were for Moody or Davidson.

IT USED TO BE that people got into a motor car from the rear. Marmon fixed it so that it was much more convenient to get in from the side.

From this medieval time till now Marmon has contributed many of the important advances in automobile design. That was quite natural, for when automobiles came along, the Marmon Company had been engaged in precision manufacture for well over fifty years. This year makes 75 in Marmon history.

AUTO SPEEDER KILLS WOMAN AND FLEES

THREE CRASHES IN JERSEY

One Dead, Two Dying, Four Hurt in Mishaps on White Horse Pike—Five Injured on Long Island.

A general alarm was flashed to the police of New York City and Westchester County and the State Constabulary yesterday to hunt an automobile which struck a woman in East Chester Saturday night, then speeded up, dragged her to death and raced away northward on the White Plains road.

The woman killed was Mrs. Henry Griesmer, 40 years old, whose husband is employed by the Bankers' Trust Company in New York City. She was crushed to death in view of her husband and her nine-year-old daughter.

The Westchester County authorities said yesterday that if the chauffeur was caught, a charge of first degree murder would be brought against him, because he deliberately killed the woman to be sure of getting away. Persons who saw the automobile speed by said they believed the driver was a negro and that there was a woman in the rear seat. The car, they thought, was a Buick sedan or coupe.

Mr. and Mrs. Griesmer and their daughter had been driving and at 9:30 o'clock stopped to get some groceries. The husband and daughter remained in the car while Mrs. Griesmer crossed the street to the store. It is a much-frequented street and several persons were crossing the street or standing about on the sidewalk.

Mrs. Griesmer completed her purchases and started back across the street. It was dark, but in her white dress she was easily visible. The car, traveling at 50 or 60 miles an hour, according to bystanders, suddenly roared up the road from the south and struck the woman. The impact jarred the car. Mrs. Griesmer's clothing became entangled with the mudguard. The driver put on more power and the car leaped ahead, dragging the woman along the road. Seventy-five feet from where it had first struck her, the car tossed the woman aside and raced off.

Husband and Daughter Run to Aid.

The husband and daughter saw the woman hit, but did not know it was Mrs. Griesmer. With other spectators, they ran to help the crumpled figure in the road and were horrified when they saw who she was. She was dead when they reached her.

The Griesmers live at 20 Lawrence Avenue, Tuckahoe. Besides the husband and daughter who saw the tragedy, the family includes an eleven-year-old boy. Mrs. Griesmer is survived also by a brother and a sister. The funeral services will be held tomorrow evening at the home and the burial will be on Tuesday.

In three accidents yesterday on the White Horse Pike near Collingswood, N. J., involving holiday parties of motorists bound for the shore one man was killed, two other persons suffered injuries which probably will prove fatal and four others were hurt.

The dead man was William Berger, 40 years old, of 1,223 Wallace Street, Philadelphia. Berger and friends, all from Philadelphia, were on their way to Atlantic City in a car driven by Thomas Winning of 900 North Fifteenth Street, Philadelphia. Near Atco a car in front of Winning's car stopped abruptly because of an obstruction ahead. Winning threw on his brakes to avoid a collision and his car skidded on the road, slippery from last night's rain. The car whirled off the road and overturned.

Boy's Skull Fractured.

Berger was dead when he was removed. Howard Bartlett, 12 years old, of 1,211 Wallace Street, Philadelphia, suffered a fracture of the skull and is believed to be dying. The boy's mother, Mrs. Louise Bartlett, received a broken arm, and Miss Helen Balaguir of 32 North Oercy Street, Philadelphia, was severely bruised. Winning disappeared. The party in the car ahead gave first aid to those in the wrecked car, then went on and their identity was not learned.

James J. Curran, 35 years old, of 1,816 North Warnock Street, Philadelphia, received injuries which are expected to cause his death in a head-on collision near Lawnside. Curran was driving his own car and pulled out from behind a car driven by L. C. Lokerson of 715 Corinthian Street, Philadelphia, to pass. Curran's car sideswiped the Lokerson car and Curran lost control of it, the police said. As he did so he collided with a car coming from the other direction, driven by Russell Henderson of Hamilton, N. J. Curran was thrown through the windshield to the road and his skull was fractured. Henderson received only minor hurts.

Miss Grace Waldron of Merchantville, N. J., suffered a broken arm and bruises when a car driven by her brother, Vaughn Waldron, collided with a machine operated by C. O. Franklin of 1,824 Ridge Avenue, Philadelphia.

Two Die of Injuries.

Thomas Williams, 35 years old, of 105 Varet Street, Brooklyn, who was crushed between two trucks Saturday, died yesterday in St. John's Hospital, Long Island City, Queens. Williams was helping move a stalled truck on Queens Boulevard, Long Island City, when he was injured.

Thomas Salerano, nine years old, of 1,230 Ninetieth Street, Corona, Queens, died yesterday in the Flushing Hospital of injuries received Saturday when he was struck by an automobile on Jackson Avenue, Corona. His skull was fractured.

Five persons were injured yesterday when two automobiles collided on the Cross Bay Boulevard opposite the Raunt. One car was driven by Henry C. Cronin, 23 years old, of 2,173 Third Avenue, Manhattan. The other was driven by Herman Holtzman of 388 Dean Street, Brooklyn.

Cronin was cut about the face and body and taken to Rockaway Beach Hospital. Lester Fischer, 58 years old, of 9,302 Boulevard, Rockaway Beach, was taken to the same hospital with sprains and cuts on the back. Virginia Long, 14 years old, of 11 St. Marks Place; Herman Holtzman, 18, of 388 Dean Street, and Michael Donahue, 13, of 322 Butler Street, Brooklyn, also suffered cuts and bruises.

Patrolman Frank Geoghegan of the Kingsbridge Station was struck by an automobile and hurled fifteen feet yesterday morning while directing traffic at 231st Street and Broadway. After he had been treated for bruises and sent to his home, at 541 West 211th Street, another policeman summoned the driver, Nicholas Heedee of 35 Arden Street, to the Bronx Traffic Court this morning on a charge of failing to keep to the right.

Sidney A. Sanborn was held in $1,500 bail for examination tomorrow on a charge of felonious assault, in the West Side Court yesterday, because of the injury of three young girls and a man in a motorcycle with a sidecar early yesterday morning in a collision with Sanborn's automobile.

The girls were Sarah Duscher, 13 years old; Irene Dirpa, 5, and Gertrude Hickins, 7, and the motorcycle was driven by Adolph Hournon, 26 years old. Sanborn fled after the accident, the police charge, but was found through his license number.

45,000 Bathers Ignore Warning That Two Beaches Are Polluted; Water Off Dyker and Bensonhurst Parks Danger to Health, Harris Says

Great Sunday Crowds Bathing Despite Harris's Warning.

Approximately 25,000 persons bathed at Dyker Beach in Gravesend Bay and 20,000 at the adjacent Bensonhurst Beach yesterday despite the warning of Health Commissioner Louis I. Harris against bathing at Gravesend, Flushing and Jamaica bays.

Most of the bathers were residents of Bath Beach and Bensonhurst, their families and friends. They disported themselves in the water as if they had never heard of Dr. Harris's warning that the water was polluted and a danger to health. No effort was made by the police to prevent bathing.

Members of the West End Chamber of Commerce said they disagreed with Dr. Harris that the waters were polluted. They insisted they had bathed there for years and that their children, many of whom attend New Utrecht High School, had learned to swim in Gravesend Bay.

About twenty years ago a pronouncement by the Health Department against bathing at Bath Beach affected the reputation of the place as a Summer colony. Realty values dropped and took ten years to climb up to the previous mark.

AUTO CRASH KILLS FIVE.

Car Plunges Over Twenty-Foot Embankment at Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, July 25 (AP).—Five persons were killed and another was probably fatally injured when their automobile went over a twenty-foot embankment here early today.

The victims, all Clevelanders, were Miss Lennie McGee, 31; Ester May Wilson, 17; Elmer H. Treichel, 35; Boyd Wagner, 24, and Louis Feuerstein, 26.

Joseph Lisy was taken to a hospital, where doctors said hope for his recovery was slight.

Relatives said they did not know where the victims had been or where they were going.

"PIPER" DONOVAN KILLED.

Former Sprinter Struck by Auto, Driver of Which Escapes.

FRAMINGHAM, Mass., July 25 (AP).—Edward "Piper" Donovan, former sprinter and brother of William "Pooch" Donovan, Harvard's veteran trainer, was killed here today by an automobilist, who escaped after the accident. Donovan's body was found in the road apparently some time after he had been struck. Death was due to a fractured skull.

Donovan was 58 years of age, a shoe worker by trade. In his heyday as an athlete he was credited with a 9 3-5 second hundred-yard dash at Brockton. He was also the first American to win the Heffield sprint in England. His home was in Natick.

GEORGIA DRY JUDGE KIDNAPPED, RESCUED

FOLKSTONE, Ga., July 25 (AP).—Seven mere were held in the county jail tonight in connection with the kidnapping last night of Judge J. Henry Johnson of the Charlton County Court.

Judge Johnson, a wealthy lumberman, was rescued by policemen, who overpowered one of two men who were carrying him toward Waycross. Judge Johnson was not harmed.

Three of the men were apprehended when their automobile was overtaken, but four others escaped and made their way to swamp lands bordering the Okefenokee Swamp. Several score citizens surrounded the place and watched during the night and the capture was made early today.

The men held were W. G. Brooks, 21 years of age; John Stevens, 20; W. E. Hughes, 25; J. D. Hunter, 45; J. L. Aldridge, 24; J. B. Errington, 23, and S. A. Lucas, 26. All lived in this section.

Police believe that Judge Johnson's activity in the prosecution of prohibition cases enraged a group of men whom the abductors represented. Judge Johnson told officers he was called from a store by a man who said he wished to discuss a lumber deal and forced him to enter an automobile.

ATTACKS HIS RESCUER.

Shell-Shocked Veteran Fights Guard at Interstate Park.

James Madden, 38 years old, of 2,720 Eighth Avenue, an A. E. F. veteran who was gassed and shell-shocked in France, attacked Life-guard McKenna at Undercliff, N. J., in Interstate Park, after McKenna had rescued him from drowning yesterday. Sergeant Ziegler of the Interstate Park Police came to McKenna's aid and the two subdued Madden after a twenty-minute battle.

Physicians at the Englewood (N. J.) hospital, where Madden was taken, said they believed he had become temporarily insane as the result of a recurrence of the after-effects of the war gas. Friends of Madden said this was the first time in three years that he had suffered such an attack, although immediately after the war they occurred periodically.

SIX BATHERS DROWN; CROWDS AT BEACHES

Beach, the Bronx. He was taken to Fordham Hospital where his condition was said to be serious.

Find Body of a Girl.

The body of a girl, believed to be that of Miss Rose LaRoche, 18, of 9,103 212th Street, Jamaica, L. I., was found by the crew of the Coast Guard cutter 143, floating two miles off Coney Island. It was taken by them to the New Springville (S. I.) Morgue.

Miss LaRoche has been missing since July 18, when she went canoeing with Lawrence E. Stevenson, 18 years old, of 25 Crescent Place, Jamaica, whose body was found on Saturday off Rockaway. Her father, Arthur LaRoche, went to the morgue, but was unable to identify the body. The police, however, believe the body to be that of Miss LaRoche, since the bathing suit in which it was clad was similar to the one she wore, and a ring found on the right forefinger bore Stevenson's initials—L. E. S.

The body of a girl, with black bobbed hair and clad in a bathing suit and long brown stockings, was taken from the water at the foot of Three-Mile Road, Jamaica Bay. It was taken to Simonson's Morgue, Jamaica.

The bodies of two men were found in the East River. One found beneath Manhattan Bridge was that of a man about 40, five feet five inches tall, with black hair and a black mustache. The body was clad in a black suit and white underwear. The other body was that of a man about 50, five feet six inches tall and weighing 140 pounds. It was clad in a black suit and black shoes and stockings. Both bodies were taken to the morgue.

Lifeguards Revive Bather.

Physicians at Rockaway Beach worked over Morris Broenbaum, 30 years old, of 265 East 162d Street, the Bronx, for two hours after lifeguards brought him ashore, before he was revived sufficiently to permit of his removal to the Rockaway Beach Hospital.

Two women and thirty-six men were arrested by policemen in three bungalow raids and charged with disorderly conduct. Three men also were arrested charged with operating a gambling device at a carnival to raise money for a war memorial.

Coney Island proved a bit too much for Howard Smith, 12, of Sussex, N. J., who, with his brothers, Earl 10, and Roy, 9, were taken there by Tracey Bullock of Sussex as a reward for their bravery in saving him on July 21, when the party were swimming in Unionville Pond at Unionville, N. J. Howard, although the strongest of the boys, collapsed in Luna Park, but a three-hour nap restored him and he returned home with the others.

THREE DROWN IN LAKES.

PEEKSKILL, N. Y., July 25—Mrs. Henrietta Simon and her brother, Milton Margolis, 12 years old, of 190 Burnside Avenue, the Bronx, were drowned early last night in Lake Mohegan.

Mrs. Simon, who was not a proficient swimmer, got beyond her depth and called for help. Her brother swam out from near the shore and arrived at her side almost exhausted. He struggled to hold her above the water for a short time, but both sank before other bathers could reach them. The bodies were recovered by volunteer divers and were taken to Eugene Fritz's morgue in Peekskill.

Max Levy, 50 years old, of 120 Riverdale Avenue, Yonkers, was drowned in Peach Lake, near Bedford, N. Y. He had driven to the lake in the late afternoon and had been in the water only a short time when he was seized with a cramp and went down. His body was recovered and sent to the morgue at Brewster.

40,000 AUTOS AT CONEY SET NEW TRAFFIC MARK

37 Policemen Keep Cars Moving—Motorists Not Forced Into Parking Areas, Says Officer.

More than 40,000 automobiles passed through Coney Island yesterday, and according to the police established a new traffic record at that resort. Although the traffic was heavy, thirty-seven traffic policemen under the command of Lieutenant "Mat." McGrath had very little difficulty in keeping the lines of vehicles moving.

Lieutenant McGrath denied the report that the police in Coney Island were forcing automobilists to park their cars in private parking areas. He explained that at the end of Surf Avenue near Ocean Parkway, the centre of the roadway had two painted lines to better control the cars heading for Dreamland, a private parking place operated by Morris Auditor and Harry Shea.

He said that any motorist driving along this lane instead of making the left turn to get into Dreamland, could continue straight along Surf Avenue and park his car at any other place provided for that purpose. He declared the police were instructed not to make any suggestions to automobile drivers regarding private parking places.

Answering the criticism of S. W. Gumpertz, President of the Coney Island Board of Trade that sight-seeing buses made left turns and do not follow traffic regulations, the Lieutenant replied that no favoritism was being shown bus owners. He said the various bus lines have to follow routes laid out for them by the Police Department and in some instances left turns have to be made to get off Surf Avenue.

Dr. Martin Couney, the Coney Island physician arrested by Traffic Patrolman John Tooran Friday afternoon charged with hitting the patrolman with his car on Surf Avenue, said yesterday he had not intended to convey the impression when describing the incident that he had been ordered to drive his machine to a private parking place. He had been reported as having said the arrest followed his refusal to drive into a private parking place. Dr. Couney insisted that the patrolman was wrong in making the arrest, but he added he had no knowledge that motorists were being coerced into parking in privately owned areas.

FIRE RAZES BOATHOUSE OF N. Y. A. C. AT PELHAM

Three Yachts Under Construction and Many Racing Shells Also Destroyed.

The boat house of the New York Athletic Club on Travers Island, Pelham, was destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon. Three large yachts under construction also were destroyed and many racing shells in process of manufacture on the second floor of the boat house were burned.

The ownership of the burned yachts had not been established late last night. Neither could officials of the club estimate the damage. The boat house had been leased from the club by the Johnson Stune Company, yacht builders. The cause of the fire has not been determined.

When the flames were first discovered calls were sent to both the Pelham and New Rochelle Fire Departments. The grounds of the club were packed close with more than 400 automobiles belonging to Sunday visitors. This impeded the firemen several minutes. Before most of the cars could be driven away the fire had gained such headway that little could be saved.

PRINCE WANTS SPECIMENS.

Suggests Exchange With Stockholm to California Museum.

LOS ANGELES, July 25 (AP).—An offer to exchange specimens of interest now on exhibition in the Swedish Museum in Stockholm for exhibits of the State Museum here was made yesterday by Crown Prince Gustaf Adolf.

The Prince was especially interested in specimens of prehistoric animals, and while examining them he made the offer.

COOLER WEATHER TO STAY

A severe rainstorm, punctuated by heavy thunderclaps and many lightning flashes, broke over New York City and New Jersey between 2:30 and 3 o'clock yesterday morning and lasted about an hour and a half. The Weather Bureau reported the rainfall at its building, 17 Battery Place, as 70-100th of an inch, but it was much heavier elsewhere.

The storm, which was accompanied by a strong wind, brought the lowest temperature of the day, 67 degrees at 4:40 A. M., but this gradually increased to 84 degrees at 4:20 P.M. From then on it dropped slowly, and moderate temperature is expected for at least the next few days.

Trees Uprooted in Bronx.

The wind early yesterday morning uprooted trees in the Hunt's Point section of the Bronx and several families camping at City Island found themselves temporarily homeless when the tents were blown down about their ears. Trolley cars and automobiles stalled on the slippery streets and service on the Interborough line from Longwood Avenue on the Pelham Bay line to its terminal was temporarily suspended when the Longwood Avenue station was flooded with six feet of water.

Mrs. Irvin Goldman and Mrs. Yetta Abo of 699 Beck Street, the Bronx, were slightly injured by falling plaster caused by the water seeping through the roof of their apartment.

A small fire started in a transformer of the United Electric Light and Power Company off Riverside Drive between 151st and 152d Streets when lightning struck a wire. The section between 145th and 152d Streets, west of Seventh Avenue, was without electric lighting from 4 until 4:45 A. M. because of this accident.

24 Fires in Newark.

Twenty-four fire alarms were received by the Newark Fire Department in the eight hours during and immediately following the storm. Practically the entire Fire Department was kept busy from 9 o'clock Saturday night until 5 o'clock Sunday morning, alarms frequently coming within two or three minutes of each other.

The most serious fire was at the plant of the J. William Happ Sash and Door Company at 125-27 Plane Street. The three-story building was destroyed, with a loss of about $75,000.

A bolt of lightning struck a radio aerial on the roof of the residence of Frank Strasberg at 32 Atlantic Street and started a fire which destroyed the upper floor. The loss was estimated at $8,000.

None of the other fires, most of which were caused by lightning, was serious. The only injuries reported were those received by two firemen, neither of whom was seriously hurt.

A flagpole atop the Cott-A-Lap Company Building in Somerville, N. J., was struck by lightning for the third time this year. The pole, which was originally forty feet high, has now been reduced to fifteen feet.

One Heat Prostration.

One case of heat prostration was reported here yesterday. Sterling Moore, 60, of 1,670 East Ninth Street, Brooklyn, was overcome while walking along the Coney Island Boardwalk. He was taken to Coney Island Hospital.

Policemen were trying last night to find the owner of the motor boat Lyre, Custom House No. 5827, which was abandoned in the storm yesterday morning and beached at the foot of 103d Street, Rockaway Beach, Queens. The men are said to have started from Long Beach in the boat, twenty-two feet long, intending to land in this vicinity. The storm drove them toward the beach and when the boat struck a sand-bar the men leaped out and swam ashore, according to a report to the police.

STALLED ON AN INCLINE

One Victim Seriously Injured—Accident Happens During Rush on the Line.

Twelve amusement seekers at Coney Island were injured last night when a three-car train on the Thunderbolt, a scenic railway, stalled half way up a steep incline, slipped back to the bottom of the dip and was crashed into by the succeeding train.

One of the injured, Edgar Baleas, 22 years old, of 256 Sixtieth Street, Brooklyn, is in a serious condition in the Coney Island Hospital. He is suffering from a broken left knee-cap, a broken right thigh and other injuries.

The others were treated by a private physician, called in by the owners of the Thunderbolt, and sent to their homes in taxicabs. They were:

Heavy Patronage on Railway.

The accident occurred at 7:25 P. M. when the evening rush to the resort was at its height.

The Thunderbolt is the newest of the scenic railways at Coney Island, and began operation last year. It is situated at Kensington Walk on the Bowery.

One of the trains in the middle of the course had negotiated several of the steep dips and climbs, but on the way up from one breath-taking sixty-foot descent something went wrong and the train began slowing down. It came to a full stop, then slipped back down the track and came to rest at the bottom of the dip.

Another train came plunging along after it. Occupants of both trains screamed with terror when they saw a collision was unavoidable, and a moment later the second train struck the first and partly climbed upon it.

Crash Draws Thousands.

The crash and the cries of the injured and frightened were audible a hundred yards from the scene. Word of the accident spread throughout the grounds, and a crowd came running from every direction. Soon thousands were milling about the enclosure of the Thunderbolt.

The managers of the railway, which is operated by the Ridbak Amustment Corporation, called Dr. Charles Hall of West Sixteenth Street, Coney Island, to care for the injured and directed special police they employ to clear the grounds. When the police had fought their way through the crowd the injured, except for Baleaf, had been removed, and most of the witnesses also had vanished. Baleaf was sent by Dr. Hall to the hospital in an ambulance.

True, the cost is slightly greater—but consider how much more you buy!

yet he had to borrow to meet his current bills

A WELL-KNOWN MAN not long ago came to the Irving-Columbia and borrowed $1,000 to meet current bills.

Soon after, he died and we, as an executor, opened his safe-deposit box—to find $87,000 in unredeemed coupons, some of them dated as far back as 1909. This man had been pressed for cash—yet this sum lay idle ready for him! His annual loss in interest alone was more than $4,000!

Simply by availing himself of Irving-Columbia custody or trust service, this man would have avoided this embarrassment and loss.

Such an arrangement is adaptable to individual needs. And it relieves the busy man of all worry about collections and the many routine details involved in managing securities. The fee for this service is always moderate.

SHAW'S BIRTHDAY SEES CONTROVERSY

Author Resists Attempt to Censor His Speech at Commons Dinner Tonight.

IT WILL NOT BE BROADCAST

G. B. S. at 70 Patriarchal in Appearance, but Still Plunged in the Life of His Time.

LONDON, July 25.—George Bernard Shaw will celebrate tomorrow the seventieth anniversary of his birth. Many reporters had a busy time today trying to run him to earth in order to ask him how it felt to be a septuagenarian. Mr. Shaw was as elusive as Puck.

Inquirers at his London flat were informed that he was out of town and inquirers at his country house were told that he was out motoring. Anyway he let it be known that he would have nothing to say until tomorrow night, when a dinner is to be given in his honor at the House of Commons, at which ex-Premier Ramsey MacDonald will preside.

It was intended that Shaw's speech on this occasion should be broadcast, but the Postmaster General refused to grant permission unless he received an assurance that Shaw would say nothing controversial. Mr. Shaw responded that everything he said was highly controversial, so his utterances will not be broadcast.

Despite his years, Mr. Shaw still has the upright figure and the springy gait of a young man. One of his maxims is: "At 40 years of age a man is either a physician or a fool." He decided since he reached middle age to be a physician, and he attributes much of his youthful vigor to the vegetarian diet he prescribed for himself.

During the week-end he was entertained at luncheon by Lady Lavery. Everybody present hoped he would make a speech, but he confined his conversation to his immediate neighbors, among whom was Miss Hoffman, the American sculptress. Among the subjects discussed was the Russian ballet, and he regretted having missed "Les Noces."

"I wish I'd seen it," he said. "I never cry at funerals, but invariably at weddings."

Tributes to Shaw's Genius.

LONDON, July 25 (AP).—The newspapers are filled with columns of adulation and critical analysis of George Bernard Shaw's personality and genius with many tributes from abroad, especially English and Continental. German and Dutch journals have issued special Shaw numbers, while a bulky, handsomely bound volume delivered at the Shaw flat in Adelphi Terrace contained greetings of one hundred eminent German statesmen, authors, musicians, actors and critics, including Dr. Stresemann, the Foreign Minister; Professor Einstein of relativity fame, and Richard Strauss, the musician.

Although the fire of his Celtic genius still blazes with all the vividness of youth, as proved by the general acceptance of his most recent play, "Saint Joan," as his best, there is a great change in the personal appearance of the man who will sit at the festive board, presided over by ex-Premier Ramsay MacDonald, with intellectuals, distinguished Government officials and famous literary lights ranged along the table.

The flood of years has mellowed the stormy, scornful young Irish iconoclast of the '80s and '90s, with his bristling red beard waving defiantly, into a benign, elderly gentleman, whose white whiskers and benevolent mien would get him a job as Santa Claus at anybody's Christmas party.

Aside from these changes, Bernard Shaw seems as youthful as ever. He is as erect and as trim as a college athlete and is still adhering to his creed of being plunged to the neck in the life of his time. He strides along the Strand on early morning constitutionals with all the sprightliness of forty years ago.

The dinner in his honor will be one of post-prandial brilliance. One of G. B. S.'s accomplishments is that he is as remarkable as an after-dinner speaker as he is as a dramatist or a satirist.

Almost unbelievable financial offers have been made by American lecture managers to induce him to tour the United States, but without success, largely because, he says, the enormous sums offered indicate that if the managers were to get their money back he would have to speak to immense audiences in large halls, and that would be no fun.

Wealthiest Literary Craftsman.

So G. B. S. contents himself to remain in the heart of busy London and watch the stream of life pass his doorstep, and collect the stream of royalty checks that pour in from all corners of the world from his literary output. He is probably the wealthiest literary craftsman alive. Recently he gave £5,000 to a theatre project and lent £30,000 to a provincial municipality on the advice of his friend Sidney Webb.

Even newspaper interviews pay toll to Bernard Shaw. Every young reporter who comes to London from the provinces or abroad assaults the iron-barred entrance to Shaw's flat for the sage's latest views on the topics of the day. They rarely get beyond the outer portal, although a young American climbed over the iron grill recently and explored the innermost corners of the apartment before quitting.

The more common method of obtaining interviews with G. B. S. is to write a list of questions and submit it for answers, and Shaw writes his professional fee after each, something as follows:

"On women—£100.

"Views on Ireland—£50.

"Views on America—£500.

YUGOSLAVIA CUTS SALARIES.

Cabinet Gives Itself Greatest Reduction at 30 Per Cent.

BELGRADE, July 25.—The Cabinet Council, as a measure of economy on account of the flood damage, decided last night to reduce the high cost of living bonus of all active pensioned State officials.

The Cabinet reserved the sharpest cut for itself, reducing the salary of Ministers and Under Secretaries 30 per cent.

Other reductions are: High officials, Generals, ex-Ministers' pensions, 15 per cent.; staff officers, 10; subordinate officers and civilian officials, 6; minor personnel, 3 per cent.

The Cabinet plans to ask Parliament to reduce the pay of Deputies 20 per cent.

This economy is causing much discontent, officials pointing out that salaries are low now and that the floods are increasing the cost of living.

SOVIET SUPPRESSES NEW OPPOSITION

Here it is the same thing, only more so, because the persons involved are welded together by many years of Czarist persecution and by Lenin's unique personality. Only, as in France, it happens that economic problems are extraordinary complex.

They were discussed with complete freedom in the Soviet press. But different people advocate different solutions. M. Stalin and his associates in the Administration believe it impossible to continue to put nine-tenths of the national burden on the peasants, who have little political aptitude or organization, but who can paralyze the whole country—as they did in 1921—by declining to plant more grain than required for their own individual needs.

Difference as to Methods.

In another resolution the Central Committee published today two or three references are made to the possibility of the reduction of the area planted with grain if the peasants are not satisfied and make it clear that the Administration does not want a renewal of 1920-21, which induced Lenin to abandon so-called militant Communism in favor of "NEP"; that is, capitalist methods. Because it is understood that the peasants at this time might demand a lot more.

On the other hand, Leon Trotsky, M. Piatokof, M. Kameneff, M. Sokolnikof and others claim that the Administration is not sufficiently realistic in demanding, as M. Dzerjinski demanded, that Soviet industry be built up, so to speak, out of its own fat—that is, that enough manufactured goods at low enough prices to satisfy the peasants can be provided in the near future by more efficient methods of management and labor.

Some of them suggest that the richer peasants should be made to pay for the industrial reconstruction, others that oportunities be given to private enterprise in Russia, others that foreign capital and initiative be introduced—which, of course, implies certain compromises with foreign capitalist opinion.

It is still too early to foresee the issue which will be determined by the events of the next three months. But in any case it is worth remembering that today's harsh attack upon Zinovieff, Lashevich & Co. is not so much prompted by the fact that they disagree with the Administration as by the manner in which they showed their disagreement—that is, by trying to create a factional schism in the heart of the Communist Party.

Trotsky and his friends do not and will not act thus. They state their views frankly and are content to let time show whether they are right or wrong.

Riga Sees Discord Confirmed.

RIGA, July 25.—The expulsion yesterday of Gregory Zinovieff from the Political Bureau and of M. Lashevitch from the deputy chairmanship of the Revolutionary Military Council by the Central Committee of the Communist Party was the first official confirmation of the reports that acute discord continues among the Bolshevist leaders.

The Central Committee made a sort of declaration of war on the opposition, who "in spite of the party's lenient attitude, have clandestinely continued actively to conspire against the decisions of the Congress of the party, which last January decided to give them another chance and to allow M. Zinovieff and others to keep their positions in the central organization of the party."

The declaration asserts that the party cannot longer tolerate the presence of M. Zinovieff at the deliberations of the Political Bureau because outside the conferences he abuses the knowledge he obtained to stir up the party against its leading officials. The new opposition, it says, lately became more active and held subterranean meetings and sent its own agents abroad to discredit the present policy of the Political Bureau and to gain the support of foreign Communist parties. It particularly mentions the recent secret meeting near Moscow at which M. Lashevitch definitely demanded active operations by the Communist opposition groups.

The Central Committee says the party must protect itself against internal conspirators and warns all members, irrespective of position, that M. Zinovieff's fate awaits all who conspire against the unity of the party.

Although M. Lashevitch "deserves irrevocable exclusion," it says, the party considers his past services. It strips him of all offices, with exclusion from responsible positions for two years, but if he still conspires he must leave the ranks of the party.

"Only steel unity and the restoration of iron discipline" can, the declaration says, rescue the party and Leninism from disruption. At the same meeting some dozen minor members were dealt with.

from Idaho will have to stop lecturing us long enough to listen.

In order to understand the New York referendum and what it may contribute to the solution of the general problem, it becomes necessary once more to get at the basic facts. The fundamental question, of course, is whether the Eighteenth Amendment is to remain a part of the Constitution. There is no room here for compromise, and ultimately the question will be settled one way or the other by the submission of whichever side proves to be in the minority. But while this is the main, it is by no means the only, and certainly not the immediate, question. The decision is bound to be long postponed. Even if the Eighteenth Amendment is repealed, it will take years to do so. Its opponents know this and will not rest satisfied short of a prolonged effort. On the main issue, therefore, we look forward to years of controversy. In the meanwhile the Eighteenth Amendment is part of the fundamental law and, as long as it is so, it is the business of statesmen to make it helpful rather than harmful, and if not popular, as least not an object of scorn and contempt. That's what it is today to millions of patriotic Americans. In spite of liberal appropriations, stringent statutes and enforcement methods that have at times threatened to make the enforcement law more dangerous and demoralizing than its violation, the Volstead act is generally, openly and flagrantly violated all over the country. Moreover, it is undeniable that this particular violation of law has resulted in disrespect for the law generally and has bred as by-products a new and powerful class of criminals and a whole series of other crimes.

Calls Situation Deplorable.

No one denies our deplorable situation. What are we going to do about it? "Repeal and begin afresh," says one group, with strict logic on their side. But this is a matter of years, and in the meanwhile must we live with this festering sore on the body politic? "In spite of six years of failure, stand by the Volstead act without change," says the other group, ignoring alike human nature and American political principles. What's the answer? Perhaps there is no satisfactory one, but the people of our State this Fall will seek to find one, and are entitled to do so without criticism from outsiders.

The Eighteenth Amendment as interpreted and enforced by the Volstead Act has two great antagonistic forces, I may say principles, to contend with, both of which are peculiarly American. The first is the right of the individual to freedom from Government interference with his private life as long as he does not infringe on the rights of others; the second is the principle of home rule, that is, the right of the people of our States and communities to regulate their own affairs in so far as they do not affect our life and interests as a nation. The first conflict is inherent and unavoidable, and in itself is formidable enough to threaten the success of the whole experiment without, in addition, running counter to one of the most deep-seated American political principles. The second is not. There is no reason why the Eighteenth Amendment, if it is to survive, should not be made, as much as possible, to fit into the general structure and spirit of our institutions rather than counter to them. If that were done the activities of the Federal Government in the field of enforcement would be limited to foreign and interstate commerce, which, if the truth be told, is all that it can handle in any event; and the actual burden of more general enforcement be left to the States. This, of course, implies that the States must have some discretion as to the character of their enforcement statutes. That doesn't mean discretion to violate the Constitution. It means discretion as to how best to enforce the Constitution in that locality with its own peculiar conditions. But we are told that such discretion is valueless unless it means discretion to nullify.

Plea for 4 Per Cent. Beer.

Those who talk that way are either insincere or they do not understand the importance which the average American places on home rule and the tenacity with which he clings to it. I do not say that prohibition can be made popular in New York City or ever enforced here without much difficulty, but I do know that if we were allowed ot write in Albany our own enforcement statute within the limits of the Eighteenth Amendment instead of the Volstead Act, we could come closer to making prohibition a reality than it ever will be under a law dictated in Washington and passed with the votes of Southern Representatives elected in violation of the spirit and express provisions of the Fifteenth Amendment, even when supplemented by long and confused lectures from Senator Borah. I am very confident that a State enforcement act permitting the sale of 3 or 4 per cent. beer, coupled with the knowledge that responsibility was ours and that we were no longer overrun by a horde of imported and frequently corrupt agents, would so alter public opinion as to facilitate enormously law enforcement and so greatly improve conditions.

I say that such a method of enforcement is in every respect as constitutional as the Volstead act and that it is clearly contemplated by the terms of the amendment giving "the several States concurrent power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation." Otherwise, those words are meaningless. They were deliberately written in so that, should Congress fail to act, as in the case of the Fifteenth Amendment, the States might; and, because the framers of the amendment recognized the truth then that they have since forgotten, namely, that no police law reaching into every home can be enforced in the United States from a single centre without the support of, and, in many localities, in defiance of local public sentiment. A centralized bureaucracy will ever fail on this continent for it is inconsistent with American traditions and principles, and out of harmony with physical, social and political conditions.

Cites Fifteenth Amendment.

If Senator Borah doesn't claim that amending the Volstead act is nullifying the Constitution, he must base his charges of nullification on the ground that Congress cannot constitutionally assume enforcement in only part of the field, leaving the balance to the States. But it is difficult to see how he can maintain this in face of the record that with his acquiescence Congress has failed to enact a law enforcing the Fifteenth Amendment, whether in whole or in part. If Congress can properly refrain entirely from breathing life into an amendment, it must follow that it can with perfect propriety undertake only as much of the task as the Federal Government can efficiently perform; and, on the other hand, if the States are by the very language of an amendment authorized to do the whole job, they must clearly have power to do that part which Congress believes they, and not the Federal Government, can efficiently carry out. This may not accord with Senator Borah's conception of how best to enforce the amendment, but disagreement with the Senator as to method is something very different from nullification of the Constitution.

We are, perhaps, not presenting a final solution, but we are at least making an honest effort to find a way out of the difficulties in which we find ourselves enmeshed. It is a concrete suggestion that calls for a definite answer in happy contrast to the flood of words that gets us nowhere. If the proposal is defeated, the people of New York will say to the country that they stand by the Eighteenth Amendment as at present interpreted and enforced. Such a result in New York might well prove decisive in the nation and settle the whole controversy. To its own Legislature this vote could mean nothing if not a mandate to pass an enforcement act along the lines of the present Federal law, thus bringing a long-standing dispute to an end. On the other hand, if the proposal carries, we have first a definite vote of protest against existing conditions, and accordingly New York suggests to the nation that the Eighteenth Amendment can be better carried out if its enforcement is brought more into harmony with the balance of our Governmental structure, if some consideration is given to the people's desire to have more immediate control over those regulations that affect their daily lives and the officers who administer them, if some notice is taken of their traditional prejudice against outside interference, and if the enforcement statute be given that degree of flexibility contemplated by the amendment itself. Whichever way it goes then, some benefit is bound to result; and the only losers are those statesmen whose job consists in telling the people what they ought to want rather than learning from the people themselves what they do want. The New York Legislature did right in referring the matter to the original source of all authority, for what friend of democratic institutions will care to question the right of the people to be heard? Let other States follow our example, and we will soon have definite instructions instead of the present Babel of discordant cries.

LIGHTNING HELPS POLICE KILL ROBBER

SILHOUETTED ON A FENCE

Two Others Arrested in Queens—Suspected of Arson and Automobile Thefts.

John Vitale, believed to be a member of a gang implicated in arson and automobile theft cases, was shot and killed in a chase which ended an hour's search by all available policemen in Queens during the thunderstorm early yesterday morning.

Lost and found again twice, a flash of lightning finally revealed Vitale as a target for the successful marksmanship of two policemen. Umberto Podaro, who was with him, and Frank Grazziano, implicated in a confession by Podaro, were arrested and held without bail.

Detectives William Murtha and Frank Farley, and several patrolmen were cruising in a Police Department car when they noticed the waving beam of a flashlight through the window of a garage at 151 Gunther Street, Corona. That was at 3:30 A. M. As they surrounded the building, two men dashed out of the back door. Podaro obeyed an order to halt but the other man escaped.

Chase in a Thunderstorm.

Other detectives and patrolmen were called out and combed the district in the driving rain and flashing lightning. An hour and a quarter later Farley and Patrolman Rosseler approached a sedan car in front of 110 North Railroad Avenue. The car was owned by William Rudd, who lives next door at 114. Podaro's home is further up the street at 128. Vitale lived at 3,236 Forty-fifth Street.

As Farley opened the door of the sedan, a man jumped out and dashed away. The intense darkness hid him from sight, but a moment later a flash of lightning revealed him scaling a fence behind the building. The policemen drew their pistols and ran on. The next flash of lightning revealed the man silhouetted on top of a fence further on. Both policemen fired as the darkness closed in again. When the lightning flashed again the man was seen in a huddled heap at the bottom of the fence.

Dr. Junkwitz of Flushing Hospital found the man dead when he arrived. There was a bullet hole in the back of his skull. He was identified as Vitale, and later Podaro identified him as his companion in the garage. Vitale was 19 years old; Podaro 18.

Podaro Implicates Others.

Meanwhile Podaro had been questioned by detectives and by Assistant District Attorney Charles P. Sullivan. As a result, Grazziano, who is 21 and lives at 152 Seventeenth Street, Flushing, was arrested on a charge of receiving stolen property. Podaro was charged with the burglary of the garage of Sydney H. Self at 96 Forty-seventh Street, Corona.

What further information Podaro revealed, the police refused to divulge. They admitted, however, that they are searching for several others alleged to be implicated in several recent cases of arson and burglary in Queens.

Podaro and Grazziano were held by Magistrate Wiener in Jamaica for hearing in Flushing court tomorrow morning.

GREETS HIS BROTHER AS CELL COMPANION

Joseph and Patrick Carroll, brothers, of 1,623 Avenue A, looked hard at each other in the detention cell of the Harlem Court yesterday.

"Why, hello there, Joe," said Patrick. "What are you in for?"

"Robbery," replied the other. "And what are you here for?"

"Robbery."

They shook hands.

The first case called was that of Joseph Carroll, who was held in bond of $3,000 for a hearing July 28 by Magistrate Francis X. McQuade. Joseph, it was charged, with several other men early yesterday assaulted and robbed Peter Bauer of 1,558 Second Avenue of 60 cents while he was walk-through Carl Schurz Park at East End Avenue and Eighty-fourth Street. Patrolman Francis Malloy, who heard the man's cries, arrived in time to arrest Carroll. Bauer was taken to Reception Hospital. He said he had been struck on the head with a bottle.

Patrick Carroll was arrested by Probationary Patrolman Walter S. Mika after the officer had fired three shots at him. It was charged that Patrick had entered a United Cigar Store at 1,588 Third Avenue, at Eighty-ninth Street, and held up the manager, Ralph Santa Cruz of 1,513 Avenue A, a few minutes before he was closing at midnight Saturday.

It developed later that Carroll poked a glass pistol into the ribs of Cruz and took $27. Outside he drew his glass weapon on Frank Jandecka, a chauffeur, and told him to drive fast. As the car sped away Mika fired a shot into the air. When the car did not stop, he fired another shot, and then a third, which grazed Carroll's neck, and he jumped from the cab. He was held in $5,000 bail for a hearing on July 27.

SEIZES STOLEN TAXICAB.

Patrolman Arrests One of Three Men and Charges Him With Theft.

Just as Patrolman Charles Reece of the West Thirtieth Street Station was about to pull his signal box at Thirty-ninth Street and Tenth Avenue at 10:30 o'clock yesterday morning to report that all was well on his beat, he saw a taxicab careening east on Thirty-ninth Street, a westbound street. He stepped into the middle of the street. The cab stopped suddenly and three men leaped out. They ran into an areaway near by. The patrolman followed them and caught one of them.

At the West Thirtieth Street Station the prisoner identified himself as Joseph Wren, 20 years old, of 554 West Thirty-fifth Street. Police say that he is one of four brothers, two of whom were recently slain in gang wars. He was charged with grand larceny after Emil Klein, a chauffeur, of 188 Ross Street, Brooklyn, identified the cab as his and said it was stolen while he was having breakfast.

SUNDAY HOSTS VISIT PHILADELPHIA FAIR

RESULT OF CLOSING FIGHT

Duration of the Experiment Is Not Known—1794 Blue Law May Be Invoked Again.

PHILADELPHIA, July 25 (AP).—Free amusements at the Sesquicentennial Exposition today drew one of the largest crowds on record. Up to 7 P. M. nearly 75,000 persons had paid the 50 cents admission to the grounds, which gave them free access to the concessions on the Gladway, where all the amusements are concentrated. Crowds were still pouring through the scores of turnstiles and officials estimated that the day's attendance would reach 100,000.

The Pennsylvania State Building was closed by order of Governor Pinchot. There were reports that the Methodist Men's Committee of 100 had detectives gather evidence for further court action under the blue laws of 1794. These reports lacked verification.

Whether today's experiment will be continued indefinitely by the exposition directors could not be learned. E. L. Austin, Director General of the Exposition, who yesterday was fined by a police magistrate $4 and costs, the limit under the blue laws, for operating the fair on the Sabbath, had nothing to say tonight.

Neither was it known what further action, if any, the religious bodies contemplated. Mr. Austin's arrest was based on his alleged violation of the law last Sunday, when admission was charged for the amusements.

The Gladway was thronged. Every amusement ran to capacity and there were long lines waiting. After each ride the conveyance was vacated and those who wanted to repeat had to go to the end of the line.

Gayety, good humor and orderliness ruled among the Gladway crowd. There was no disturbance. All classes and colors were represented in the throng.

The amusement owners will be reimbursed from the general fund to the extent of their operating costs.

Sulgrave Manor, a reproduction of George Washington's ancestral home, entrance to which during the week costs 10 cents but which today was free, was packed all day.

About 2,000 persons attended the interdenominational religious meeting, which can be attended without paying the 50 cents admission fee to the grounds. The Rev. John H. Clifford, honorary chaplain of the Marine Corps, preached.

The Philadelphia Bible Association tonight, after stating that it had revoked its appropriation for an exhibit and had requested the State to appeal to the Supreme Court, urged "all lovers of God's law and word" to use their influence "to prevent further violations."

HELD FOR SLAYING POLICEMAN IN HOLD-UP

Two Youths Deny the Charge, but One, Police Say, Admits Fifty Robberies.

Two men were arrested yesterday and charged with the murder of Patrolman David A. Sheehan, a special service policeman, who was shot on Aug. 22, 1925, when he walked in on a noonday hold-up at the New York Vintage Sacramental Wine Shop, 4 Rivington Street. The prisoners are Umberto Leanzo, 20 years old, of 19 Monroe Street, Brooklyn, and Vito Truppiano, 20 years old, 192 Bay Forty-sixth Street, Brooklyn. They denied the murder, but, according to the police, Leanzo confessed that he had taken part in more than fifty hold-ups during the last six months.

The police took no chances on the men escaping when the arrests were made. Their homes were surrounded before Detective Salvatore Innella and Marcel Krecynski entered the rooms. After their arrest the men were questioned at Police Headquarters for several hours by Inspector Carey.

Sheehan was killed before he had a chance to draw his pistol. He walked into the wine shop during the course of a hold-up and was reaching for his pistol when shot. His partner, Edward A. Kane, who has since resigned from the police department, and customers who were held up will be asked to try to identify the prisoners at Headquarters today.

The police are making a careful check of the hold-ups which Leanzo confessed. He was hazy regarding names and addresses, but told the police the general location, time, and amount of money he obtained. The largest amount he obtained was in a hold-up of a card game in the rear of a house at Orchard and Houston Streets, at which he got $600.

ARMED HIMSELF FOR THUGS.

Youth, Held Up Once, Went Prepared, but Lands in Court.

His determination to never again go abroad at night unarmed and be held up and robbed caused Antimo Della Dona, 23 years old, of 326 East 109th Street, to be held yesterday in $1,000 bail for Special Sessions by Magistrate Francis X. McQuade in the Harlem Court. He was charged with violation of the Sullivan law.

Detective Louis Drago told the Magistrate he had been eating ice cream in a place at 2,216 Second Avenue on Saturday night when he noticed Dona sitting at another table, a huge gun protruding from the waist band of his trousers. On investigation, the detective said, he found that the gun was a .44 calibre with a twelve-inch barrel. Dona explained to him, the detective continued, that he carried the gun to frustrate a robbery, having been a victim several weeks ago when his money and valuables were taken.

Seeing the robbers getting out of the machine, the policemen, believing them to be merely the victims of an accident and in need of medical treatment, hurried up to them. As the policemen approached, however, the robbers opened fire.

The startled crowd fell back, with women and children screaming. The patrolmen whipped out their pistols and replied with bullets. Each hold-up man fled in a different direction, turning now and then to send a bullet toward a policeman.

Suspect Quickly Captured.

Powers raced down the avenue, while the others disappeared in near-by buildings. He had not gone very far before he was overtaken and captured. He was taken to the East 126th Street Station and when searched, according to the police, had two fully loaded pistols as well as $600 in cash. The detectives believe the loot from the robbery was hurriedly divided as the hold-up men sped away in the automobile.

At the ice cream plant meanwhile the wounded Linderman had been carried to the ofice and a call for an ambulance had been sent in. The ambulance physician treated Peck and Concannon and took Linderman to Harlem Hospital, where an operation was performed. Peck and Concannon went to the police station, where, according to detectives, they identified Powers as one of the thieves.

Powers first denied having a criminal record, but admitted having served time in prisons after documents had been brought from Police Headquarters showing that he had been imprisoned as long ago as 1906. In that year he was sent to the House of Refuge for unlawful entry and in 1910 he was returned there for violation of parole. He was sent back in 1911 for disorderly conduct and in 1912 was sentenced to Sing Sing for fourteen years on a robbery charge and three years on a charge of violation of the Sullivan law.

Powers said that after serving six years he had been pardoned. In 1920 he was sentenced to the penitentiary for unlawful entry and was sent there again in 1922 for possession of burglars' tools and a pistol.

Detectives found that the license plates on the wrecked automobile had been issued for a car of another make. In the tonneau of the car, they said, they found the tin box stolen from the ice cream plant, with several thousand dollars in checks intact.

SULTAN OF MOROCCO FEELS FRENCH HEAT

"It Is Terrible," He Complains, "And They Tell Me Also That America Is Even Worse."

HE SMILES THROUGH IT ALL

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 25.—"I know of but one thing with which to reproach France, and that is the terrible heat," today said his Majesty, Moulai Youssef, Sultan of Morocco.

"His most cheerful Majesty," the smiling ruler of one of the hottest countries in the world, as he has been popularly named since his arrival in France, is resting in his luxurious temporary Paris residence after a strenuous tour of France and Alsace-Lorraine.

He received newspaper men in royal splendor and discussed with them such widely varied subjects as peace, war, Abd-el Krim, philosophy, and Paris.

Seated upon an improvised throne largely made of lovely silk cushions, and surrounded by twenty coal-black servants in long white flowing bournous, his Majesty amiably answered scores of questions.

"I must refer to this European heat," he said and smiled. "It is terrible. We never have anything like it in torrid Morocco, and they tell me also that America is even worse. I have suffered terribly."

His Majesty was asked if the recent stirring political events in France has jarred upon his peaceful Islamic philosophy.

"Why, of course not," he replied, and smiled again. "Each people has its destiny, its manner of accomplishing things.

"It is evident to me that we are not all alike, but who has the courage to say which people or which belief is right?"

Of all the places he has visited his Majesty was most profoundly impressed with Verdun. There, he said, was epitomized for him what war is, and why millions died. Then abruptly he added:

"But I am a peaceful ruler. I long to soften the heart of the world, for it is only through peace in thought, in word, deed and action that we shall approach perfection.

The Sultan showed compassion for Abd-el Krim when questioners asked about the Moroccan rebel.

"He was a rebel and so has gone the way of most rebels," he said. "But I have forgiven him. He made amends honorably, for he gave himself up to justice. I only trust the politicians will temper their treatment of him with leniency."

Then, bidding good-bye to the journalists, his Majesty, extending his hand to each one, said that if Allah should be willing he will come back to France before he died, to enjoy its rare beauties and see more of its beautiful products.

His Majesty returns to Morocco in a few days and with him goes a princely collection of European luxuries, including motor cars, jewelry for his wives and many pieces of rare old furniture.

Spain Frees Weyler and Others.

MADRID, July 25.—The Government has temporarily freed Capt. Gen. Weyler, General Aguilera, Dr. Maranon and ex-Deputy Barriobero, who were implicated in the recent conspiracy against the Directorate. Other civil prisoners probably will be shown the same leniency at an early date.

PARLIAMENT TO ACT ON DEBT ACCORDS

coupled with the Dawes Plan receipts to meet all maturing obligations, domestic or foreign, and leave a moderate surplus for retiring the floating debt. The Premier believes stabilization of the franc can wait and that the momentous problem is to have greater income than expenditure. In this manner he hopes to restore confidence, improve the exchange rate and avert the social disaster which has been impending, due to rising prices.

When the country's nerves are calmer it will be possible to introduce measures restoring sound currency and readjusting sadly distorted values. While his appeal to the citizenry, asking them to pay part of their 1926 taxes as soon as possible, will be further abetted by speeding up the work of the tax collectors, who are well behind schedule, it is thought M. Poincaré may accept moderate foreign credits proffered to his predecessors in order to get the Treasury out of the predicament it is in.

Relies on "National Effort."

But the general trend of M. Poincaré's policy is reported to be directed toward "national effort" rather than foreign assistance and toward preference for the State's French creditors rather than foreign creditors.

M. Poincaré's plans are to obtain a surplus of between 4,000,000 and 5,000,000 francs through reformed taxation and strict economy. Several new taxes are contemplated and the existing taxes will be revised and standardized so far as can be done simply and without excessive parliamentary discussion.

The Government's economy schemes will be taken wholesale from a voluminous report drawn up by Louis Marin several years ago, which includes exhaustive research into every Government department and State institution, from naval arsenals to Cabinet posts. The report has been lying in a dusty pigeon hole but is considered so valuable by M. Poincaré that he is expected to ask for the right to make by decree reforms it recommends. As this in no way conflicts with Parliament's rights it is thought by political observers that the Premier may have no difficulty in obtaining this much power.

One of the Ministers questioned tonight regarding the experts' plan said there were certain parts of it the Government would retain. As the experts asserted that the plan was intangible as a whole, it may be considered as rejected, and that so far as it deals with war debts and foreign credits it is entirely extinct.

Denial was given tonight to reports that the Government intended to issue a forced loan in the form of an interest-bearing capital levy and that forced conversion or a moratorium would be applied to the floating debt.

The rise in the franc has greatly encouraged M. Poincaré and done much to reassure the country. Withdrawals from the savings banks are decreasing and for the past two days the run on the Treasury has lessened. This indicates that the Government may have an easier time than was expected in meeting the August commitments, although there is still danger that a small inflation will be necessary.

After reading his declaration on Tuesday Premier Poincaré will ask for an immediate vote of confidence before discussing the financial measures he will present at the same time. After a favorable vote the projects would go at once to the parliamentary committees. There seems no doubt that M. Poincaré will get a handsome initial vote. But it seems just as certain that he will have a strenuous fight to obtain approval of his measures. Strangely enough, the very rise in the franc which has followed M. Poincaré's accession to power will make his task more difficult because it lessens the feeling of crisis.

Republican League Lauds Poincare.

PARIS, July 25 (AP).—The Executive of the Republican League, of which Alexandre Millerand is President, has voted unanimously to send congratulations to the new Cabinet of Premier Poincaré. This Ministry, according to the league, assures "national independence and betterment of the franc."

The manifesto furthermore expresses gratitude to M. Poincaré, "who during the past two years fought an uneven battle against methods that brought France to the verge of disaster."

TOURISTS IN PARIS WILL BE PROTECTED

PRESS ALSO CALLS A HALT

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 25.—Today's Paris papers contain many columns dealing with the anti-foreign demonstrations of the past week, directed largely against Americans, and the general tone of the press is that these attacks should cease at once, as more dangerous to France than to the countries represented by the visitors within her gates. There remains a trend of bitterness against the Americans and British, but the editors agree that the matter should not be adjusted by street fights.

That the matter has aroused great interest is shown by the fact that at least twenty Paris papers today comment on it.

It is learned that Premier Poincaré sent for the Paris Prefect of Police yesterday and instructed him to prevent any future demonstrations. It is said that the Premier told the Prefect he might consider his job as at stake.

Fortunately, there really seems a disposition in all quarters to put an end to the manifestations. Indeed, there seems in the air a spirit of public apology to the United States and also to England and Germany.

In the meanwhile the "See Paris by Night" tours have been discontinued until further notice, removing what appeared to be the chief target of the manifestants.

Comments of the Newspapers.

The Liberté says:

"This sentiment against foreign exchange profiteers exists, and there is no denying it."

With several other papers the Liberté recommends a heavy export duty on all purchases by tourists.

The Journal des Débats hopes strangers will profit by the notice of how the French population feels, but says Parisians are all wrong in showing their dissatisfaction by insulting tourists. In advising against baiting Americans and English, the Journal des Débats says:

"These guests are not responsible individually for the demands of their Governments, and in molesting them we will not get any better debt settlements. Let us keep our heads."

In an article headed "Manifestations Against Foreigners Must Stop," the Avenir says:

"Americans need not be surprised that their Government by its egoistic and grasping policy has made them unpopular with us and that the Berenger accord is bearing its poisoned fruits. But that is no reason for us to hiss and insult tourists, who are not all Americans. We understand these popular explosions, but we advise against them. Even if we dislike Americans, do not let us throw stones at them on the boulevards of Paris."

The Communist Humanité joins in the protest and urges the Communists to take the part of the tourists if there are any more attacks on them. Of course, it may be that the Humanité thinks the demonstrations are engineered by Fascisti. In fact, it says:

"We suspect that Poincaré is engineering these demonstrations to distract attention from his transactions with his master Mellon, the dollar emperor."

The Oeuvre in a three-column article berates tourists for not knowing how to drink without getting drunk. It admits, however, that hostile demonstrations in the streets are in bad taste.

Wants 'Paris-by-Night Fraud' Stopped.

The Petit Parisien hopes that the seeing-Paris-by-night fraud will be stopped. This business, it says, is entirely faked and if the demonstrations put an end to it the tourists will be the winners.

The Paris Midi in similar vein protests against efforts to show tourists faked-up evidences of French immorality and thinks the Government should take a hand.

The Petit Bleu turns its guns on the English today. It says the most disagreeable tourist is not the American but the London tripper, who, it says, comes with dirty collars on a cheap basis and therefore has not the merit of the Americans, who spend money even if they annoy.

"Until the restoration of our money rids us of this pest let us be careful or we will bring most disagreeable developments upon ourselves," it concludes.

These quotations will show there is no change in French resentment toward tourists with high exchange, but there does appear a change in their ideas of how that resentment should be shown. While the unreasoned behavior of some tourists, coupled with the unreasoning attitude of some Frenchmen, will continue to produce isolated incidents, there is evidence that organized boulevard baiting is going out of style.

Paris Paper Carps About Carp.

PARIS, July 25 (AP).—Another misdemeanor of the American visitor has been discovered by the Oeuvre, as usual arising from the "offensively high value of the dollar."

Everybody who has been to Fontainebleau will remember the fat, apparently centuries-old carp which only betray signs of activity when visitors throw bits of bread into the water.

"Today," says the Oeuvre, "this distraction is no longer within the means of French tourists; it has become the privilege of Americans alone. But they lack tact and overdo things by throwing whole four-pound loaves of bread to the fish just for the fun of seeing them fight over them. Many French people find this spectacle, which is renewed every day, an offensive one, and they are not wrong."

QUIT INTERNATIONAL UNION.

British Seamen Charge Transport Federation Is Political Body.

LONDON, July 25 (AP).—The National Seamen's Union yesterday adopted a resolution withdrawing from the International Transport Workers' Federation.

The action was taken chiefly on the ground that the federation is more of a political association than a trade union and that its Secretary, Edo Fimmen, has been guilty of issuing manifestoes, whose effect has been to mislead the workers of all Europe.

Only recently it was revealed in the House of Commons that the British Government had refused to permit Edo Fimmen, who is a Dutch Socialist, to enter England. Home Secretary Joynson-Hicks said that he had been barred because he had tried to interfere with British trade by arranging that British ships should be held up in foreign ports during the recent general strike.

France Asks $21,500,000 of Mexico.

MEXICO CITY, July 25 (AP).—Claims of French citizens against Mexico for damages during the revolutionary period amounting to 43,000,000 pesos about $21,500,000) have been filed with the Franco-Mexican Claims Commission. No time has yet been fixed for consideration of these claims.

SARAJEVO PLOT DISPUTE.

Ex-Austrian Investigation Denies German Reports of Confession.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BELGRADE, July 25.—Light is thrown on the Sarajevo assassination by a statement from Leo Preffer, who as an Austrian official investigated and prosecuted the case, published in the Zagreb paper Obzor.

Herr Preffer denies reports recently printed in Germany that the assassin, Gabriel Princip, confessed that previously he had been received by Crown Prince Alexander, now King of Yugoslavia, and that the Serbian Major Stankovitch instructed him how to use the Browning pistol.

Herr Preffer states that Princip during his examination resolutely denied any connection with official Serbia. He says his impression was that Princip acted under the influence of revolutionary Serbian and Bosnian youth. He thinks the Austrian Government paid the most meagre attention to the Archduke's safety and believes certain influential Austrian circles wanted Ferdinand to disappear.

VIENNA, July 25.—The semi-official Reichspost commenting on Herr Preffer's statements concerning the Sarajevo plot brands his insinuation that some Austrians welcomed the Archduke's assassination as "impudence coupled with imbecility." It believes his motive is a desire to improve his personal position in his new country.

Herr Preffer adopted Yugoslav nationality after the war and is said to receive a Yugoslav pension.

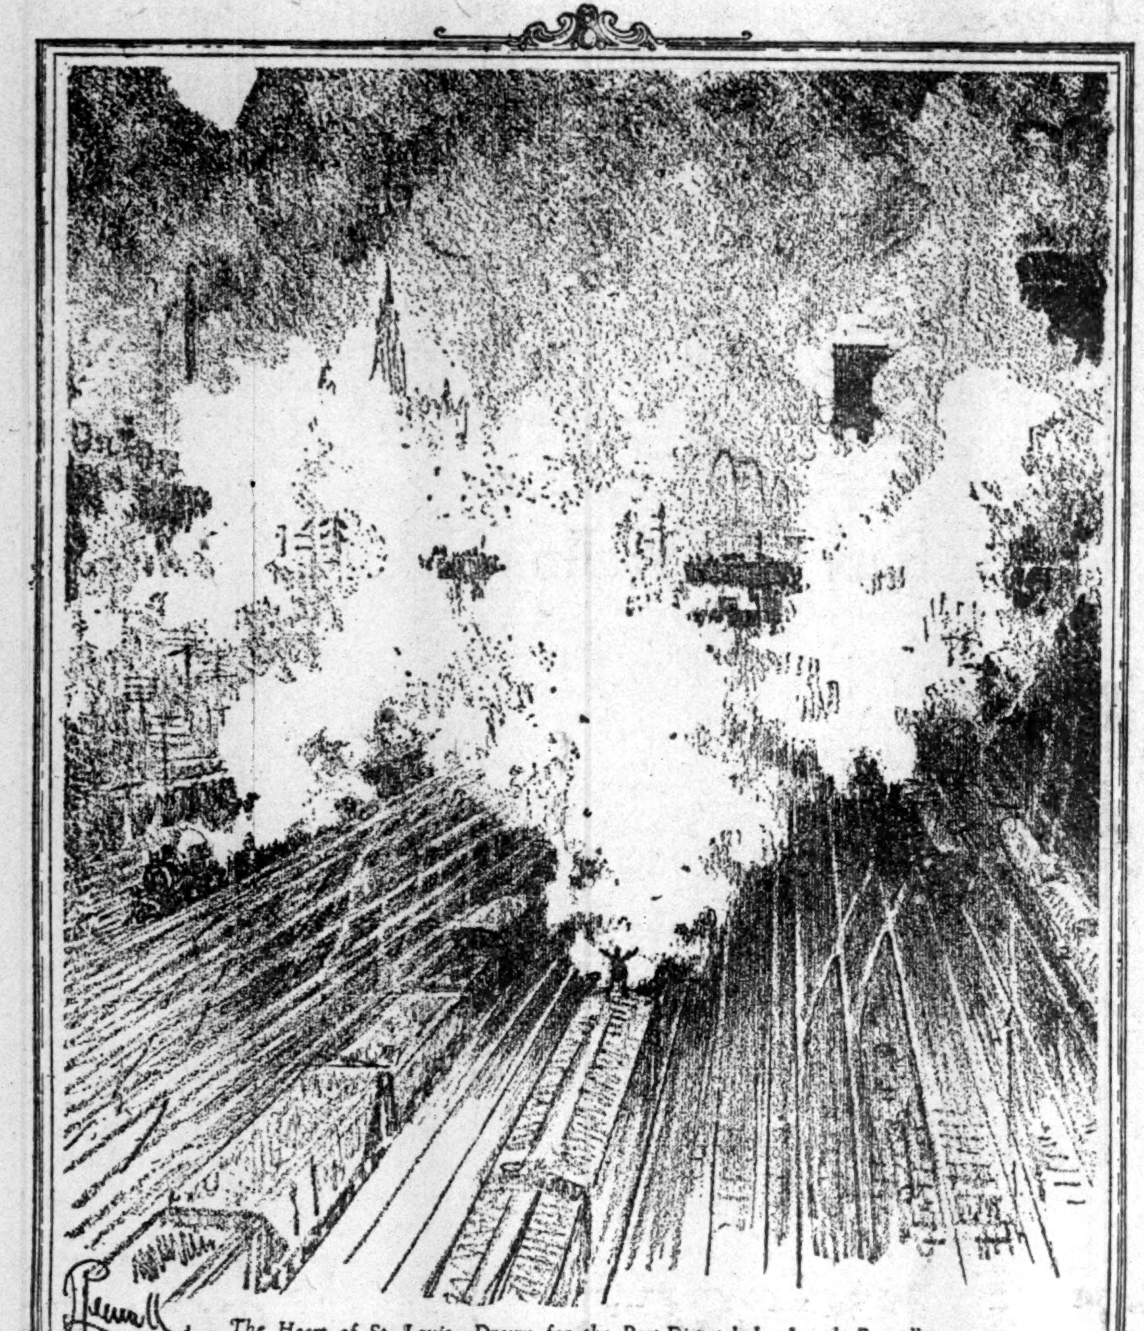
"A democratic paper in the true sense of that term"

Charles Nagel



The Heart of St. Louis—Drawn for the Post-Dispatch by Joseph Pennell

IT IS often said that the editorial page of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch is one of the ablest in the country. To it is attributed a quality—a quality defined upon this page by a prominent American citizen as "democracy in the true sense of that term."

It is frequently charged that in the great growth of advertising and its consequent enrichment of the newspapers the press has disposed to abandon its democratic traditions. It is sometimes said of it that it has become only a great money-making business. If that is true, or is to be true, it will be a serious loss to those popular rights and aspirations which the press was made free to protect.

More than one critic of the newspapers has publicly commended the steadfastness of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. It stands where it has always stood. It has never budged. It is for liberty and fair-dealing. It is against predatory wealth and predatory poverty. It is for democracy.

Charles Nagel—of St. Louis was Secretary of Commerce and Labor in the Cabinet of President Taft. He reads discriminately the editorial page of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, and tells here what he thinks of it:

The St. Louis Post-Dispatch is unqualifiedly what it professes to be—a democratic paper in the true sense of that term. It is very far from being a mere advocate of the Democratic Party. Quite the contrary; it has by the exercise of great independence sought to save democratic principles from the destructive influence of party dictation. It may therefore claim to be a champion of those undying principles which are recognized as the foundation of free government. When the Post-Dispatch opposes our present system of prohibition, it does not espouse the cause of cheap indulgence; but it protests against the unwisdom of a constitutional amendment which for the first time in our history has surrendered regulation of the personal conduct of citizens to the Federal Government.

When the Post-Dispatch among the first demanded the release of war prisoners, this was not done for sentimental reasons but because it saw in the arbitrary judgments of war's regime an immediate menace to the constitutional guarantees of personal liberty. It championed the principles of Jefferson when they were in peril.

This every believer in freedom must appreciate, every follower of Jefferson should applaud. But no less must a true federalist admit that there is no danger so threatening to the political policies of Hamilton as disintegration of the safeguards and barriers which were impressed upon the Constitution by Jefferson.

For these principles the St. Louis Post-Dispatch has stood with complete consistency; and its editorials have rung true because they reflect the intellectual conviction of the editorial staff.

PEGGY JOYCE BREAKS TROTH WITH COMSTOCK

On Way to Paris She Sends Radio Message That She Is "Not Marrying Any One."

The engagement of Peggy Hopkins Joyce and Stanford Comstock, latest of her fiancés, is off. In a radio message today to The Associated Press from the Homeric, on which she is sailing to Paris, Miss Joyce confirmed rumors of a break with the real estate operator.

"Changed my mind. Woman's privilege. Not marrying any one," she said.

When Miss Joyce sailed Friday as Countess Gosta Morner, the name of her most recent husband, Comstock was not at the pier to bid her farewell, and it was rumored then that they had broken their engagement by mutual consent.

The latest of the romances of the actress began in Florida. With the announcement of the engagement Comstock's former wife alleged that he is not legally divorced from her. Miss Joyce, at that time, however, insisted that she was going to marry Comstock despite the objections of his former wife.

Miss Joyce, the Countess Morner, was Margaret Upton, the daughter of a Virginia barber, before she eloped with Everett Archer, the first of four husbands, when she was in school at Chevy Chase. A divorce soon followed and she married Sherburne Hopkins, prominent in Washington society and son of a Washington lawyer. This marriage lasted two years. Then she married, in 1920, J. Stanley Joyce, a Chicago lumberman. Joyce obtained a divorce in Chicago the following year. Next she married Count Morner, son of Count Birger Morner of Stockholm, Sweden, in 1924. After a little more than a month of married life the Count filed suit for annulment, and a few weeks later the Countess replied with a counter-suit. Both suits were afterward dropped. She obtained a divorce in Paris early last Winter.

WHITE PLAINS TO ASK END OF TROLLEY LINES

Mayor and Others Will Oppose Third Avenue Road's Plan to Continue Them.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., July 25.—When President Huff of the Third Avenue Railway system meets Mayor Frederick C. McLoughlin and other officials of this city next Wednesday morning to discuss operation of trolley lines purchased a week ago from the Westchester Street Railway Company, the new ownership will be urged to abandon its plan to continue operation of the trolleys. It will be asked to substitute buses.

The City Council, it is said, opposes Huff's plan to recondition the trolley cars and tracks, and the Merchants Association of White Plains supports the Council. If Huff agrees to substitute buses the trolley service will probably terminate on July 29, ten days after the sale, and buses will be put in operation as soon as possible.

ONLY WAY TO WIN IN FILMS.

Stars Can No Longer Substitute Legs for Brains, Says Goldwyn.

CULVER CITY, Cal., July 25 (AP).—Fewer displays of legs and more of brains constitute a formula of success for film stars in the opinion of Samuel Goldwyn, pioneer producer, who made this statement tonight apropos of the recently reiterated Will Hays policy of "clean motion pictures."

"Photographs of the nude or semi-nude female's form divine are passe in the movies," Mr. Goldwyn continued. "They are not only a possible dettriment to public morals, but also a mighty poor type of exploitation. The day when you could substitute legs for brains in the motion pictures has gone forever."

RUSHES REMOVAL OF ARSENAL STORES

Captain Adams Takes Preventive Measures Against Fires at Lake Denmark.

STORM CAUSES NEW SCARE

All Ordered Out of the Danger Zone During Lightning Display on Saturday.

Special to The New York Times.

DOVER, N. J., July 25.—The work of salvaging what remains of the Government's $87,000,000 arsenal at Lake Denmark, wrecked by the fire and explosion two weeks ago, will be pushed to the utmost during the coming week, Captain Roe R. Adams, inspector in charge, announced this afternoon. Every effort will be made to expedite the removal of several million pounds of smokeless powder that still remains in magazines untouched by the blast. As fast as this powder is taken from the magazines it will be repacked and shipped to other ammunition depots in various parts of the country.

Captain Adams during the last week has concentrated his force of workmen on clearing the roads of débris and repairing the broken water lines so that in the event of another fire fighters will not be hampered by lack of communications or water.

Complete electric lighting and telephone systems have been installed throughout the depot. Guards patrol every section of the depot day and night and no strangers or civilians other than those who have business to transact are allowed on the reservation. More than 400 marines, under Lieut. Col. R. Y. Rhea, are encamped inside the depot and have made a thorough search of the marine barracks and other places where it is possible missing men may have been killed. Two men are missing.

The storm early Saturday morning caused some apprehension when vivid flashes of lightning were streaking the sky. Colonel Rhea ordered all guards removed from the vicinity of powder houses and other explosive magazines.

The court of inquiry investigating the disaster will conclude the hearing of testimony tomorrow and will adjourn to Washington to go over the evidence and arrive at a decision.

STIRRED BY AIRSHIP PLANS.

General Je Cugnac Urges France to Heed Our Example.

PARIS, July 25.—General de Cugnac, writing in the Journal des Débats tonight about the plans for two new American dirigibles, says that "it is too true that only the nation which calls itself pacific can offer such an example of luxurious warring material."

The article discusses in great detail the plans of construction and concludes that France must not abandon this form of aircraft simply because of regrettable accidents, but must profit by the example set by the United States.

"The new American airships will not hide their bellicose purpose," the General concludes, "for they will be armed with an automatic cannon and thirty-one machine guns."

YANKS WIN 5 IN ROW AS RUTH HITS NO. 30

COMBS SAVES THE GAME

Two Out and Bases Full in Ninth Inning When He Catches Tricky Fly.

HOYT LIMITS HITS TO 7

By JAMES R. HARRISON.

Frank Merriwell, alias Earl Combs, jumped out of the story books yesterday and saved a ball game for the Yankees. Frank tore in from centre field, flung himself desperately at a low-skimming fly, caught the ball as he fell, rolled over once, rose to his feet and held the white pellet up in his left hand triumphantly before the 35,000 onlookers.

The setting was made to order for Frank, alias Earl. It was the ninth inning. The Yanks were 1 run ahead of the White Sox. Two were out and the bases were full. What more could you ask?

Earl caught the ball and the Yanks won their fifth straight, 2 to 1, and that gave them five out of six from the White Sox.

Babe Ruth hitting his thirtieth homer with one on base won the game for the Yanks, and Combs saved it. Waite Hoyt, pitching superbly, held the Sox to seven hits and blanked them after the first.

There should also be a sprig of laurel for Ray Morehart, Chicago second baseman, whose fumble with two out preceded the Ruth homer and gave the Yanks an unearned victory.

Combs the Big Hero.

But the big hero was Combs. The Kentucky rosebud was almost mobbed as he tried to push his way through a hysterical mass of fans after the game. Perfect strangers stepped up and slapped Earl on the shoulders, prodded him playfully in the ribs, tried to shake his hand and did everything but sob joyfully on his manly shoulder.

With one out in the ninth Sheely singled to left. Lyons ran for him and went to second on Harris's hit to centre. Kamm fouled to Severeid, but when Morehart grounded to Dugan on the first bounce, Joe was in such a hurry to step on third that he dropped the ball. Barrett batted for Schalk and hit the short fly to left centre, which Combs picked off the daisies.

Ted Blankenship and the Sox had a 1 to 0 lead up to the sixth. Combs and Koenig were easy for the Texan sharpshooter, but Morehart made an atrocious fumble of Gehrig's easy grounder. Blankenship shot two strikes over on Ruth at once, but George pickled the next one, high and far, to the left of the exit gate in right. What an uproar there was as the home run king pranced around the bases!

Still Trails 1921 Record.

He is still, however, twenty-five games behind his 1921 record and is not making any headway. His thirtieth homer in that year was made on July 2—some difference.

The very first pitch offered by Mr. Hoyt in the opening round was to the liking of Johnny Mostil, who socked it to left for a base. This incited Hunnefield to smite a single to right, advancing Mostil to third. All things considered, Hoyt got out of this stormy beginning very handsomely. Mostil scored while Gehrig was attending to Falk's grounder, and when Sheely lined to Lazzeri, Hunnefield was doubled up off second.

Koenig and Ruth got on in the Yankee half through passes, but nothing came of the incipient rally. In the second inning Severeid doubled with two out, and this was the Yanks' last chance for some innings to come. They went out in order in the third, fourth and fifth, but in the sixth Morehart made his poisonous misplay and Ruth followed with the shot that was heard around the world.

Going back a little, Hoyt was in slight trouble in the third, which Schalk opened with a single. Ray was bunted along to second by Blankenship, and Mostil walked, but Hunnefield popped up and Falk forced Mostil.

Schalk strolled in the eighth with one out, but McCurdy batted for Blankenship and struck out. Mostil singled Schalk to third, then Ruth surrounded Falk's fly.

In our half of the inning Koenig singled, Gehrig sacrificed and Ruth was intentionally passed. Paschal's long fly sent Koenig to third. On an attempted double steal Mark was trapped off third, but scrambled back in safety while Ruth went on to second. Lazzeri's walk filled the bases, and Carlyle batted for Gazella but rolled gracefully to Morehart.

TIGERS HIT FREELY, BEAT SENATORS, 14-4

WASHINGTON, July 25 (AP).—Detroit made seventeen hits off four Washington pitchers today and won the sixth game of the series from the champions, 14 to 4. Marberry of the Senators lasted only two innings and the other pitchers were ineffective, the Tigers getting ten passes.

Heilmann made four hits, one a freak single, when he threw his bat at a wide throw, the ball landing safely in right. Wells was effective for Detroit.

CUBS WIN IN NINTH, 5-4.

CHICAGO, July 25 (AP).—Jim Cooney's triple in the ninth gave the Chicago Cubs a 5-to-4 victory over Philadelphia today in the final of the series which the Phillies won three games to two.

The Phillies took the lead in the seventh by driving Piercy off the mound, but Chicago tied the count in the eighth when Pinch Hitter Kelly's double scored Cooney. The game was played in a drizzling rain.

2 CARDINAL HOMERS HELP DOWN GIANTS

BELL'S BLOW IS A FREAK

By IK SHUMAN.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, July 25.—The Cardinals defeated the Giants, 6 to 5, here today in an eleven-inning game which tingled with excitement.

Twenty-five thousand fans roared and shrieked themselves into a state of justifiable hysteria as thrice the score was tied—twice on home runs by Lester Bell and Bill Southworth, the latter's blow evening the count in the tenth.

Greenfield pitched great ball for the Giants until relieved in the tenth by a pinch hitter. McQuillan, who followed him, was tapped in the eleventh for three successive hits, which cost the Giants the game.

Heinie Mueller's friends gave him a traveling bag before the game was started, but the tiny outfielder not once traveled as far as first and was replaced by a pinch hitter in the tenth.

Bell's Homer Is a Freak.

Bell's home run which tied the score in the fourth inning was as freaky a hit as ever recorded. It looked as if it were going into the right field stands. It struck a projection on the wall, dropped like a plummet and seemed to hang suspended in the air. Then Young was seen tugging at the wall, and as Bell came across the plate it was revealed that the ball was stuck on a nail in the wall so firmly that Young coud not loosen it.

The Cards started hustling with the first pitched ball, which Blades slammed for three bases to left centre. Lindstrom threw out Flowers, but Greenfield walked Southworth. Bottomley lifted a high fly to Heinie in deep centre, on which Blades scored an instant before Southworth was caught off first on a throw relayed by Frisch.

Our Giants came back vengefully. Lindstrom started the second inning with a double to right field. Meusel popped to Flowers. Kelly lifted a Texas leaguer over second. Lindstrom took third and then scored as Jackson drove a double to the right field stands. Florence was passed and the bases were filled with one out.

Greenfield Gets in Blow.

Greenfield created the surprise of the season by singling over first base, scoring Kelly with the second run. Then, with the bases still filled, Haines saved himself by taking Heinie's hard-hit grounder and starting as snappy a double play as any pitcher can be expected to make.

But the cards were undeterred. Lester Bell began the next half with a double down the left field line, making the 17th game in which he has hit safely, and he scored with the tying run on Douthit's single to left.

The pyrotechnics were continued when Young tripled in the third and Lindstrom hit a line drive to centre. It looked like a safe hit, but Douthit made a dazzling one-handed running catch. Young scored on it, however, and again the Giants had the lead, 3 to 2.

The lead lasted only until the fourth, when came that freak home run of Lester Bell which tied the score again and made the crowd bubble with amusement. So it went with occasional sorties and flashing fielding through the fifth, sixth and seventh innings.

Giants Gain Lead Again.

Lindstrom started the eighth by beating out a grounder to Short. Meusel popped to Southworth. Kelly doubled to left centre, scoring Lindstrom to give the Giants the lead once more, 4 to 3, and the first baseman took third on Jackson's sacrifice fly to Southworth.

Florence was passed, so was Greenfield; and with the bases filled and two men out Heine came to bat again. He grounded easily to Flowers for the third out, and again he had lost a chance to be a hero in his own home town.

The Cards and the fans got indignant in the Cards' half of the eighth when Umpire James Monroe Sweeney called out Ray Blades at second on a close force play, and they went wild with joy and then groaned with despair as Southworth's drive into the right-field stands was called foul.

They groaned again as Jackson forced out Flowers at second on Southworth's grounder, and then howled with unmistakable misery as Bottomley lined to Young, who caught the ball at his shoe tips, turned a somersault and came up holding the ball.

Reinhart went into the box for the Cards at the beginning of the ninth. He had little difficulty in disposing of the Giants.

Bell Bangs Out Triple.

Then this wild ball game got wilder as Lester Bell opened the Cards' half of the ninth with a triple to the centre-field wall. The yells were cut short as Douthit grounded out to Jackson while Bell was held at third. The yells grew to shrieks as Toporcer, batting for Vick, lined a hit to centre field. Heinie caught it on a pick-up and rolled over and over as Bell came across with the fourth run for the Cards, which tied the game again. Toporcer, however, was held at first. Thevenow popped to Heinie for the second out, and Reinhart forced out Toporcer. The second extra inning game of the series was on.

Kelly started the tenth by lifting a Texas leaguer, which Southworth and Douthit gave the Alphonse and Gaston, and the hit was counted as a double. Jackson sacrificed Kelly to third. Johnston, hitting for Florence, was walked purposely. Farrell, batting for Greenfield, grounded to Thevenow, who threw out Kelly at home as Johnston took second.

Al Tyson, playing for the first time in nearly a month, batted for Heinie. He drove a hot one to third, which Bell couldn't handle. It counted as a hit and the bases were full.

Johnston Crosses Plate.

Here Frisch grounded an easy one to Flowers, who fumbled the ball and Johnston came in with the Giants' fifth score.

Young filed to Southworth for the third out, and then Hugh McQuillan went in to pitch for the Giants, and hardly quicker than it takes to tell it two men were down, but then Southworth lifted a home run into the right-field stands and tied the score again.

In the eleventh with one down Douthit singled to centre and went to third on Toporcer's single over second. The ball game was ended as Thevenow lined over Meusel's head and Douthit scored.

The Giants made a hasty exit after their defeat which nearly cost them their train. Fortunately arrangements were made to hold the Special at the Delmar Avenue suburban station and the Giants piled aboard and headed East, to open at the Polo Grounds with the Pirates on Tuesday.

In the 16 regular games plus an exhibition played in the West, they drew about 273,000 fans.

Flowers was playing in place of Rogers Hornsby who has been ordered to take a ten-day rest.

Pickups and Putouts

Before the game at the Stadium yesterday Ruth was invited to stroll up to the plate and have himself presented with a traveling bag. It was the gift of the Newburgh Council, Knights of Columbus, and Grand Knight Hugh McGuire made the presentation.

Inasmuch as Babe caught a train for St. Louis fifteen minutes after the game, the present was highly appropriate.

The New York Central Limited to St. Louis made a special stop at High Bridge to allow the Yanks to climb aboard. The second Western tour opens in the Mound City Tuesday.

Yesterday's outfielding was of purest gold. Combs, Paschal, Mostil and Harris turned in sometimes sensational and always able performances.

Th best catch of the lot, next to that of Combs, of course, was Harris's falling capture of Hoyt's liner. The youngster rolled over once or twice, but held on for dear life.

BRAVES BEAT REDS AMID FIST FIGHTS

ONE PLAYER IS ARRESTED

Said to Have Struck Inspector—Boston Carries Off the Game by 8 to 4.

CINCINNATI, July 25 (AP).—Boston went on a batting rampage today and took the last game of the series from the Cincinnati Reds, 8 to 4. The game was enlivened by two fist fights. In the third inning Pinelli and Arthur Devlin, who was coaching at third for the Braves, got into an argument and exchanged blows. Players of both teams gathered about the scene and the fight became general. City police rushed on the field and restored order. Pinelli was put out of the game.

In the next inning Welsh and Picinich collided as the former ran into the plate.

Picinich made a wild swing at the runner and it looked for a moment as though hostilities would be renewed. Instead of following up the attack, however, Picinich apologized; he was ordered out of the game by the umpire.

ROBINS BACK HOME, TURN UPON PIRATES

PETTY WINS ONE AT LAST

Team-Mates Finally Back Him Up After Six Defeats in the Past Month.

By RICHARDS VIDMER.

Uncle Wilbert Robinson has built up a ball team in Brooklyn with new faces scattered all over the field, but the old stalwarts, Zach Wheat and Jack Fournier, are still around, which is just as well, for, as in songs, the old favorites are best, after all.

It was this pair that drove the Robins to victory yesterday at Ebbets Field, helping Jess Petty beat the Pirates, 3 to 1. Zack tied the score with a homer over the right field fence, and Jack did the rest with a double to the exit gate in centre field. It was Zack's second homer in two games and Jack's third hit of the day.

These two came to the rescue of the Silver Fox, who won his first game in over a month. Petty has pitched well enough to win at least five games since his last victory on June 23, but instead he lost six in a row before yesterday's triumph. Bad breaks and a famine of runs by the Robins have been to blame in most instances.

Pirates Get Only Seven Hits.

Three tallies weren't any too many against the Pirates, and the left-hander had to work all the way. But he did it willingly and effectively. The Pirate crew that so jolted the Flatbush flock in Pittsburgh was held to seven hits, only four of which were legitimate, and only once did they get as many as two in one inning. That was the third, when a pass to Carey with two out, a Texas leaguer that dropped between Butler and Wheat and a solid single by Cuyler gave the Buccaneers their lone run.

Wheat tied the score with his long drive over the right-field fence in the fifth, and after Fewster had smashed a single over Traynor's head and Jacobson had beaten out a bunt, Fournier drove the winning run home with his second double and third safe hit of the day in the seventh.

Herman followed with a double that scored Jack, but that run wasn't necessary, though it made things more comfortable for the 20,000 fans who gathered to welcome the Robins home from their Western tour.

Joe Bush, who has served all over the American circuit and is starting his career as a National Leaguer, was at the helm of the Buccaneer brig and steered it well through troubled waters. But he couldn't get it to port.

Although the offensive attack wasn't any more evident than usual when Petty pitches, his support in a defensive way was at times brilliant. Reindeer Jacobson, who has anchored himself in the Robins' outfield since the flock flew westward, showed the Flatbush fans how he won his job by making two sensational catches off drives by Carey and six others that he made look easy.

Accepts Eight Chances.

Jake handled eight chances during the afternoon, and he has been covering just as much ground ever since he has been stationed in the centre of the second line of defense, but he moves so fast that he doesn't get credit for moving at all, because he so often is there waiting for flies to fall.

The last of the long series with the Pirates will be played today, but even should the Robins win, the cruising corsairs will have the edge. They took four out of five in Pittsburgh.

Dazzy Vance, who has been as brilliant in his last two games as he was during the last two seasons, will get the assignment of stopping the league leaders this afternoon.

Uncle Robbie has denied the report that Buzz Arlett, the hard-hitting outfielder from the Pacific Coast, has been purchased by the Robins. George Boehler, two other players and $25,000 in cash was the price placed on the Coast sensation, and though Robbie is willing to part with Boehler and perhaps could find a couple of other players who would prove satisfactory, he says the price is too high.

SKEETERS SHUT OUT THE ORIOLES TWICE

League Leaders Are Blanked for First Time This Year—Scores Are 7 to 0 and 4 to 0.

Hold Champions to 2 and 5 Hits—Malone Batting Star—Second Game Errorless.

After losing the opening game of the series with the Baltimore Orioles, the Skeeters returned to the fray on their own grounds yesterday and twice stung the leaders in the race for the International League pennant. The scores were 7 to 0 and 4 to 0. It was a great day in the history of baseball in Jersey City, the shutting out of such a strong team as the Orioles being considered a feat that called for great jollification. It was the first time this year that the Orioles have been whitewashed.

The pitching heroes were Parks and Moss, the former holding the league leaders to five scattered hits in the first game, and the latter allowing only two in the second. Parks struck out seven and Moss four, while the former gave only one base on balls and the latter two. Such pitching has seldom been seen in Jersey City and the big crowd at the park showed its appreciation by cheering wildly as the play in the double-header progressed.

Malone was the batting star of the day. In the first game he went to the bat five times and on every occasion hit safely, his record being a home run, two doubles and two singles. The Skeeters enjoyed a batting feast in this game, making nine safe hits off Earnshaw and seven off Blaisdell, a total of sixteen in all.

In the second game the Skeeters, although they won, were held more in check than they were in the first contest. Henderson pitched the full game for the Orioles, showing such headwork at critical points that nine Skeeters were left on the bases. The fielding was sensational on both sides, neither team making an error.

PORT WASHINGTON, L. I., July 25.—In a light southerly breeze prevailing on the Long Island Sound today the second race of the series of the Interclub Class was sailed under the auspices of the Manhasset Bay Yacht Club.

Although the Wee Betty, flying the burgee of the Larchmont Yacht Club and cleverly sailed by William W. Swann, was the first boat to wing across the line, the team prize was captured by the American Yacht Club. With Babette, Pegety and Skylark piling up 37 points as the result of finishing in second, third and fifteenth places, the winning trio captured the team trophy presented by John B. Sheathar.

The Larchmont Yacht Club was second with 30 points, while the Indian Harbor representatives finished third, just one point behind the runner-up.

Covers Historic Course.

The fleet covered the historic course from Manhasset Bay, from which the New York Yacht Club thirty-foot class celebrated its twentieth anniversary last Summer. The start was made between Dudley Cooper's schooner Norwester, which was used for the committee boat and anchored just off Plum Beach, and a Government buoy.

The boats were all clustered on the mark at the start and crossed the line almost as one. Carroll Alker's Ginette; Pegety, belonging to G. B. Gibbons, and Wee Betty seemed to have the better of the start.

After turning Hulett's Point for the first mark, the Larchmont sloop went into the lead. On the windward leg to Execution Light, Bill Swan, who was at the tiller of Wee Betty, increased his lead and then sailed home, 2 minutes and 5 seconds in the van of Babette, the first of the American Yacht Club yachts to get home. Pegety, another member of the winning team, was third, and then came Ginette and Poppy of the Manhasset Bay Yacht Club team.

Nineteen Start the Race.

There were nineteen starters in the regatta, representing seven clubs. Each team, with one exception, was composed of three boats. The Hempstead Harbor Yacht Club could only get one representative, A. W. Hicks's Orythia, but he failed to finish among the leaders.

The Indian Harbor Yacht Club trio was third with 29 points, while the New York Yacht Club, which captured the team trophy last week, trailed in fourth place with 27 points.

The Manhasset Bay Club had 25, Seawanhaka Corinthian Club was sixth with 23 points, and Hempstead Harbor's single representative trailed the clubs with 1 point.

No. 3 Player Loses to Man Ranked Twelfth in Met. Tennis by Surprising Score.

TILDEN EASILY TRIUMPHS

Bruneau Creeps Up to 3-5 in First Set, but Champion Takes Next Seven—Richards Also Scores.

TODAY'S FEATURE MATCHES.

By ALLISON DANZIG.

They celebrated at the Terrace Club in Flatbush yesterday. When a player of secondary rating in the metropolitan ranking turns in a performance to overshadow the play of William Tilden and Vincent Richard, it is indeed time for the brass band to turn out.

Kenneth D. Fisher is the conquering hero referred to, and the occasion for all the excitement was his victory in love sets yesterday over Percy L. Kynaston of Rockville Centre in the metropolitan grass court championship at the Crescent A. C. Kynaston ranks third in the metropolitan list and sixteenth nationally, while Fisher is twelfth in the local rating and completely escaped the attention of the committee that selected the national top-notchers.

It is only fair to recall at this time that Francis T. Hunter took fifteen games in a row from Kynaston in the final of the metropolitan clay court championship in June. That was an unparalleled score in spite of the greater reputation of the New Rochelle player, but, apparently, from the way Fisher played yesterday, the only reason it wasn't duplicated was because the match was two out of three sets.

Fisher Drives Hard.

Fisher is a giant of a man. When his sledge-hammer drives are under control it takes a strong man to assimilate them. Yesterday was one of the rare occasions when his shots failed to run past the stop signal at the end of the court, and Kynaston was at his mercy.

Little attention was centred in this match at the start, but as Fisher took game after game the feature contests in front of the stands were neglected and soon the gallery was buzzing with every announcement of the score. Game after game, it was the same story. Fisher was pounding Kynaston's court, harassing him every minute with drives that were always on top of him and that never gave him the chance to launch a counter-offensive.

Against the terrific pace of these shots Kynaston could bring neither his forehand nor backhand cross-court return into action. The Long Island youth may have been stale as the result of the strenuous campaign he has gone through for weeks, but even at his freshest he would have found it difficult to return those cannonball drives with any degree of accuracy or finesse.

Fisher was inclined to minimize his startling victory as "one of those things that happen in the best families," stating that Kynaston was off his game, but that explanation didn't go at all with those who saw him play his best tennis since his match three years ago with Seiichiro Kashio in the Brooklyn championship.

Tilden Slow to Start.

The appearance of Tilden for the first time in the metropolitan championship was important enough an event to draw a crowd that filled practically every seat at the club. Armand L. Bruneau of the Terrace Club was his opponent. Bruneau already had made reservations to leave for Bar Harbor, but missed his train, as the match took longer to play than he expected. It is a question whether Fisher was the more satisfied with his victory over Kynaston or Bruneau with the fact that he got three games from Tilden in the opening set.

The champion was not inclined to take matters seriously on the day of his arrival from Longwood, and Bruneau had the opportunity to bring off some clean attacking shots that were prettily placed. After losing two games in a row, in which his two double faults and Bruneau's two service aces were factors, Tilden decided that he had been generous to a fault. With the score at 5-3 in his favor, he took the seven next games and went into the second round.

Richards, following up his victory over Tsumio Tawara on Saturday, played almost perfect tennis yesterday against Horace Orser and won at 6—2, 6—1. Orser's beautifully stroked drives were not to be handled with anything but care, and the way in which Richards smothered them from deep court and with tingling volleys was enough to satisfy the onlooker that the New York youth is at the top of his game. His service seldom has looked so good. In the two sets he won, four of his service games were at love, three at 4—1 and the other one 4—2, not one of them going to deuce.

A great deal of the interest in the day's play was centred in the juniors. Gregory Mangin of the Montclair A. C. turned in the most notable performance of the younger players in taking a set from Brian Norton of St. Louis. Norton's injured knee continued to hamper him, but credit must be given to Mangin for his sterling work.

It loked rather serious for Norton when he trailed at 5—1 in the second set, but in the third chapter he showed the greater lasting powers and accuracy, wearing his younger opponent down in long rallies as he kept him on the run with drives of concealed direction and varying length to all sections of the court. The score was 6—3, 3—6, 6—1.

The summaries:

First Round—Donald Strachan defeated Russell Phillips, 7—5, 6—3; Allen Behr won from Arthur Hamby by default; Dr. George King defeated Warren F. Coen Jr., 6—1, 6—1; William T. Hagen's 68 Sets Course Mark And Nets Him $100 at Utica

UTICA, N. Y., July 25 (AP).—Walter Hagen, Pasadena, Fla., broke the Yahnundasis Golf Club course record by four strokes today with a round of 35, 33—68. The par is 70 and the previous record was 72, held by Bobby Cruickshank. Hagen, paired with Peter Robinson, club professional, defeated Sherrill Sherman and Richard Hafield, 4 and 3. Club members offered a special prize of $100 for Hagen to equal par or break it.

BORG AND SKELTON SHATTER RECORDS

FREEPORT, L. I., July 25.—Arne Borg and Robert Skelton repeated their record-breaking performances of Saturday at Coney Island by shattering the marks for the 400-yard free-style swim and the 400-yard breast-stroke at the pool of Playland Park here this evening. These two swimmers and Johnny Weissmuller and Miss Ethel Lackie, all of the Illinois Athletic Club, swam against time mainly in preparation for the national championships this week at the Sesquicentennial celebration in Philadelphia.

At Coney Island Borg and Skelton clipped appreciable time off their own records and then again this evening Borg lopped off almost four and Skelton almost five seconds from their Saturday performances.

In two days the record for the 400-yard breaststroke has been lowered by Skelton exactly eleven seconds, and the record for the 400-yard free style has gone down seven and two-fifths seconds. Skelton's time was 5:44, while Borg's was 4.27 1-5. The meet was again under A. A. U. supervision, and the times will be submitted for ratification as new world's marks.

Johnny Weissmuller, although he was a fifth of a second slower than on Saturday, demonstrated that he is in good form once again and ready for the test at Philadelphia. His time of 0:52 2-5 seconds for the 100 was 2-5 slower than his own record for the distance.

Miss Lackie did the same distance in 1:05, 4-5 of a second behind her time at Coney Island and almost five seconds slower than the record for women, which is 1:00 9-10.

A crowd of 800 witnessed the establishment of the new records, filling the grandstand near the pool, which is 100 feet in length. All four swimmers are entered in the national championships, which are to be held from Wednesday to Saturday.

LANG WINS TITLE IN STATE TENNIS

BUT LOSES IN THE DOUBLES

He and Von Bernuth Bow to Seligson and Emerson by Score of 6-4, 9-7, 7-5.

HEMPSTEAD, L. I., July 25.—Herbert L. Bowman of the New York A. C. will have to wait until another year to add the Empire Bowl to his collection of trophies. For the third year in a row he failed today to gain the necessary third leg on the trophy, which he won in 1922 and 1923, when he lost to Jerry Lang in the final round of the New York State championship at the Hempstead Country Club. The score was 6—4, 6—3, 12—10.

Lang now also holds two legs on the trophy, which he captured for the first time last year. In addition to winning the New York State title, Lang also gained the Nassau and Suffolk counties championship, which was held in conjunction with the State tournament.

The efforts of the former Columbia Captain to annex the doubles crown was frustrated in the final. Julius Seligson and Gerald S. Emerson defeated Lang and Enton Von Bernuth this afternoon, following the singles, 6—4, 9—7, 7—5. It was Lang who put Seligson out of the singles here and the Columbia Grammar School youth gained some balm for that defeat by leading in the attack that carried him and Emerson to victory.

Lang was too brilliant a shot maker and too overwhelming at the net for Bowman in the singles. The former Columbian did everything well and maintained uniformly good control throughout the three sets. His deep forcing shots opened up gaps in Bowman's court that he filled with biting volleys and seldom could he be passed or dislodged when he fought his way to the barrier. His service also was a big asset, paving the way for successful advances forward.

Bowman's clever returns kept Lang on his toes every minute, and had the latter not been so keen to anticipate and so thorough a getter, the match would have gone to four sets, if not further.

French Win Davis Cup Final of Europe And Prepare to Sail for Matches Here

CABOURG, France, July 25 (AP).—France is the winner of the European Zone final of the Davis Cup competition. Having been victorious in two singles matches against the British team yesterday, the French today won the doubles, Jean Borotra and Jacques Brugnon defeating George Crole-Rees and Charles S. Kingsley, 6—2, 6—0, 6—3.

Today's match was a walkover for the French; the English players were never in the running. Yesterday, Henri Cochet defeated J. C. Gregory, 7—5, 4—6, 7—9, 7—5, 6—0, and Rene Lacoste defeated O. G. N. Turnbull, 6—4, 6—4, 6—4.

Tomorrow Lacoste will play Gregory and Brugnon will meet Turnbull, although the results will not affect the standing.

BLUES TRIP WHITES IN ROCKAWAY POLO

Qualify to Represent Eastern Division in Intercircuit Play by 13-7 Victory Over Mates.

CEDARHURST, L. I., July 25.—The Rockaway Blues scored an impressive victory over their clubmates, the Whites, on the Rockaway Hunt Club turf this afternoon and qualified to represent the Eastern Division in the intercircuit polo championship tournament, which will start Aug. 14, at Narragansett Pier, L. I. The score was 13 to 7. Last year, the four representing the club swept its way through to the final and won the title from the crack Fort Bliss team.

The Blues were the high goal combination in the match today, the Whites enjoying a handicap of five goals. The Blues rode hard and fast and by superior team play and accurate mallet work drove in five goals to make up the handicap by the end of the second chukker.

Beadleston, riding at No. 2, put the big punch in the Blues' offensive. He pierced the Whites' defense for a total of seven goals. Eaton tallied three more, Dempsey two, and Hazard, playing at back, one.

The two scored goals which the Whites gained were driven between the uprights by Blackwell, No. 3 man on the losing combination.

The line-up:

No. 1—Eaton.	No. 1—Proctor.
No. 2—Beadleston.	No. 2—Maitland.
No. 3—Dempsey.	No. 3—Black.
Back—Hazard.	Back—Adams.

Referee—J. C. Cowdin.

ANDERSON ANNEXES SPRING LAKE BOWL

Wins North Jersey Net Title for Third Time, Turning Back Oelsner, 6-4, 6-3, 6-0.

Special to The New York Times.

SPRING LAKE, N. J., July 25.—Playing with greater ease than marked his two previous matches, Fred C. Anderson of Brooklyn today won the North Jersey Coast singles championship on the wet courts of the Bathing and Tennis Club. His victim, in straight sets, was Edward C. Oelsner of Montclair, N. J. The scores were 6—4, 6—3, 6—0.

By winning today Anderson took permanent possession of the Spring Lake Singles Bowl. His previous tourney victories were last year and in 1924. Likewise Phil and Ludlow Vandeventer of Plainfield, N. J., were crowned doubles champions, with permanent ownership of the doubles bowl. Anderson, paired with Jack P. Stockton of New York, essayed to defeat the brothers this afternoon, but failed after a sturdy battle, 8—6, 6—4, 9—7.

Before gaining their way to the final in the doubles Anderson and Stockton beat Harry Wolf of Montclair and Oelsner. The Vandeventers were forced through three and a half sets by Lindsay Dunham and Brainard Lindsay, North Jersey netsters.

Since only two legs were necessary for possession of the doubles bowl the victory today and in 1924 resulted favorably for the Vandeventers. In the singles final both players were handicapped by the loggy court.

Oelsner gained a lead of 2—love at the start of the match and ran into a 3—1 count by chopping neatly. Thus aroused, Anderson went on to take the initial set, 6—4. Thereafter he was never headed. The second set ended 6—3, and he romped away with the final, 6—love. Oelsner scored only nine points in this set, as Anderson drove deep and went to the net for kills often.

WEXLER TO ENGAGE CANZONERI TONIGHT

Manny Wexler of Harlem will oppose Tony Canzoneri, Brooklyn bantamweight, in the main bout of six rounds tonight at the Dexter Park Arena, Brooklyn. Both boys have a large following and interest in the match is keen. Canzoneri has been unusually successful in recent engagements and is confident of taking the measure of the Harlem boy this evening. Wexler also has made an excellent showing of late and his followers will be present to give him their support.

Johnny Kochansky, junior lightweight, who recently engaged Tod Morgan, junior lightweight champion, will be seen in the six-round semi-final against Benny Gould of Canada. This will be a return match, the boys having clashed in a close battle at Canarsie a short time ago. Lew Kersch, east side junior lightweight, will face Billy Humphries of Brooklyn in another six-round engagement.

The third battle on the program, which will be at six rounds, will bring together Joe Catti of East New York and Ralph Cohen of Ridgewood. The opening six-round bout will present Al Mitchell of Williamsburg and Jimmy Mendoza, and Eddie Goldberg and Willie Pierson will open the show in a four-rounder.

Another boxing show under the auspices of the A. A. U. and the Northern A. A. will be staged at the Coney Island Stadium tonight. An attractive program has been arranged.

There will be no show at the Coney Island Stadium this week, according to an announcement made yesterday by officials of the club. The next show will be held on Friday night, Aug. 6, and will be featured by Ace Hudkins, the sensational Omaha lightweight, and Stanislaus Loayza of Chile. Hudkins will not be forgotten in this section for some time, as his début in the metropolitan district was marked by a knockout triumph over Ruby Goldstein.

Roscoe Hall, another Middle Western lightweight, will accompany Hudkins East and both are scheduled to arrive here tomorrow morning. Hall will be seen in the semi-final against a suitable opponent to be named shortly. Hudkins will remain in New York for a few days, but plans to leave for Pompton Lakes, N. J., the latter part of the week to complete his training.

Interest in the featherweight battle, scheduled for the Queensboro Stadium in Long Island City tomorrow night, is keen. Red Chapman, hard-hitting Boston boy, and Babe Herman of California will be the headliners. Al Tripoli, the Yonkers featherweight, will take on Frankie Garcia of Los Angeles. In a special six-round session Sy Schindel of Kingsbridge will oppose Lee Willetts of Freeport.

The two four-round bouts on the program will bring together Danny Smith against Johnny Murton and Lew Moskowitz against Murray Fuchs.

An interesting fistic program, one of the best of the Summer season, has been arranged for the Garden for Thursday night. Benny Bass of Philadelphia, a candidate for Kid Kaplan's vacated crown, will meet Johnny Farr of Cleveland. In the semi-final Lew Tendler, whose last big bout in the New York area was three years ago against Benny Leonard, will appear in the ten-round semi-final against Mickey Forkins. Tendler will be seen as a welterweight. Billy Wallach and Tommy Farley will clash in the opening ten-rounder.

Paul Berlenbach will celebrate his return to action since losing his crown when he engages François Charles, French light-heavyweight champion, in the main bout on the Bensonhurst Community House benefit program at Ebbets Field on Aug. 11.

MISS COLLETT WINS EXHIBITION MATCH

Special to The New York Times.

EASTERN POINT, Conn., July 25.—The eighth annual women's invitation tournament for the Shenecossett Trophy, which opens tomorrow morning on the Shenecossett links, was auspiciously heralded there this afternoon by an exhibition match between Miss Glenna Collett, United States champion and holder of the Shenecossett title, and Miss Bernice Wall, the Oshkosh star, playing as a team against Miss Maureen Orcutt, metropolitan and New Jersey champion, and Miss Helen Payson of Portland, Me., who last Winter annexed the Florida championship. Miss Collett and Miss Wall won on the home green.

The match was a close contest from beginning to end, with Miss Collett and Miss Wall being in the lead from the sixth and making the turn 2 up. Miss Payson, however, made a beautiful putt following a very fine approach shot, and she and Miss Orcutt won the tenth hole.

Miss Collett and Miss Wall were forced to trail along 1 down until the fifteenth, after halving four holes, when Miss Orcutt, who had been going rather badly, especially on her putts, sank a birdie 2, winning the hole and squaring the match. The sixteenth and seventeenth were halved, the playing being rather spotty, and then Miss Collett won her match by a beautiful putt on the eighteenth green, taking the hole, 3 to 4.

The going out scores were: Miss Collett 38, Miss Wall 42, Miss Payson 45 and Miss Orcutt 41. Coming in Miss Collett had 42, Miss Wall 42, Miss Payson 41 and Miss Orcutt 41, a total of 80, 84, 86 and 82, respectively.

Among the many prominent women golfers now here awaiting the opening of tomorrow's tournament are Miss Collett, Miss Wall, Miss Orcutt, Miss Payson, Mrs. Roland Barlow, Philadelphia champion; Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd, former United States, British and Canadian champion; Mrs. D. M. Belcher, Mrs. F. E. Dubois, Westchester Biltmore champion; Mrs. Thomas Hucknall, Mrs. Courtland Smith, Mrs. J. S. Cassriel, former Illinois champion; Mrs. C. Crispin of San Francisco and Miss Dorothy Smith of Pomonok, the junior metropolitan champion.

LAKE ARROWHEAD, Cal., July 25 (AP).—Miss Alice Ryden of the Pasadena Athletic and Country Club set a new American women's record of 112 feet 8 inches for the javelin throw at the annual women's track and field meet here yesterday.

CHICAGO, July 25 (AP).—Charley (Phil) Rosenberg of New York, world's bantamweight champion, signed tonight to defend his title against Bud Taylor of Terre Haute, Ind., in a ten-round contest to a referee's decision here. Promoter Mullen plans to stage the contest in the Cubs' park on the night of Sept. 10, instead of on Labor Day afternoon, as originally planned.

DEMPSEY ON EDGE WAITING FOR FIGHT

Fit for Battle, He Says, and Sees Best Years Ahead—Eats What He Wants.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Col., July 25 (AP).—Pride in his profession and his love for the roar of the crowd are the things urging Jack Dempsey, king of the heavyweights, back into the ring to risk his title, and, incidentally, his revamped nose.

The heavyweight champion has chatted naively, like a boy in his 'teens, with The Associated Press representative who has accompanied him on more than one occasion through the various phases of his preliminary training for the bout in which he will risk his crown next Fall.

From the rubbing table to the breakfast table, from the gymnasium and along the dusty roads, Dempsey has spoken intimately, and has "opened up" as perhaps he never has done since the day seven years ago when he felled the giant Jess Willard in Toledo.

Keeping himself physically fit is a fetish with the champion. "I believe in keeping fit at all times," he explained. "That is my business and that is my philosophy of life just now. I never hold an opponent cheaply and because of that I train rigorously for a bout. The result is that I am in great shape right now. My life has been an open book and I am in wonderful shape today—perhaps better shape than at any previous time for a fight."

"The secret of my success?" Dempsey queried. "Well, that's easy—just attending to my business. Fighting is my line and I don't do anything that interferes with it. It's part of my life, and because of that I devote much of my time to it, like any business man.

"You don't catch a successful merchant going out of business between deals, do you? He's preparing for the next job, and building up his business. That's what I am doing and have been doing. I don't loaf between fights. I build myself up—that's my business."

The champion's diet is an interesting thing. He has no particular prescribed diet. He eats largely what he wants and plenty of it. Wholesome food in copious quantities best describes it. Orange juice, followed by a huge golden cantaloupe, oatmeal, bacon and toast with coffee is a fair sample of his breakfast menu; lunch includes plenty of fresh vegetables, often roast beef and mashed potatoes, while steak is a favorate entrée at night.

AMERICAN YACHTSMEN TRAIL CANADIANS

First Half of International Series Held on Lake St. Louis Results in Close 21-19 Score.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. JOHNS, Quebec, July 25.—At the close of the series of four international yacht races between the crews of the Barnegat Bay Yacht Racing Association of New Jersey and the Royal St. Lawrence Yacht Club on Lake St. Louis this afternoon, the latter club had a total of twenty-one points to nineteen for the Americans. The final half of the series will be held on Barnegat Bay on Sept. 3 and 4.

Under ideal weather conditions today the third race started with a light, full-sail northerly breeze. With the race half over the wind became light and shifting. Tom Horrocks with his American crew won by only seven sconds. Skipper F. Slade Dale took third place for the Americans by a narrow margin giving second and fourth places to the Canadians.

The fourth race resulted in a victory for Commodore Stevenson of the Royal St. Lawrence Yacht Club, a second place for Captain Horrocks and a third for Vice Commodore Whitehead of the Canadian club, Dale finishing fourth.

FARLEY DEFENDS STAND ON DEMPSEY

CALLS VIEW CONSISTENT

Picked Wills Two Years Ago as Contender and Sees No Reason for Change.

With the Jack Dempsey-Gene Tunney fight for the heavyweight championship in Chicago tangled up in a confusion of contracts, James A. Farley Chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission, took occasion yesterday to restate his opposition to holding the battle here and reiterated his demand for a Dempsey-Wills encounter.

Chairman Farley's statement follows:

"The New York State Athletic Commission is charged by law with regulating boxing in this State in the interests of the public which supports professional boxing. Its primary interest is not in the enrichment of boxers, managers, or promoters, however much it may wish them well personally.

"Since it is the object of every boxer to win a championship and of every promoter to stage championship contests, it is obvious that regulatory powers must be exercised over champions and championships, otherwise the commission will fail of its purpose. To this end, the rules of the commission, which are made law by statute, provide in Section VIII that 'a boxer holding a championship must defend the same within a period of six months after winning or defending the title in a bona fide bout to a decision.'

"In support of this regulation the commission has frequently suspended champions in this State because of failure to comply with the rule. Mickey Walker was so disciplined until he met Dave Shade; Charlie Phil Rosenberg is under suspension now because he will not sign with Bushy Graham; Johnny Dundee relinquished his title rather than accept the challenge of Louis Kid Kaplan; Harry Greb fought Tiger Flowers at the commission's order and lost his title; Joe Lynch, a local and popular champion, was set down for failure to meet Abe Goldstein.

Sees Case as Typical.

"These were typical cases in championship divisions other than the heavyweight, and the commission's rulings were supported by press and public in these instances. It was recognized that champions having gained a valuable property in their titles would not risk it against outstanding contenders if they were not forced to. Yet it is just such bouts, with a championship risked and the issue in doubt, that the boxing public most wishes to see.

"There is no reason, to my mind, why the heavyweight division should be a law unto itself, although it is perfectly understandable that promoters and boxers may think so because a heavyweight championship contest usually attracts an enormous gate.

"There may be some dispute—and there usually is—as to who is the outstanding contender. The commission is the agent deputized by law to select such a contender from the group of second-string boxers aiming at a championship. One has to be selected, and having made the selection the commission must abide by it unless it is proved manifestly wrong.

"Having selected Harry Wills as the logical heavyweight contender more than two years ago, and having stated his selection on the several minutes of the meetings of this body, it is my contention that the commission has no reason for changing this stand.

"If the commission is to permit the momentary and changing interests of boxers and promoters to alter its rules, its control of boxing in this State soon will end, and bouts will be arranged with the idea of making championships perpetual, rather than titles, which the public has a right to see contested for every six months, if a logical contender is in sight.

Must Maintain Standard.

"We cannot make one rule for flyweights and another one for heavyweights. We cannot favor one champion against another, even if he is a greater drawing card.

"Judge Landis found it necessary to discipline 'Babe' Ruth, the greatest dawing card in baseball, in order to uphold his authority. In the long run that ruling worked for the best interests of baseball.

"So long as Jack Dempsey refuses to abide by the rulings of this commission, he is under suspension in this State. What he may do elsewhere is of no legal concern to its members. We are authorized to regulate boxing in New York, and not in the entire United States.

"However, under the present law boxing has prospered more in New York than elsewhere; and none has profited to any greater extent under the commission's rule than Tex Rickard and Jack Dempsey. It is the intention of this commission to hold its regulatory powers, which made boxing prosperous, and so to continue that the public may enjoy well-contested bouts, without being subjected to the old-time hoaxes of champions appearing against men who had not a chance in the world of winning."

Rickard Is Optimistic.

CHICAGO, July 25 (AP).—Tex Rickard, without revealing what had transpired to bolster his spirits, seemed to be highly optimistic tonight over solving the legal entanglements and smoothing the way for promoting the heavyweight championship fight between Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney here next September.

Rickard said that the first "definite announcement" may be made tomorrow.

B. E. Clements, Chicago promoter, is proceeding with his announced plans for holding the fight between Dempsey and Harry Wills. He said that Paddy Mullins, manager of the negro challenger, would arrive here tomorrow and that Wills would come on the scene Tuesday.

VAN KEMPEN VICTOR IN MILE BIKE RACE

JAEGER WINS PACED EVENT

Pete Van Kempen, Holland sprinter and all-around champion of Europe, defeated Orlando Piani of Italy and Alois Degraeves, Belgian champion, in two straight heats of a one-mile match race at the New York Velodrome last night before a crowd of 20,000.

Van Kempen took a flier in the first heat and beat Degraeves and Piani to the tape. Going into the last lap, Degraeves cut down on Piani and forced him to the flat of the track. Referee Kramer disqualified Degraeves and fined him $25.

Van Kempen also won the second heat by taking a flier. He caught Piani napping a lap and one-quarter from home and jumped around him, then opened a big gap which the Italian star was unable to close. Piani finished second and Degraeves third in this heat.

Charley Jaeger, Newark, riding an uphill race, won the fifty-mile national motor paced championship race, the eleventh of the series of thirty-six races to decide the motor paced championship of America.

With only two and one-half miles to go, Keenan, who was leading, found the grind too hard and "blew up." Jaeger shot into the lead and won the race in 1:12:52 2-5. Grassin finished second and Keenan was third.

Gabriel Poulain, veteran of France and a former world's champion, making his first appearances in America, lost to Reggie McNamara, the clever six-day rider in two straight heats of a one-mile match race.

McNamara took a flier in the second heat and two and one-half laps from home, he opened up a big gap which Poulain was unable to close and won easily.

Van Kempen won his second race of the night when riding from scratch. He captured the two-mile handicap, beating out Alf Grenda by an eyelash. Reggie NcNamara was third, Tony Beckman, fourth, and Bill Spencer, fifth.

Cecil Walker, American all-around champion, won the one-mile open from Fred Spencer, Harris Horder, George Dempsey, Alois Degraeves and Orlando Piani. Fred Spencer was disqualified for foul riding.

THE WEEK IN SPORTS

Crusader as Three-Year-Old Champion—Yanks and Pirates Favored for Pennants—Record Fleets for Larchmont—Hagen and Smith Won by Putting—United States Now Focus of Tennis Interest

TURF

It must admitted that certain of the so-called Derbies are not without their uses. The affair at Raceland uncovered the deficiencies in the make-up of Carlaris and these were still further developed at Coney Island, which also brought under the spotlight the three-year-old champion of 1926. It matters not that Crusader has not fought it out to a decision with Bubbling Over, the pride of the Idle Hour Farm Stable, which Colonel Bradley believes is another Man o' War. Bubbling Over is, for the present at least, in retirement. His owner is dubious regarding his tendon trouble and he is of the present opinion that Bubbling Over will not carry colors again this season.

Crusader, on the contrary, is fit and ready to meet all comers. It is welcome news that Samuel D. Riddle has no intention of keeping his star under a glass case. If he feels that he has an obligation to the American racing public, then the world of the turf will be so much the richer.

Change From Former Policy.

In sending Crusader to Coney Island to run in the Cincinnati Derby, Mr. Riddle made a great concession and a radical departure from his former practice, having hitherto confined his racing endeavors to the Jockey Club and Maryland courses. Benefit to the turf came through Crusader's race at Cincinnati. His appearance gave Mid-Westerners their first view of a champion son of Man o' War and they appreciated their opportunity. To him they paid full measure of tribute. So it is to be hoped that Crusader will go on to Chicago, there further to confirm the estimate of his greatness.

Crusader raced like a great colt. Earl Sande, a real horseman, said that any boy could have won with him; furthermore, that the son of Man o' War inspired him with the same confidence as had his sire. Crusader was never extended. Only twice did Sande feel required to call upon him, once on each of the turns. No whip was drawn—merely a word of encouragement and a slight relaxation of the stout restraint under which he had been held.

Crusader Did What Was Asked.

On the first occasion Sande desired to make certain of his position off the pace; on the second the time had come to take the measure of Carlaris and clinch the victory. Crusader did what was asked of him and with consummate ease. The colt ran to a new track record of 2:02 flat and had he been subjected to sterner opposition at the end we would have had further measure of his true greatness. Certain it is that he had much in reserve.

It is not impossible that if he had been forced to give his all during the last quarter of a mile he would have shattered Whisk Broom II's doubtful American record of 2:00, which has stood since 1913. Crusader ran his last quarter alone, doing it in 0:25 3-5 easing, and that after having been carried a mile in 1:36 2-5, faster by two-fifths of a second than the mile record for the course.

Display must be respected for his gallant finish. He has apparently regained much of the form that carried him to his Preakness victory last May. Despite his impressive Winter record, Carlaris cannot be conceded class. He met a real horse, which easily took his measure.

In the American Derby of Saturday we will have one more test of three-year-old quality before the stars of that age will gather at Saratoga for the running of the Travers and the other rich stakes for which they are eligible. It is to be hoped that a good field will go to the post in the Washington Park event, for not in a long period have we been favored with so many good three-year-olds.

GOLF

More and more are those who play golf and those who watch golf played being impressed by the fact that in championships certainly and in all competitions generally putting is becoming all-important. There has always been a premium on good putting, but in olden times it was far less than it is now with so many really first-class players and so few first-class putters. Nowadays there are a dozen or more players in every championship who are on a par up to the green, but from there on the equality ends, and the man who can putt or who happens to be putting is the man that wins.

There were two excellent examples of the importance of putting during the past week. One was Hagen's great triumph in the Eastern open championship at Wolf Hollow; the other was Macdonald Smith's equally great triumph over Sarazen in the third and last eighteen-hole play-off for the Metropolitan open championship at Salisbury. It was putting that enabled Hagen to get away to such a lead as the one he opened up on the field in the first two rounds, and it was putting that enabled Smith to register a 66 against Sarazen's 70 in the final round at Salisbury.

Is Putting Over-Emphasized?

There are a great many who hold to the belief that the part played by putting is out of all proportion to the rest of the game. There are those who advocate enlarging the hole so as to reduce putting to where it will not outweigh by so great a margin the play through the fairway. It is doubtful, however, if it will ever be possible to strike a happy medium. The only solution seems to be for the professionals who can't putt to take some lessons from one of the amateurs who can. Taken as a whole, the amateurs seem to excel their salaried brethren in this branch of the game if not in any other.

Hagen's victory at Wolf Hollow, his two rounds of 65-67 which outdid those of Bobby Jones at Sunningdale and his four rounds for an aggregate of 275, lacking only a stroke of equaling what is considered a world's record, was a masterful achievement and one that proves him to be alive and kicking despite his Scioto failure and the long, bleak period when Jones was taking the bows that Walter is in the habit of taking. There is one thing about Hagen. He may be down, but he won't stay down. He always bobs up and generally he bobs up with something worth while.

The victory of Smith over Sarazen brought to an end one of the greatest matches of all time—a great match to win and a hard match to lose. Throughout the 126 holes that the match went before there was any decision Sarazen played not only courageous golf but great golf. His was the kind of golf that would win nine times out of ten. It was better golf than he has ever played, even in his heyday of fame, but it could not prevail against the super-golf of Smith, who twice broke the record for the No. 3 course, once with a 67 and on the last day with a 66 and who averaged 70 4-7 for seven rounds. Sarazen had any number of bad breaks and a perfect right to be discouraged by Smith's miraculous putting, but his head was always up and he was always fighting.

TENNIS

With the return of Vincent Richards and Howard Kinsey from Europe, the home ranks have been completely filled again and the United States once more becomes the focus of the world's interest in tennis. France and Wimbledon have had their day, while the best plums of American tennis remain to be plucked.

At East Hampton, L. I., the latter part of this week Miss Helen Wills will resume tournament play for the first time since she was stricken with appendicitis in June. This event will be significant as revealing what effect her operation has had upon her game and her chances of retaining her title, which she has decided to defend. The metropolitan championship in progress at the Crescent A. C. holds out the promise of a meeting between William Tilden and Richards and leads to Seabright, where, with the possible exception of Tilden, every notable player in the country will participate in the jubilee celebration of the Seabright Lawn Tennis and Cricket Club.

The Davis Cup trials, the East-West matches and the women's national championships follow in order at Forest Hills, and then come the Southampton and Newport invitation fixtures, where the leading men players will gather for the last big tests preliminary to the national championships and the Davis Cup interzone and challenge round matches. The two months of tennis ahead are a full course dinner to set before a king.

Of outstanding interest during the past week was the meeting between Tilden and Edward Chandler at Longwood. So conspicuously has the intercollegiate champion been in the public eye this season that there were undoubtedly some who were inclined to believe that he was ready to make a serious bid for the national title this year. The decisiveness with which Tilden defeated Chandler has undeceived these, and it is possible that it may lead many to question whether the Californian has not been overrated.

For the benefit of the latter, let it be said that there are none who rate Chandler's championship possibilities higher than do the topnotchers themselves. Talk with whatever player you will—William Johnston, Brian Norton and Howard Kinsey particularly—there is none who has not the greatest respect for the smooth, rythmical style and soundly developed all around game of the tall Californian. There may be a difference of opinion among them as to how long it will take him to reach the top, but the general consensus is that he is on his way there.

POLO

The most significant thing about the first of the national tourneys in polo, the Junior, which starts Saturday at Rye, is the scene of the meeting. The Junior Championship has been held on more fields, perhaps, than any of the other national affairs, but the choice of the Westchester Biltmore Country Club this year is significant in that it signalized the entrenchment of the game in a new sector.

Westchester started last year to become prominent, with the holding there of the first college tourney under the newly organized Collegiate Association. This year the Junior tourney is being held there with no representative of the district entered. But it is safe to assume that the holding of the tourney in Westchester will have a good deal to do with stimulating play there.

The list this year holds an entry from Greenwich, a new section so far as national tourneys are concerned, and this is further indication of the spread of the game.

This spread to other fields, particularly to ones of the Metropolitan area, is the result of necessity. Long Island no longer is able to house the game it nurtured in its infancy. Westchester and Connecticut are natural fields to which to turn for players in the New York district.

Along with the scarcity of playing surfaces, there has been a shortage of proper playing mounts. For this reason there is more than usual interest in the immense string of mounts now on the way from England with the Argengentinian and other foreign teams. Lewis Lacey usually has fine ponies and usually leaves many behind him rather than ship them back to South America. Thus there will be nearly as much interest in the performance of the Argentinians' mounts as there will in the men themselves.

CHESS

Playing true to form, José R. Capablanca swept through to victory in the Pan-American tournament last week in a manner to convince even the most doubting that the world's champion once more is performing at his best. Lake Hopatcong, of course, did not offer the competition the champion encountered at Moscow or New York, but even so, the feat of leaving behind such masters as Kupchik, Maroczy, Marshall and Ed Lasker is not to be taken lightly.

In addition to the gilt-edged play of Capablanca, another high-light of the tournament was the excellent work of Kupchik in taking second honors. By his fine performance Kupchik demonstrated he still must be reckoned with as one of the world's first flight players. Maroczy, too, did creditable work.

The two disappointments were Marshall and Lasker, though there were extenuating circumstances for the poor work of both. Before leaving for Lake Hopatcong Marshall confided to a friend that he was in poor shape, but in characteristic manner said he preferred to go through with it rather than back out at the last minute. Too much exhibition work with inferior players, hardly helpful in preparing for master play, had taken the edge off the American champion's game, but with a rest he should be the Marshall of old at the Chicago tourney next month.

Lasker also had good reason to be below form. Occupied by pressing business in New York while the tourney was in progress, the Chicagoan must have found it difficult, indeed, to give his undivided attention to the chessboard. And when one sits opposite a Capablanca under such conditions there can be only one result.

BASEBALL

The major league leaders this morning are the Yankees and the Pirates and it probably would be no surprise at all to thousands of persons if these same teams figued in the melon-cutting at the next world's series. The Cincinnati Reds, chief antagonists of the Pirates, are finding life troublous. In the American League the Yanks are enjoying such a prosperous lead that despair is beginning to settle over their pursuers.

The trouble with the American League is that the seven other teams can't decide which should have the honor of chasing the Yanks. While the Hugmen scamper away with the family jewels under their arm, the posse is arguing in loud tones as to which of them should lead the pursuit. This straw vote has been going on for many weeks and meanwhile the constables are rapidly getting no closer to the fugitive.

A few weeks back it was the White Sox who were leading the pack. Suddenly the Athletics came to life and got to within six games of the Yanks. At this interesting moment the Indians, sneaking along among the posse, caught up with the Athletics, tapped them jovially on the head and, with the A's prostrate, started out after the New Yorkers.

Must Watch the Indians.

At present, then, it looks as if the Yanks will have to keep an eagle eye out for the Cleveland team. The whole thing vindicates Miller Huggins's baseball perspicacity. Recently he predicted that one Western club would flash away on a successful Eastern trip and make the most trouble for the Yanks. Miller was right. The Indians are the team, and unless they follow the example of the Athletics and crack, they will be the Yanks' sturdiest rivals.

The Indians are this much stronger than the Athletics: They have already made two of their three Eastern trips and still have two stays at home. They finish the season at home, the Yanks away from home. In September the Yanks play a five-game series on the Cleveland lot. This may prove to be the pivotal series of the campaign.

The Pirates and Reds are still going along arm in arm, with the Cardinals in the offing. The bitterest episode of the week was the failure of the Giants to keep going at a fast pace. Losing three out of four to the Cubs was no way for a good ball team to act and Manager McGraw was properly incensed. He issued threats of a radical shake-up, involving principally Kelly and Meusel.

All Is Not Well With Pirates.

The Pirates are not offering a sightly picture as world's champions. Something has been wrong all season. Vague reports have been drifting out from Forbes Field. Dissension, it was said, had gripped the players. Fist fights were rumored and also training laxness.

Some color was lent to the tales by McKechnie's action in fining Moore and Yde for indifferent work, same consisting of mechanical errors. Moore, a hero of the world's series, was later waived over to the Braves. As late as Saturday it was announced that Pitcher Morrison had been indefinitely suspended for absenting himself from the team.

Still the Pirates plod along, not suffering from startling opposition and content to play baseball in their own sweet way. They are the favorites of most baseball critics, but in a world's series it is to be feared that they would be hard put to it by the Yanks, who are now models of discretion and determination.

YACHTING

With 181 boats going over the starting line on the last day of Race Week, the Larchmont Yachting Club concluded one of the most brilliant weeks in its history. In all there were 1,019 starters which topped every fixture since the war.

Although light winds prevailed on many of the days of Race Week, the proverbial Larchmont luck came along in time to send the yachts over the courses on the last day in good time.

Larchmont Race Week this year was not graced with good racing breezes except on the first and last days, which were the leading days of the week. At the psychological moment the breeze seemed to come along and helped the boats home for Larchmont's sake.

The attention of the yachting world now turns eastward with several of the New York boats going to Marblehead to try to capture the Eastern Yacht Club Ladies' Plate.

Following this series, the New York R Class boats will stay in Marblehead to start in the Eastern waters to contest for the Manhasset Cup.

This trophy was captured last year by the Eastern Yacht Club when the Yankee, sailed by Charles S. Welch, who will defend the trophy this year, took the majority of races from the Long Island Sound Corinthians.

Yachtsmen were pleased with the closeness of the team race on the Sound yesterday. Only seven points separated the winner from the runner-up and there was just one tally between the No. 2 team and the one that finished third. The racing was of the interesting variety from the start and the fact that the point tally carried this out made the event one of the best of the season from the point of keen competition.

The American Yacht Club placed its three craft in second, third and fifteenth positions and thus was able to carry off the John B. Shethar team trophy in the interclub event. Second place honors went to the Larchmont Club, while Indian Harbor proved a close third. The New York Yacht Club, winner of last week's prize, came in for fourth honors yesterday.

Bill Swan, at the tiller of Wee Betty, brought that craft across the finish line in first place for the Larchmont Club. He was well up at the start and went into the lead when the first mark was rounded. He showed all the way along that he was master of the situation and had little trouble in keeping out in front. On the windward leg he steadily increased his lead and flashed over the finish line better than two minutes in the van.

The nineteen craft that represented the seven clubs which took part in the regatta were eloquent testimony of interclub racing, a type of competition that does not flourish in any other sport. In yachting it is particularly pleasing to see that the contests between clubs are growing in popularity, and followers of the sport are anxious that it develop into even larger event in the near future.

ST. KITTS ELEVEN TRIMS ST. JOHN'S

YEARWOOD MAKES CENTURY

The clever team of St. Kitts Cricketers easily defeated the St. John's eleven by 102 runs in an Intercolonial game at New York Oval yesterday. The bitter rivalry existing stirred up considerable interest, over 1,000 enthusiasts seeing the contest.

The outstanding feature was a grand not-out innings of exactly 100 scored by R. Yearwood, which included six tremendous drives clean out of the ground and seven boundary hits for four runs each. He gave a faultless display and a great exhibition of perfect timing and clever driving, the equal of which has seldom been seen. Upon reaching the century the crowd cheered him.

St. Kitts batted first but wickets fell fast, five men being out for 60 runs. Captain Ted Margetson and R. Yearwood carried the total to 83 before the former was run out, but upon Leader joining Yearwood the bowling was knocked all over and out of the field, the partnership yielding 76 runs before Leader had his wicket shattered by Hurst for a well-played 24.

When St. John's took their turn at the wicket, they found the St. Kitts bowlers in deadly form and little headway could be made. Two men were out for 42, but Richardson and Christopher were sending the ball down with such accuracy that the whole side was dismissed for 84.

NO RADIO BOYCOTT IS APPARENT HERE

DENY PIRATING CHARGE

Those Changing to New Waves Contend Action Was to Avoid Clashes With Others.

Inquiry among radio listeners in New York yesterday failed to disclose any movement here similar to that announced in Chicago Saturday to boycott radio stations which had "jumped" the wave length of other stations since the decision breaking down Federal control of broadcasting let loose confusion in the ether. There is no local organization of listeners here, and if owners of receiving sets intend to act in harmony with the Broadcast Listeners Association of Chicago they apparently are awaiting receipt of the association's "strike call." This call urged members of the organization in all parts of the United States "to go on strike immediately against all unfair stations by refusing to listen to them at any time, under any circumstances."

No one could be reached among the managers of broadcasting stations yesterday who took the Chicago strike call seriously. It was pointed out that since the broadcasting stations distribute their commodity free, and do not come into direct contact with the people who have been patronizing them a "strike" could have little effect. Radio stations would not even know it if they were being tuned out.

Defend Changing Waves.

Executives of broadcasting stations in this district which have changed their wave-length since the collapse of Governmental control asserted that they were not "pirates" and that they had chosen wave-lengths which interfered less with other programs than the ones they formerly had used. Some of them said they thought the situation would right itself shortly.

Among those having this view was Franklin Ford, studio manager of station WHAP, which recently changed its wave length.

"If radio listeners wish to strike against stations which have pirated wave-lengths," said Mr. Ford, "they should act against individual stations which have offended and not institute

Department of Commerce. When they found they must wait eight or nine months until a law was passed before they could get any relief, they felt they must take action themselves. If a station is actually unfair, however, and is interfering with others, that is up to the listeners. They can tune out if they want to.

"But I believe the situation will right itself shortly. If commercial stations which have altered their wave lengths interfere with other stations, advertisers and others using them will discover that their messages are not being heard and will cease patronizing them. Then such stations must reform or drop out."

AUSTRIA TO INTRODUCE RADIO ON FAST TRAINS

If Limited Venture Pays, All Will Be Equipped With Coin Box for Each Traveler.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, July 25.—Radio concerts will be introduced on some trains of the Austrian railways in August. Director General Gunther has concluded an agreement with a Vienna radio company whereby special "radio cars" will be attached to fast trains.

The cars will be fitted with receiving sets for fifty persons and first, second and third class passengers will be able to transfer to these cars and listen in as long as they wish on payment of 13 cents an hour.

Should the public patronage justify it, entire trains will be fitted up with receiving sets, allowing every passenger without leaving his seat to hear the radio by dropping a coin in a slot.

Another innovation under consideration is movies for night passengers. A private company is negotiating for the right to operate a movie car holding sixty persons on the Vienna-Budapest train.

EDDIE FOY GIVES BENEFIT.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., July 25.—More than one thousand persons attended the annual benefit show given this evening by Eddie Foy, vaudeville performer living in this city, at the Knights of Columbus Hall for the St. Joseph's Parochial School.

Civic associations and merchants assisted in the arrangements. An orchestra was supplied by Joe Downing, leader at Proctor's Mount Vernon Theatre, and entertainers who appeared included Lew Brice, Grace Hayes, Ethel Baily, Charlie Foy, Moran & Mack, Harry Fender, "Bugs" Baer, Willie Collier, Salt and Pepper, J. C. Flippin, Al Hermann, Desoretta and Dooley & Sales.

PHANTOM SPEECHES COST PUBLIC $18,697

gave the "straw bosses," as he called the House Administration leaders, his candid opinion of them.

Mr. Yates of Illinois began to get busy in the issue of July 8 when he expressed his disapproval of the activities of Commissioner Frederick A. Fenning of the District of Columbia, whose resignation is now in the hands of President Coolidge. The space bill for this unspoken statement amounted to $47.50. In the issue of July 12, however, Mr. Yates cost the Government $405.50 for four unuttered orations, one a $255 speech which, it was explained, had been delivered on Decoration Day at Moline, Ill. The poetry in this speech alone cost about $40 to set up.

Representative John Philip Hill, leader of the wet forces in the House, is a candidate for the Republican nomination for Senator from Maryland to succeed Senator C. E. Weller. He so informed the vacant chair of the Speaker on pages 13128 and 13129 of The Record of July 12, the taxpayers' toll for the information being $51. Mr. Hill is credited with five unspoken addresses to the Speaker and his space string cost the Government $294.

The floor leaders of the two parties, John Q. Tilson of the majority, and Finis J. Garrett of the minority, both had their say in the record of silence. Mr. Garrett had made a real speech on the Fenning case, and he inserted, as an extension of his remarks, a copy of the Committee on the Judiciary's report of the Fenning investigation. The cost was $493.

Mr. Tilson's $428 Speech.

On the other hand, Mr. Tilson, in the July 2, Representative Ayres of Kanernment cash silently to inform the nation that nothing could be "more disastrous to the best interests of the country than a change of the parties in control of Congress for the next two years."

On page 12722 of The Record of July 2, Representative Ayers of Kansas informed the country that long ago he found out that the industrial East was not much concerned about the agricultural West.

There have been few busier members in the "silent" House than Representative Maurice H. Thatcher of Louisville, Ky. He appears six times as the author of unspoken speeches, the printing of which will cost the taxpayers $601.

Mr. Wefald, of Minnesota, a member of the Farmer-Labor Party, managed to get into the unspoken record space which measures up $646, while Mr. Hammer of North Carolina fills a $506 space. Mr. James of Michigan also makes a good showing with three speeches which call for $870.50 from the Treasury.

Women Members in the Record.

Mrs. Florence Kahn of the Fourth California District rendered in the July 12 issue of the "phantom" record an account of her stewardship in a modest recital of what she had tried to accomplish. Her speech measured $226 in space.

Mrs. Mary T. Nolan of New Jersey, the only Democratic woman member, submitted a report of her stewardship in a $41 space, adding that "in addition to my work in committees and on the floor of the House, I kept regular office hours."

It would take a large book to print the Government's 1926 crop of undelivered speeches in the House. And the list here printed refers only to the "extension of remarks" group. The speeches, reports, &c., inserted during the progress of the session would add a blanket boycott. Many of the stations have changed from disadvantageous wave lengths to lengths which they already had discussed with the thousands upon thousands of dollars to the total.

Asks Warke as Atlantic City Judge.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 25.—Charles I. Lafferty, Atlantic County Democratic leader, announced tonight that he would recommend to Governor Moore tomorrow the appointment of Robert Warke Jr. as district court judge in this city, to succeed Judge Clarence Pettit, who died suddenly last week. Warke has been an assistant county prosecutor for several years.

THE SCREEN

The Sheik Himself.

That crowd milling around the Strand Theatre yesterday wasn't watching a fight or even a fire, but merely trying to see the sheik of California before he vanished through a side entrance under a police guard. The sands of the desert weren't any hotter than the crowd which stood in the sun and stretched around the corners nearly to Eighth Avenue, waiting to see if "The Son of the Sheik" were as good as his old man in running away with maidens who wandered carelessly into the desert, but they stuck to it and crowded the Strand to its storm doors.

Valentino was there in person to see, as he said, if the sheik's offspring were as popular as his father, and that was responsible for the police lines. And, be it said, to those who like that sort of romantic picture, the latest Valentino effort is full of desert rough stuff and bully fights. It is patterned rather closely on "The Sheik," for when one has as excellent a recipe as that for a box office attraction what use is there in violating the tradition?

Instead of an English girl, whom his father picked off a horse and made rather rude and hasty love to, the sheik's son falls in love with a traveling dancer, the daughter of a French rascal who leads a troupe of mountebanks and thieves. He makes love to her in the same unrestrained way that made his father such an excellent desert hero, but is captured by the girl's father and tortured. He is led to believe that she tricked him, and so takes a rather primitive and sheikish revenge, and the picture fades out as she is retreating toward a couch, with Valentino advancing in a way which leaves no doubt as to his intentions, which, to say the least, were not honorable.

He learns eventually that she really loved him, and so goes to bring her back to his desert kingdom, where he is heir apparent to the throne, and the tribes of his romantic parent. But before that is accomplished there is some wild riding and fighting which leaves no doubt in the minds of any one that if Valentino really tackled that Chicago editor who said such unkind things about him there would be little doubt about the outcome. This sheik has an arm which would do credit to a pugilist and a most careless way of hurling himself off balconies and on and off horses. One leap from a balcony to a swinging chandelier is as good as anything Douglas Fairbanks ever did, and it is nothing for the young sheik to stand off twenty or thirty bandits with knives and a yearning for his blood.

In its setting of desert sands, those picturesque mounds and valleys formed by the wind, this latest offering of Valentino makes a very good romantic picture. It is a Western thriller in an Arabian atmosphere, except for the exotic Eastern love affair, which no noble hero of the wide, open spaces of the West would ever be let in for in moving pictures, no matter how much he really felt like it. Not even Tom Mix's horse would be caught in a situation like that. There are some humorous episodes, in which the actor who played that delightful idiot, Slim, in "The Big Parade," is the centre. Karl Dane as Slim makes as funny an Arab as he did a member of the A. E. F.

The German tradition received somewhat of a setback yesterday, for "The Waltz Dream" proved to be as light and fluffy a thing as any production sent out of Hollywood. It even limped at times, as if unsure of where it was going, which is the last thing any one would expect from the recent productions of the German studios, which have been sending to this country some extraordinary examples of realistic film art. The story, of course, is merely the romantic stuff of which operettas are made, structures on which to hang a musical score, and it hardly stood up under the glare of the studio lights.

But within those limitations the picture provided a delicate and at times amusing entertainment. It concerns a young Lieutenant of Vienna who was induced to take a chilly princess out for a drive and instead took her to a wine festival. Under the inspiration of a few glasses of new wine, she thawed to such an extent that he kissed her, and as she had been told that a kiss was a proposal of marriage, something which the Lieutenant's experience had never led him to believe, he found himself married almost before he knew it. The direful effects of a preposterous court etiquette upon the poor Lieutenant, and an interlude with a little Viennese girl who thinks him anything but a prince consort, lead to the usual saccharine musical comedy ending.

There is hardly anything in the picture to suggest that it came from Germany, except the names of those in the cast, none of which were ever heard of here before. They are quite good, however, and at times very amusing, and Mady Christians, who plays the chilly princess, is not only pretty but artlessly charming, particularly when she gets tight at the wine festival. No more irresponsible and jolly princess ever shied a hat at a Lord Chamberlain.

GOLDMAN PLAYS ON MALL.

The Goldman Band, directed by Edwin Franko Goldman, gave a program from some of the best composers on the Mall at Central Park last evening. They began with Wagner's march from "Tannhäuser." Later on Sibelius's tone poem, "Finlandia," which sounds particularly well in the band parts, made its customary effect. Two favorite numbers by Tchaikovsky added to the enjoyment of the large audience. They were the "Andante Cantabile" and the "1812" overture.

Tonight at the campus of New York University the Goldman Band will present an English program.

Josiah Zuro and his Sunday Symphonic Orchestra gave their second concert on the Mall, at Central Park, last Saturday evening. The program began with the "Meistersinger" overture, which was followed by the second movement of Tchaikovsky's Fifth Symphony. Other numbers were by Borodin, Bizet, Strauss, Ipolitoff-Ivanoff and Jarnefelt. The place of Miriam Lax, absent through illness, was taken by Inga Wank, contralto, who sang the air from "Samson and Delilah," ("My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice.") The remaining orchestral selections were by Delibes, Bizet and Tchaikovsky.

JOYCE HAWLEY TAKES POISON IN CHICAGO

She Says It Was an Overdose of Sleeping Potion—Father Calls It Advertising.

CHICAGO, July 25 (AP).—Recovering from an overdose of a sleeping potion, in the county hospital tonight, Joyce Hawley, "the bath tub girl," declared vehemently that she had no intention of committing suicide when she took the medicine last night in her hotel room.

She was discharged a week ago from her cabaret job in Morton Grove, a suburb, when village officials protested to the tavern keeper, and tonight she admitted she was "flat broke" and "scared to die." Her dismissal resulted from publicity over her recent arrest for disregarding traffic signals and talking back to the police.

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Daugelas, went to the hospital to see her, but her father declared her present predicament seemed to him "another advertising stunt."

Joyce said she was starting out for a walk last night from her hotel with an army officer, when she was affronted by the remarks of a man in front of the hotel and she returned to her room. Unable to go to sleep, she took three doses of sleeping powder, which, instead of quieting her, brought on hysteria.

Physicians said her condition was not serious.

MOZART GEM AT STADIUM.

The Philharmonic Orchestra presented Mozart's "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik," for the first time at the Stadium last evening. This charming orchestral piece, entirely for strings, carried the Mozart label in every phrase. No one could have mistaken its source; the workmanship bore the imprint of the master's genius. The Philharmonic, directed by Willem van Hoogstraten, gave the four movements meticulous care. The evening was favorable, and every note carried to the attentive audience. The romanza and the final rondo, with its brilliant finish, made the greatest impression, and resulted in an encore. Humperdinck's Dream Pantomine, from "Hänsel and Gretel," and Beethoven's overture to "Egmont" completed the first part of the program.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"Americana" will have its premier tonight at the Belmont Theatre, and the second edition of "A Night in Paris" will be shown at the Forty-fourth Street.

Brock Pemberton has decided upon Monday, Aug. 16, as the opening date for Sam Janney's comedy, "Came the Dawn!" That will be the sixth anniversary of the opening of "Enter Madame," with which Mr. Pemberton made his debut as a producer.

"Miss Manhattan," described as a "toy revue," is being sponsored by Walter Kenny and Joseph Felco, in association with Miller and Goldreyer. The lyrics and music are by Paul Fuller, and the comedy numbers by Mr. Kenny and Mr. Fuller. Dorothy Appleby, last seen in "Square Crooks," and Adah Howard are featured in the cast of "Miss Manhattan," which will be presented at Asbury Park in two weeks.

John L. Shine is now in London arranging for the production here of "Autumn Fire," a British success, in which he will play the leading role acted abroad by his brother, Wilfred Shine.

Openings out of town tonight include "Love 'Em, Cowboy" in Asbury Park; "The Push Over" in Long Branch, and "My Country" in Atlantic City.

"Shucks," Martin Flavin's comedy, which was recently tried out, is announced for October presentation by Sam. H. Harris. Mr. Flavin's "Children of the Moon" will be produced at the Little Theatre in London this season.

Starting Thursday night Barrie's "Alice Sit-by-the-Fire" will be revived for the tenth time by the Washington Square Players as the next production of a series of Shaw and Barrie works being staged at the University Playhouse, 100 Washington Square East.

Nick Long Jr. has recovered from an injury he suffered last Wednesday night. He returns to the cast of "Kitty's Kisses" tonight.

"Is Zat So?" tonight enters upon the last week of its New York engagement.

"Laff That Off" is continuing at Wallack's Theatre, where it starts its thirty-ninth week tonight.

Fowler and Tamara left the cast of George White's "Scandals" on Saturday night. In September they will sail for an appearance at the Kit Kat Club in London and until that time they may dance in vaudeville.

Sixty brunettes—"Italian in type," according to the announcement—are wanted by Florenz Ziegfeld for a new musical production. The call is for Wednesday, Aug. 4, at the Ziegfeld offices.

MUSIC NOTES.

Esther Dale is singing this month at the Hollywood Bowl concerts. She will give concerts in Chicago and Pittsburgh, Kansas, and will return to the Adirondacks in September.

Geza De Kresz, the Hungarian violinist, who will make his New York debut assisting Mary Garden in the first of the Roosevelt recitals, was a pupil of Eugene Ysaye. He was for many years court violinist to Carmen Sylva, Queen of Rumania. After her death, he spent several years in Berlin and went to Canada in 1923 as a member of the Hart House String Quartet at the University of Toronto.

Mme. Denyse Bascouret, now in New York preparing for her American concerts, received the Prix d'Honneur of the Paris Conservatoire. She was engaged by the Lamoureux Orchestra as soloist for its Beethoven anniversary concerts.

WATER DRINKING FOR RHEUMATISM AND INDIGESTION

Indigestion and rheumatism are claimed to be "acid" ailments. When food is not normally digested, the accumulating residue generates acids which cause nausea, derangements, sickness and pain. Drinking quantities of water flushes the system and helps to dissolve and remove these acids.

Geyser, the natural mineral water, bottled under State supervision at the famous State Owned Geyser spring at Saratoga, is so formulated in nature's laboratory that it neutralizes acidity, consequently it has marked success in relieving indigestion and rheumatic acids. Treating indigestion and rheumatism by water drinking is often nauseating because of the quantity of water required. It requires less of Geyser water because of its medicinal potency and specific action on acids. Geyser is sparkling, very delicious and refreshing.

Hathorn, the natural laxative water from the State Owned Saratoga Hathorn No. 2 spring, is also very useful in the treatment of rheumatism and indigestion through its stimulation of the eliminative processes. It is a gentle, thorough, internal cleanser. Best results when taken upon arising. Its action is pleasantly normal.

STONES ACROSS THE SEA.

Moderate and prudent men in England, France and the United States seem to have come to the conclusion, all about at the same time, that this sudden stone-throwing across the Atlantic ought to be stopped. There are too many glass houses on either side. If the hurling of taunts and bitter epithets over the waters is not soon checked we shall all find ourselves going from bad to worse. Insulting treatment of Americans in Paris has drawn from Senator Reed of Pennsylvania the threat to boycott France. He would have all American tourists leave France at once. Then the French innkeepers and shopkeepers might come to their senses. If this is meant as commercial advice, it looks to a policy of taking away from a debtor part of his income and then demanding more fiercely than ever that he pay up. If it is a diplomatic move which Senator Reed has in mind the folly of it ought to be apparent even in darkest Pennsylvania.

Senator Borah, the great pacifist, the passionate lover of all mankind, eagerly snuffs this new battle from afar. He would give our transatlantic vilifiers as good as they send. To meet Winston Churchill in the gate and convict him of a sly and sinister campaign to bring about the cancellation of the British debt to America would delight the Idaho Senator. He would apparently be only too happy to take the matter into his speech-making plans and to make every hall that he hires ring with charges of British perfidy, French hypocrisy and Italian deceit. This would be a fine way of making differences about international questions cease at the water's edge!

The very beginnings of this plan of verbal bombardment and exchange of recriminations are at once seen to be so insensate that no one but fools or madmen will keep them up much longer. They are too full of mischief, too dangerous for all concerned. The harm done is already great. No one denies that the evil exists. An undeniable mistrust, a feeling of exacerbation, has come into view. But what is the wise course to pursue regarding it? Shall we recklessly inflame it? Shall we turn a temporary quarrel into permanent animosity? The questions answer themselves.

We do not need to shut our eyes to the facts, but we should deal with them patiently and in a large-minded way. Too much is at stake in the future to allow this present friction to develop into heat and hatred. By keeping still for a while, by ignoring what it is a mistake to exaggerate, we may save our temper and our strength for the coming day when all these petty misunderstandings and irritations shall be put aside and forgotten in the presence of a new and large and sagacious adjustment of the whole troublesome issue of the war debts.

THE FLAMING BANNER.

Even in the heats William Allen White longs to get "het up" morally again. "What a joy," he cries, "it would be to get out and raise the flaming banner of righteousness!" Unfortunately, Kansas has given up bleeding for feeding. She has waxed fat. So have some of the former banner-bearers of righteousness. Kansas "has just produced a record crop "of wheat which is selling at a price "that will yield a fair profit," says Mr. White's Emporia Gazette. The wheat farmer is too happy for righteousness to have any chance. If there should be another rainy week, the Kansas corn crop will be "so big "that we will have to run a scaffold "in around the stake to keep the "corn from running over. Probably "the price of corn will yield a profit. "The price of hogs is rosy." In short, Kansas "was never in such splendid economic condition as she is today."

This is pleasant to the materialists; but the flaming banner of righteousness is fading and getting threadbare on the wall. In The Wichita Eagle, Victor Murdock, whose hands are calloused with long carrying of the flagstaff of flame, fears the worst. What if there should be a "bumper" corn crop in Kansas this year? It would put money in the Sunflower purse:

> It would exalt our good opinion of ourselves. It would make us the object of universal and flattering envy. But it would jazz us mentally for the next forty years, perch us on a peak that would thereafter disorder our entire perspective and unjustly diminish the proper proportions of the scenery for a generation.

It may be doubted if Kansas's discriminating sense of self-appreciation could be exalted, and it is not her prosperity, but her righteousness, that the good in the world envy; but who would dare to trot out the once flaming banner if she should suffer from an abundance of corn and wheat? Mr. White saw the danger. He foresaw the blazing days of last week. About the middle of it "the wind will begin "to get hot and cut the corn crop "estimates in two," so "Victor is fretting about the impossible." Mr. White is an experienced farmer. He knows a cantaloupe from a turnip—though they are usually sisters under their skins—in no matter what direction of the Kansas zephyrs. "The "time to worry about a big corn crop "is not in May, June or July, but "rather along in middle or late "August."

So there is still hope that the corn crop will keep getting smaller and smaller. "Bill" looks at his check book. There is a mist before his eyes as they range over the tattered banner that drapes dejectedly his thought-boudoir. No worry about disastrous well-being for a month or so. Why not be a candidate for Governor again next Fall? Why, instead of raising the flaming banner, do "we sit in our "offices and do unimportant things "and go home at night and think humdrum thoughts, with the gorge in us "kicking like a mule all the time?" Why, indeed? Up with the banner and out with the Ford!

FINANCIAL SERVITUDE.

In Paris, irrespective of political parties, the phrase runs that France is prepared to pay her just debts, but not at the price of her liberties. She is ready to make every effort to save the franc, but not at the cost of "enslavement" to foreign capital. M. Herriot last week went so far as to reject the suggestion of a foreign loan for the purpose of stabilizing the national currency. Frenchmen never, never will be slaves to any American bankers that may come along with the offer of half a billion dollars. What profits it a nation to save its financial and economic system and lose its freedom? There is a familiar note to this talk of enslavement. The last time it was sounded in Europe by a great people was in Germany when the Dawes plan was put into effect. German Nationalists rose in a mighty vocal rebellion against the new allied servitude imposed in the form of a series of reparation schedules accompanied by a $200,000,000 loan.

That Germany has not been quite reduced to peonage and misery by the Dawes plan is a matter of fairly common knowledge. The evil days of financial chaos are behind her. With fiscal stability has come a sense of political balance which has enabled the German people to meet and solve troublesome internal problems as they arose. The news no longer features foreign relief agencies combating German destitution. Millions of Germans of the middle and professional classes have been enabled to lift themselves out of an impoverishment fed by inflation. The facts are even more striking in the case of Austria and Hungary, where, in an actual sense, the national liberties were curtailed under League of Nations tutelage. Vienna and Budapest had to submit to foreign financial administrators, with the result that Austria and Hungary are now discharged from under the doctor's care, cured, and masters once more of their own fate.

Sober opinion in Germany decided to forget the ultimate "impossibility" of the Dawes plan and to concentrate on the immediate benefits deducible from a stabilized situation and foreign financial aid. France might do well to forget the servitude implied in the debt settlement schedules and reflect on the immediate advantages of stabilization and a big American loan. No one knows what the years will do to the debt schedules, but every one knows what the present chaos, if continued, will do to the entire French economic system. The merchant who gets a loan from the bank hardly regards himself as the slave of his banker. The nation that recovers its financial and business health with the aid of foreign loans can well afford to submit to that kind of slavery. Before the war it was America that was enslaved to European capital to the extent of several hundred million dollars a year in interest, and the devastating effect of such enslavement on America's position is notorious.

Berlin used to take words, and Paris now does, from the vocabulary of Soviet Moscow, which is fond of dilating on an enslaved Europe dragged behind the chariot of American capitalism and imperialism. Yet it will be noted that Moscow is exceedingly eager for a dose of American enslavement for itself. In return for foreign loans the Soviet Government is ready to promise many things.

THE TEXAS PRIMARY.

The assured defeat of Governor Miriam A. Ferguson in Saturday's Democratic primary in Texas will, if the late returns show her opponent has obtained a clear majority of the whole vote cast, so that there need be no "run-off" primary, put an end to a political episode out of which few, whether in the State or outside it, can have got much satisfaction. The discontent with the Governor was not because she was a woman. The main trouble was that she was too loyal a wife. Not confident of her own ability, she turned over many important questions to her husband, the discredited ex-Governor. He is understood to have seized the opportunity to build up for himself a powerful political machine. His hopes of final vindication by the re-election of Mrs. Ferguson, and finally by a return himself to the Governor's chair, have scarcely been concealed. But those ambitious and rosy plans seem now to be dashed to the earth.

Her first election Mrs. Ferguson owed to a worthy and honorable feeling on the part of the people of Texas that they must use any weapon within reach in order to smash the arrogant Ku Klux Klan. That was done, though the cost was heavy. A part of the price paid was a State Administration feeble, vacillating and open all the time to the charge of personal dictation. Doubtless the Klan will assert that it has now taken vengeance on Governor Ferguson. In the primary it is said to have supported her chief opponent, Attorney General Moody, though he did not invite its aid, and, in fact, openly antagonized it in his campaign speeches. The probabilities are that the Klan is rapidly losing political influence in Texas, as everywhere else. The primary election really turned on other and larger issues. The result registers a popular dissatisfaction with Governor Ferguson which has long been evident. She will lose her office, not as a woman, but as an inefficient and disappointing Governor.

NORTH CAROLINA ROADS AND SCHOOLS.

North Carolina not only has progressed amazingly during the last decade or more, but has seen to it that her advance has been made known to an otherwise ignorant world. What she has done has, indeed, deserved recognition. One of the results of her emphasis on the building of roads, for example, has recently been pointed out by her State Superintendent of Instruction. He remarked that the quickening of the rural school system of the State had been made possible by the road program started in 1921. Good roads facilitated the consolidation of school districts. They also increased the attendance at school by making possible the establishment of bus lines to carry the children to and from the schools. As a result, many small schools not efficiently operated could be abolished, and more attention was concentrated on developing the combined schools. The number of schools for whites having two or more teachers increased threefold, and the number of schools for negroes having two or more teachers increased eightfold.

The dependence of the educational system on the status of the roads has not always been obvious to advocates of good roads throughout the country. To be sure, the foresight and energy which North Carolina has shown in carrying out an improved educational program are as important as the wisdom in planning and executing the road program. But it is becoming apparent that we are turning again to roads as great factors in the economic and social development of the country. George Washington, who was one of the few Americans to think in terms of empire, understood this a hundred and fifty or more years ago, and throughout his life of public service tried to make his countrymen realize that roads were the skeleton of the State and that on good roads depended the economic progress and the welfare of the people. Shortly after his death canals were hailed as the great means of communication, and no sooner had these been started than the railroads promised to outstrip the canals. With the development of the automobile the emphasis has shifted again to roads. North Carolina has now dramatized the value of a constructive road program in enriching and developing an entire community. Ten years ago the greater portion of that State, barring a few main highways, had so-called roads of clay or sand, which were occasionally traversable by motor, but too often were either so bumpy and buried in dust, or so sticky and covered with mud, that travel was slow and unprofitable. They differed little from the roads in that same State a hundred years before. The highway improvements during the last few years are only beginning to have their reaction on the general development of the State. Already they have justified the heavy expenditure on them, and are giving an example to others of the far-reaching effects of good communications wisely planned.

ANOTHER RAILROAD MERGER.

Just as the Van Sweringen railway combination appears to be on the point of a readjustment that will meet the demands of the Interstate Commerce Commission, that body receives an application to sanction another huge railway consolidation. This one, organized and proposed by Mr. Loree, happens to be almost identical with a combination of lines which the Interstate Commerce Commission itself had tentatively approved. It is stated, moreover, that the Loree plans have been framed with the express intent of avoiding the criticisms which were successfully made of the Van Sweringen project. The rights of minority stockholders have been scrupulously guarded. There are to be no huge profits on paper through the issue of new securities. The great aim is avowed to be the linking together of three railway systems in the Southwest having a total mileage of nearly 6,000 miles, so as to secure economies of management at the same time with increased facilities for serving the public.

Naturally, the Interstate Commerce Commission will closely scrutinize the merger before allowing it to take effect. It is expected that a decision may be reached within a month, since the principles underlying the case are well established. Congress has deliberately and fully authorized the very kind of railway consolidation which it once sought to penalize. It is another sign that the country has come to acquiesce in the view that big industrial units, if properly administered and controlled, yield great advantages for all concerned. The proof is yet to come in the railway business, but it is at least a plausible argument that what has been done so successfully in other fields can be done there. If the Loree merger is approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission, others will doubtless follow. They will be voluntary, not "compulsory" as there has been talk in Congress of making them. Railway executives have a way of anticipating lawmakers.

MR. (JEREMIAH) SMITH.

Chesterton tells in one of his essays of a "sensible sub-editor" who came to him with a book in his hand called "Mr. Smith," or some such thing, and saying: "Well, you won't "get any of your damned mysticism "out of this." But he soon undeceived the sub-editor; the victory was too obvious, the very name Smith being "so "poetical that it must be an arduous "and heroic matter to live up to it." It could claim "half the glory of that "arma virumque which all epics ac-"claimed." Mr. Jeremiah Smith, who finds his name emblazoned over the front page of his American home papers, has made it an even more arduous and heroic matter to live up to the name which he inherited, and to which he has given a unique distinction by making a whole nation his debtor and yet refusing to take a dollar of what his debtors were ready to pay him.

"It would be very natural," Chesterton went on to say, "if a certain "hauteur, a certain carriage of the "head, a certain curl of the lip," distinguished every one whose name is Smith. But this American savior of Hungary is "modestly perturbed" by the attention which he has received from his countrymen. So accustomed had he become to reducing or canceling appropriations by the Hungarian Diet that he treated the allowances to himself in the same way. Altogether he behaved so modestly, generously and gallantly that he has endeared himself at home as well as abroad. It would be a great good fortune for the country if he were "to join the army of the employed," in continuing public service. He said that he wouldn't have left his job in Hungary "if the work wasn't all done." But there are things to be done at home. Such experience in service for other countries was an admirable preparation for service for one's own country.

SYNCHRONIZATION.

Einstein, the German physicist and member of the Committee on Intellectual Cooperation of the League of Nations, is proposing "the synchron-"ization of the electrical pulse of the "world," with a view to bringing into exact tune with each other all astronomical, telegraphic and radio instruments. The reason for urging this close and unusual synchronization is that time instruments, accurate to microscopic fractions of seconds, frequently determine the success or failure of important scientific work, govern industrial processes involving millions of dollars and even guard the safety of human lives. To bring this about the cooperation of wireless service will be necessary, and that will be effected only by the intervention and assistance of Governments. The United States is not officially represented on the committee, though there is at least one American in that distinguished body of scholars. It is not likely, however, that any Government of a highly civilized people could refuse to bring itself into tune with the rest of the nations. Lowell assumed a certain rhythmic coordination in the physical forces when he spoke of Heaven's trying the earth "if it be in tune." But this proposal is to bring man's artificial instruments into rhythm and tune.

That there would be practical value in this synchronization one infers from the fact that the proposal comes from such an eminent authority and goes to a body of highest standing in the intellectual world. But it is especially appealing in its suggestion of something of a higher human value; namely, that mankind has this commodity, time, in common, and of a majestic ordering of the spheres. "Our "poor human hour, which rules our "meals and all the little actions of "our little lives," acquires a nobility from the fact that it is meted out to us by sun and stars—"a direct and urgent fragrance of infinity," as Maeterlinck has expressed it. To be sure, it seems to travel at divers paces, from ambling to trotting and galloping, but it is at its source the same yesterday, today and forever for all. It tells us eventually that we are all mortal, but it tells us daily that we are, in history and destiny, one race. We but need the most accurate of instruments to keep us in tune. That this proposal comes of scientific and not poetic suggestion gives it a physical import, but its spiritual significance rises above its utility.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Kentuck's Chivalry Vindicated.

Three long, loud cheers for Governor William J. Fields of Kentucky! And three more, longer and louder, with tigers, for Martha Bates of the same State.

It seems that, not long ago, while Martha, good girl that she is, was attending church in the village of Millstone, the preacher, one Arlie Brown, of the Baptist persuasion, was moved, in the course of his sermon, to make the large statement that no virtuous woman would bob her hair. As it happened, Martha's hair is bobbed. She waited a moment after the Rev. Mr. Brown had pronounced his judgment on such as she; and, finding that nobody else had the courage or decency to do anything about it, she rose from her seat, walked quietly up the aisle and slapped the parson's face.

Naturally, there was excitement then in the little church, and it ended in Martha's arrest—for just what is not stated in the dispatches, but presumably for disturbing a religious service, though it may have been for assault and battery. However that may have been, Martha was put on trial in a District Court, convicted for whatever she was charged with, and sentenced to forty days in jail. And the girl actually was locked up!

By the time she had served seventeen days, Governor Fields heard of the affair, ordered an investigation and, after hearing a report from his Pardon Commissioner—also, by the way, a woman with bobbed hair—he not only issued a pardon for Martha but took pains to make some emphatic remarks about "pulpit cowardice" as among the gravest and meanest of sins, and to say that he highly approved of what Martha did.

There Should Be More to Follow.

Perhaps Governor Fields went a bit too far in commending Martha Bates for slapping the parson's face; but how easy it is to forgive him! On general principles, of course, her action was technically indefensible. Just the same, probably nothing would have been done to the Rev. Arlie Brown if she had not done what she did; and it was well that he, and others like him, should learn that there are limits to their right or privilege to make their private opinions and tastes the standards of righteousness.

His words tended highly to provoke breaches of the peace, if his hearers chanced to include anybody of prompt reaction to insult and slander. He is under no obligation to like the bobbing of women's hair, and he is not alone in disliking it. There would have been no objection to his expressing from the pulpit his dislike; but when he proceeded to condemn the morals of all the women who choose to exercise an indubitable and inalienable right to wear their hair as they choose, then he invited attack.

It is a pity that the matter should end with Martha's release on a pardon. The chief offender, if there were two, and the only offender, if there was but one, was the Rev. Mr. Brown, and Governor Fields should be ingenious enough as a lawyer to find a law under which the real misdemeanant can be punished at least as severely as Martha was.

Nobody Ever Told Him!

Captain Hartley of the Leviathan seems to be a humorist. Interrogated as to what basis there was for the current accusation that there have been sales of the Demon on his ship, the Captain denied it passionately. His word is as good as anybody's and it must be accepted, for presumably he added, or intended to add, "to my knowledge" to his denial. He must have had some difficulty, however, in offering the argument he did as proof that the Leviathan has been thoroughly dry as prohibitionists understand that word.

He said that passengers often had come to him, asking if liquor was sold on board, and always he had told them "No," with an earnest exhortation, if they should discover anybody committing this sin, that they should report it instantly to him.

"And never once has anybody done so!" he gravely told the interviewer.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

We cannot but feel grateful to you for publishing the letter from Poultney Bigelow on "The Star-Spangled Banner," since it sends Irish stock up 100 per cent. in the patriotic "market." Of course, the gentleman thinks he is taking a slap at the Irish, but he doesn't know what a fine compliment he has paid them for standing up for our national anthem, and I rather imagine the readers of The Times will so regard it. Thanks, very much. The more letters of that kind you publish the more the Irish in America will enjoy them.

THE FRENCH VIEWPOINT.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The letter in The Times of July 23 giving the French viewpoint regarding treatment of American tourists at the present time will be appreciated by those having some understanding of the psychology of this proud, brilliant and delicate race. That the French are poor propagandists is perhaps their misfortune, but it is no reflection on their national character.

During the war, when other Europeans were often servile in their attention to and flattery of Americans in Paris, I was more than once reminded of King Lear's daughters, with France in the rôle of Cordelia, choosing under the circumstances to be misunderstood rather than to truckle!

"Why should the Americans be expected to come into a European war?" I heard a French girl retort, in exasperation, at the constant reminders of the English and Russians of what France, forsooth, had done for us! "I wouldn't stir a step if I were in their place!"

And again, after listening with the sometimes icy politeness of his people to obsequious praise of our "young nation," a Frenchman startled every one in the room by saying that, for his part, he was bored to death by that sort of talk, and would as soon the "Transatlantics" stayed at home.

I distinctly recall my own sentiments at the time regarding this attitude, feeling it to be provocative and hare-brained. But I have had the inestimable privilege of knowing a good many French people at rather closer range than many Americans, to the consequent stimulation of my own (American) ideals. A people who open their art schools free to all the world, who raise monuments to the truly great of every race, who name their streets and quais and squares not for potentates and kings, as such, but in honor of human achievement; who place the emphasis everywhere upon liberty and progress, may, indeed, have their weaknesses and limitations in the field of politics and finance (as had the ancient Greeks), but it is certain, at the same time, their spiritual vision is sure and their sense of the eternal verities sound.

GENEVIEVE GRANDCOURT.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Several millions of us are just now aghast at our sudden and unsuspected unpopularity with our English cousins on account of the international debt situation and the uncomplimentary epithets applied to us by these our one-time friends.

Nations are, of course, just a lot of individuals, and if any of us will recall our personal experiences in lending to friends, I fancy we will find a fairly close parallel to the present international situation.

I am much too ignorant of the ethical questions involved to attempt a discussion of them, but the whole matter is strongly reminiscent of an incident in the Chicago Press Club some years ago.

A group was lounging in the smoking room when somebody spoke of an absent member whose peculiarities had made him generally disliked. Finally one man, more outspoken than the others, said:

"Well, I hope we've seen the last of him, * * *" using the unprintable "fighting" epithet.

Protests followed and a number of men insisted that such language should not be used concerning any man.

Finally individuals began to give their opinions as to what made a man a ——.

Somewhat apart from the others, hunched almost upon his shoulders in a great lounging chair and apparently asleep, was the huge, shapeless form of the teller of tales of the old Southwest, a man notoriously careless of money, whether as debtor or creditor.

Finally one of the others addressed him:

"Opie, tell us what's your idea of a ——?"

With the change of never a muscle, not even opening his eyes, the rumbling answer came:

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Referring to Mr. Allan Stewart's letter under "Viewpoints" in your edition of July 23, the writer would be very much interested in knowing what our tariff wall has to do with the restricted output of rubber by the English Government. The undersigned believes that it is unconstitutional to exact any impost on any export whatsoever from this country, nor would it be constitutional to restrict the quantity of any commodity in the same manner as the English Government has done with rubber. When did our Government corner cotton and copper?

MY AIREDALE.

My Airedale is a dreadful beast—
It is his great delight to feast
On creatures that are long deceased
And smelling.
He searches all the closets, too,
And hunts him out a nice new shoe,
And settles down, nor cares if you
Are yelling.

My Airedale roams the countryside,
And ranges through the landscape wide,
And won't come home until he's tied
And dragged there.
He's often rushed with muddy feet
To welcome guests who are quite neat,
And on their laps he's taken seat
And wagged there.

My Airedale looks at me with eyes
That make me gulp, though none denies
He barks until he rings the skies
Sometimes my man says he must go,
And I agree, but well we know
That we are saying that for show—
We love him!

My Airedale has no soul, they say—
He's nothing but a lump of clay.
Perhaps. But when we reach the day
We sunder,
And near the golden gate I get,
I'll see him wriggling up, I'll bet,
And some good soul, within, will let Him under.

It Reads The Times and Uses Common Sense, Easterner Finds.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

After attending the convention of the American Bar Association recently held in Denver, I have been touring the beautiful State of Colorado as the guest of my cousin, former District Attorney Lee W. Burgess of Grand Junction, now President of the Mesa County Bar Association. I have been interested to note the large number of subscribers to The New York Times out here, who receive their newspapers only two days late.

The people are well posted on Eastern affairs, know just how many fish their President is able to catch daily, can talk accurately about the New York subway strike and are much interested in New York's popular Governor—Al Smith. His recent meeting with President Coolidge, when the latter was officially welcomed to the Empire State, has been the subject of universal comment. Everybody wanted to receive the round by round account of the Delaney-Berlenbach boxing bout, just held in Brooklyn, and it seems to have aroused as much interest in some circles as a Presidential election. Jack Dempsey is training at Colorado Springs. In fact, he is reported to have started his boxing career here in Grand Junction.

I find the West a wide-awake, vigorous pulsating country—not so progressive but that it is tempered with common sense. They seem to want to rid themselves of that child of the West—direct primaries. It has not produced satisfactory results. Their farmers are not as badly off as some of their Congressmen would lead them to believe. They have accepted national prohibition, with a future question mark.

All in all, the people of the West seem prosperous and happy and are making their plans for an even more prosperous future. I believe The New York Times and other Eastern publications that are read here all play an important part in shaping those ambitious plans.

ROEBLING, BRIDGE BUILDER.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

More than fifty years ago, when the late Colonel Washington A. Roebling was physically incapacitated with caisson disease, but yet mentally alert, an attempt was made to displace him in the management of the building of Brooklyn Bridge. He moved to Brooklyn so that he would be near and so that he could see the bridge. The writer distinctly remembers hearing him dictate to his wife a final statement, after many dictations, telling what he was doing on the bridge and why he should not be displaced. Mrs. Roebling read this paper before the American Society of Civil Engineers in the American Institute Fair Building at Sixty-third Street and Third Avenue. It produced an immense sensation, because it was a splendid statement and well delivered by Mrs. Roebling, who was young and handsome. It was also well received, which was not always the case at that time when a woman spoke in public.

It was at that time, with all these difficulties, that to amuse himself he became interested in the collection of minerals. This, as with everything else he attempted, he did in a most thorough and painstaking manner, endeavoring to verify personally each specimen according to its correctness of determination and locality. This work was carried on assiduously for fifty years, with the result that for many years no collection in the world has been so thorough in regard to the representation of the great number of species, and in addition many of these were unique, rare, beautiful and valuable.

He was known throughout the entire mineralogical world. He was a Fellow of the Mineralogical Society of America, and during the past year gave $44,000 as an endowment fund to insure the publication of this society's journal. He was also an honorary member of the New York Mineralogical Club.

NO FISH IN BOWLING GREEN.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A boy's attitude toward the animal world is considered a good gauge of his future status as a citizen. If he is kind to animals, he will be kind to people; and vice versa. Those who are interested in the crime situation in this city would, therefore, do well to investigate the type of mind of the boys at the Battery.

At the north end of Bowling Green is an artificial pool with a fountain. In years gone by the Aquarium often placed goldfish in this pool in Spring or Summer. They afforded pleasure to the passer-by and when we returned them to the building in the Fall of the year we also took out many young ones, the fish having spawned. It was, therefore, a profitable action for both the public and the Aquarium.

Yesterday we attempted to do this same thing. We selected fifteen of the finest specimens of straight-tailed goldfish we had, including females ready for spawning, and placed them in the pool. Within an hour a young woman phoned from one of the nearby office buildings, asking if we had put goldfish into the pool and saying that they looked beautiful but that boys were destroying them.

Our men found that the boys were stoning the fish, beating them over the heads with clubs and tossing them into the air and onto the grass. What could be recovered were immediately returned to the Aquarium tanks. Many thousands of persons must be deprived of the pleasure of watching these beautiful creatures in the pool in Bowling Green for the reason that our future criminals will not allow it.

11 DESTROYERS HERE ON WAY TO NEWPORT

A fleet of eleven destroyers carrying about 500 naval reservists, steamed into the North River yesterday and last night and dropped anchors for a brief stay. Tomorrow morning the fleet will depart for Newport, headquarters of the Atlantic scouting fleet, under the command of Vice Admiral J. S. McKean.

Half the crews of the destroyers, it was announced at the Navy Yard last night, were drawn from the reserve, and because of the cramped quarters on these narrow, speedy vessels, many members of the regular crews were put ashore to make room for the reserves. Some of the destroyers, like the Allen, which came with a crew from Baltimore and Washington, are now manned by reserves and have been placed in commission for this cruise alone. The Allen, under the command of Lieutenant Alfred S. Wolfe, left Washington at noon on Saturday and tied up alongside the navy pier at Eightieth Street last night.

Besides the Allen, the destroyers leaving tomorrow are the Smith-Thompson, Converse, Dallas, Dale, Reid, Flusser, Tracy, Bainbridge, Worden and the Goff. It was announced that operations would be largely confined to the waters off Narragansett.

HOPES FOR AN AIRPORT HERE

Merchants' Association Thinks Governors Island Is Logical Site.

The Merchants' Association, through its Committee on Aeronautics, announced yesterday that it was still hopeful of the ultimate selection of Governors Island as a commercial airport. Despite the opposition of Secretary of War Davis and of Major Gen. Summerall, in command of the Second Army Corps Area, the association still believes that the Wadsworth-Prall bill, providing for an airport on the island, will be passed.

"Although it is expected that this measure will be fought vigorously by the War Department, when it comes up for discussion at the opening of Congress in December, there are many persons both in Congress and outside who believe that Governors Island is the most logical place for the establishment of New York's first airport," the statement declares.

Other sites in and around New York City have received serious consideration by the Merchants' Association Committee. One of the most promising, it was pointed out, was at Port Newark, on the western shore of Newark Bay. Other sites, none of which were felt to be wholly suitable, were at Hasbrouck Heights, N. J., at Flushing Bay, Jamaica Bay and the Bronx River.

SEES RELIGION ENTRENCHED

J. J. Davis, Secretary of Labor, Says It Is Stronger Than Ever.

CROWN POINT, Ind., July 25 (AP).—Old-fashioned religion, with belief in God, is stronger today than ever, James J. Davis, Secretary of Labor, said in an address to a community meeting held by civic organizations and Chambers of Commerce of the Calumet region of Illinois and Indiana near here today.

"It is said that the world is beginning to lose the fruits of Christian experience and teaching," he said, "and that the people are losing their ancient faith in God and immortality, are ceasing to venerate the Bible and are more interested in science than religion. It is my opinion that the complaint is somewhat exaggerated. I believe that statistics will show there never has been a time when church membership was larger in proportion to the population than today. Surely there has never been a time when it was easier to raise church funds. It is probable that there never was an age when more people believed in religion than believe in it today."

SPAIN ATTACKS ILLITERACY.

Will Add to School Budget to Cut Down 45 Per Cent. Ratio.

By Wireless to The New York Times.

MADRID, July 25.—The Spanish Government is attacking the problem of illiteracy by planning increased appropriations for school purposes, hoping gradually to balance the number of schools and teachers with the number of children of school age.

The latest census shows that 1,500,000 children are without opportunities to attend classes, while as many more in school are inadequately provided for as to buildings, books and teachers.

The Government proposes a staff of 60,000 teachers at a cost of 85,000,000 pesetas, while 675,000,000 will be applied to the construction of buildings throughout next year's schedule.

The present illiteracy totals 45 per cent. of the population.

Problem to Be Taken Up by Congress of Penal Law.

BRUSSELS, July 25 (AP).—Crime waves will be among the interesting features to be discussed at the first International Congress of Penal Law, beginning here tomorrow.

Twenty-six countries will be represented and the congress will be under the presidency of the Belgian Premier, M. Jaspar.

The American delegates are Professor Albert Levitt of Washington and Lee University, Lexington, Va., and Chester H. Powell of San Francisco, member of the National Crime Commission.

BATTLE FOR SENATOR TO START IN 10 DAYS

DRYS READY FOR FIGHT

Candidate, It Is Said, Will Stress His Republicanism as Much as His Dryness.

Early August will witness the launching of two campaigns for the United States Senatorship. Senator James W. Wadsworth Jr., regular Republican candidate for re-election, will deliver his first campaign address at a dinner to be given for him in this city by the Republican Business Men, Inc., on Aug. 4. Four days later Franklin W. Cristman of Herkimer, who will run as an independent Republican, backed by a group of dry organizations, including the New York Anti-Saloon League, will begin his fight at a dry camp meeting at Round Lake, near Saratoga.

The fight for the Senatorship this year will be a triangular affair, but the third candidate, who will run on a Democratic ticket, has not yet emerged. It is likely that the Democrats will put off selection of their candidate until the eve of the State convention, which will be held during the last week of September.

Just at present there appears to be as much uncertainty in Democratic circles with regard to the identity of the man who is to lead the party fight against Senator Wadsworth as there is in Republican circles over whom the convention will select to lead the Republican fight for the Governorship.

There is speculation among the politicians with reference to what Candidate Cristman will have to say at his dry camp meeting address a week from next Sunday. It is taken for granted that the address will be in the nature of a keynote speech for his own campaign.

If Mr. Cristman should follow advice from some of the leaders of the organized dry alliance, which forms the only organized strength behind his candidacy, he will emphasize his Republicanism as much as his dryness.

Since his selection to lead the dry fight Mr. Cristman has insisted that, including his stand on prohibition, he is more of a "regular" than is Senator Wadsworth, although the Senator is the acknowledged leader of the Republican Party in this State. Some of Mr. Cristman's dry supporters are looking forward to a speech in which his loyalty to Republican principles, to the program of President Coolidge and the national policies of the party will be stressed and pledges made for unwavering support of the President in the event of his election.

Some opposition in the dry councils has developed against such a course on the ground that it would alienate Democratic votes, but it has been urged, on the other hand, that this is an imaginary rather than a real peril in view of the fact that there is small prospect of Mr. Cristman polling a sufficient number of Democratic votes to do him any good.

Will Capitalize Party Unrest.

Mr. Cristman, politicians say, will be expected by his dry backers to capitalize all there is of unrest and dissatisfaction with the present leadership within the Republican State organization. There is reason to believe that Mr. Cristman will make the most of the situation and raise a banner of revolt to which Republican malcontents from all parts of the State may rally.

"Elect me as the only means of getting a new deal in the party organization in this State" will be his rallying cry to this element.

"He is expected to issue a defi challenging wet political leaders of the Republican Party, who, he declares, are striving so to saturate New York with wet propaganda that the next stage of alcoholic saturation will be an easy one," a statement issued by the Anti-Saloon League has to say in comment on Mr. Cristman's appearance at Round Lake.

Supporters of Mr. Cristman profess to believe that he will get at least 250,000 votes, and "possibly twice that number." Should the latter figure prove correct, Mr. Wadsworth, it was said, would be in danger of defeat. Even a somewhat smaller vote for Cristman might prove disastrous to his hopes of re-election, provided the Democrats put up a candidate able to hold the Democratic vote in this city.

Republican leaders profess the utmost confidence of Senator Wadsworth's re-election, even though there should be considerable defections up-State by dry Republicans, and they believe that opposition to the Senator by the drys within his own party will be overcome to a large extent before election day. In 1920, when Senator Wadsworth was opposed by a dry candidate as well as a Democrat, his plurality over the latter was 533,083. His dry opponent, Mrs. Ella A. Boole, President of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union and prominent in the present Cristman movement, received only 159,623 votes, against a total of 1,434,393 polled by Senator Wadsworth. The Senator in that campaign carried every borough in this Democratic city.

600 AT WADSWORTH DINNER.

Business Men and Women to Start Campaign Early Next Month.

The dinner of the Republican Business Men, Inc., to Senator Wadsworth on Aug. 4, which also will mark the beginning of their campaign for his re-election, will be held at the Fifth Avenue Restaurant. It will be a popular priced affair at $2 a plate.

The Republican Business Women, Inc., a sister organization now being formed by a committee of which Miss Frances Hildreth is the head, and Miss Helen Varick Boswell, Miss Louise Davenport, Miss Pauline E. Mandigo, Miss Henrietta St. Johns and Miss Caroline Olney are members, will participate in the dinner, as will also the revived Young Republican Club, which has been invited to share headquarters with the Business Men and Business Women at 4 East Fortieth Street.

The dinner will be limited to 600 guests. Each Assembly district in the city will have its separate table, seating ten, and in addition there will be tables for officers and directors of the organization. Herbert N. Straus, President, will act as toastmaster. The arrangements for the dinner are in charge of Ed Carpel and Manny Straus. Speaking about the dinner, Mr. Straus said:

WADSWORTH IS ASSAILED.

Dry League Official Calls Senator the Bootleggers' Candidate.

OYSTER BAY, L. I., July 25.—Orville S. Poland of the Anti-Saloon League attacked Senator Wadsworth as the "bootleggers' candidate" in an address at the Methodist Church here this morning. The presence of 15,000 bootleggers in New York City, which estimate he ascribed to Major Chester P. Mills, Prohibition Administrator in New York, is the direct result, Mr. Poland said, of the "Smith-Wadsworth coalition" to prevent State enforcement.

"This lack of police cooperation," Mr. Poland said, "which makes possible the assertion of the existence of thousands of bootleg joints in New York City alone, is the direct result of the Smith-Wadsworth coalition for the repeal of the State prohibition law and the defeat of any new enforcement law. This repeal left prohibition enforcement in New York in the hands of approximately 100 Federal officers, and no sophistry of Al Smith's can beat the simple mathematical fact that 100 Federal officers are not equal to 13,000 policemen, which is the size of the New York City police force.

"By his refusal to aid in the enactment of the State prohibition enforcement law Mr. Wadsworth made himself the bootleggers' candidate for the Senate. An enforcement law wouldn't hurt any one except the bootleggers."

OFFICIAL HALTS SALE OF ANTI-KLAN WEEKLY

Muncie Prosecutor Fights Dale, Whose Son, 8, Then Defies Him and Sells All His Copies.

MUNCIE, Ind., July 25 (AP).—An attempt to stop the sale of issues of The Post-Democrat, a weekly newspaper published by George Dale, who drew nation-wide attention in his recent appeal to the United States Supreme Court, after a three-year fight of contempt of court charges in Indiana, was made by William Ryman, Deputy Prosecuting Attorney of Delaware County, here yesterday.

Mr. Ryman, accompanied by three policemen, called at the Reed newsstand and warned Reed that if he continued the sale of The Post-Democrat he would be prosecuted. The policemen said Ryman asked them to go with him as witnesses.

After consulting his lawyer Reed stopped the sale of the paper, but an eight-year-old son of Dale then stood in front of the stand and soon sold all his papers.

Recent articles in Dale's newspaper attacked Ryman, and in yesterday's issue Dale charged that Ryman prevented the Grand Jury from investigating the case of Alpha Holaday, a Muncie salesman, who was released recently from Atlanta Prison, where he served a term for using the mails to defraud.

Mr. Dale is now on $1,000 appeal bond, preparing to appeal to the United States Supreme Court. Three years ago he was sentenced to six months on the Indiana State Farm following his published charges that the Ku Klux Klan exercised control over court and county officials.

The Indiana Supreme Court recently upheld the decision, but granted the appeal. Dale returned from Chicago, where he gathered funds to take his fight to the United States Supreme Court, for the hearing here.

COLUMBIA TO OPEN PORTO RICO SCHOOL

The School of Tropical Medicine established by Columbia University at Porto Rico will hold its opening exercises Sept. 22, according to announcement yesterday.

Dr. Robert A. Lambert of New York, the famous pathologist and scientific investigator, is to direct the school. The physical equipment includes laboratories in which investigations in bacteriology, chemistry, mycology, pathology and parasitology will be carried on.

Cooperating with the new institution will be the Plague Prevention Laboratory of the Porto Rico Department of Health and the Insular Leper Hospital. Temporary laboratories for field work will be provided.

The School of Tropical Medicine is financed chiefly by the Government of Porto Rico. It was formally established by the 1924 legislative assembly under the leadership of Don Antonio Barcelo, President of the Senate.

The program to be followed in the school is outlined by Columbia. Two Columbia Faculty members in addition to Dr. Lambert are among the professors at the new school. They are Donald H. Cook, Associate Professor of Chemistry, and William A. Hoffman, Assistant Professor of Parasitology.

Earle B. Phelps, Professor of Sanitary Science, Institute of Public Health, Columbia University, will be visiting professor in the Fall of 1926. Other members of the Faculty of Columbia now developing a public health program under the direction of Professor Haven Emerson, with the aid of funds provided by the will of the late Joseph R. De Lamar, will cooperate. Fourteen instructors and six resident lecturers have been appointed. Officers of administration in addition to Dr. Lambert are Thomas E. Benner, Chancellor of the University of Porto Rico, and President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia.

DWYER TRIAL NEAR END.

Jury to Get Case Today After Judge Mack Instructs Them.

The jury in the trial of William V. Dwyer and seven co-defendants on charges of conspiring to smuggle liquor into the United States will receive the case for deliberation today following the charge by Federal Judge Julian W. Mack.

The trial, which lasted two weeks, is regarded by District Attorney Buckner as the most important prosecution which he has conducted under the prohibition law during his incumbency. According to his contention in the trial, Dwyer was the head of a $40,000,000 rum running conspiracy which conducted its own affairs from the purchasing of liquor in foreign markets to its final delivery to individual bootleggers in this country.

CRISIS ON DRY LAW CONFRONTS COOLIDGE

'WET' REPUBLICANS OPPOSE

Want No Move Until After Fall Elections Lest It Cost Senatorships.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—In the opinion of many political leaders, President Coolidge will be faced, on the eve of the Congressional elections, with the problem of attempting another reorganization of the prohibition enforcement work. That General Lincoln C. Andrews will retire soon after his return from Europe next month is generally accepted. There is much discussion as to the type of man President Coolidge will call in his place.

The situation confronting the Administration is not a pleasant one, for, if reports generally circulated here are to be credited, many sections of the country are considerably "wetter" after six years of prohibition than they were in the early days of the Volstead act.

The Administration's problem of finding an able executive and a program of reorganization that will show results is made no easier by the fact that while the drys in some States are pressing for rigid enforcement and want one of their number as head of the Federal forces, political leaders and candidates for re-election in wet sections are in a mood to do what they can to prevent the appearance of a really arid dictatorship until the Fall elections are over.

A dry crusade by the Federal Government, it is said, would end the last hope of Republican success in the Senatorial race in Maryland, a wet centre; embarrass the campaigns of Senator Wadsworth in New York and of Frank L. Smith, Republican candidate for Senator in Illinois, and possibly damage the chances of Senator Butler in Massachusetts.

In Missouri and Ohio also the Republican outlook in the Senatorial contests probably would be better if things were left as they are than if a move were made for stricter enforcement by the Federal Government before November.

There are some leaders, opponents of the Administration, who contend that the efforts which were made to influence General Andrews to remain in office after he had prepared his resignation early in July were the result of this mixed political situation. But the understanding here is that General Andrews will not consent to remain in office until after the elections.

Recent happenings, such as the charges brought against Colonel Green, Federal Administrator in California, revelations of the work of "under-cover men" in connection with the Dwyer case in New York and allegations of corruption among the Coast Guard forces, are accepted as making it embarrassing, if not virtually impossible, for General Andrews to remain at the helm much longer, even if he were willing to do so.

Some persons contend that the morale of the Federal Prohibition Bureau was seriously injured when inspired reports were published that General Andrews felt he must retire and were not denied by him before he sailed for Europe to talk with British statesmen about further curbing rum smuggling.

Since then A. P. Ray, Administrator of Pennsylvania, after making a public statement that General Andrews intended to retire and that it was useless to attempt to enforce prohibition under present conditions, has resigned, and Colonel Green of California, on finding himself faced by charges of irregularities, stated that the General would withdraw. Major Walton Green, whom General Andrews had selected to head his "under-cover agents," has sent in his resignation.

There is evidence that these developments have caused much confusion among the enforcement agencies of the Federal Government and left the lesser officials everywhere wondering to whom they were answerable. The result has been uncertainty and loss of efficiency, if reports are to be credited.

Congress is responsible in no small measure for the situation, as it refused to give General Andrews the powers he asked to reorganize the prohibition work and name retired army officers as administrators, even if others backed by the political leaders were after the places. That the refusal of Congress to grant these powers was chiefly responsible for the decision of General Andrews to withdraw there is little doubt.

CONTRACT DUE SOON ON STATE PARKWAY

IS FOR NEARLY THREE MILES

Commission Has Begun to Develop Water-Supply Properties Through Which Highway Will Run.

The contract for building a part of the new Southern State Parkway on Long Island will be let early in August, according to a statement made public yesterday by the Long Island State Park Commission and the State Highway Department.

The section to be constructed is about two and three-quarters miles long. It begins west of the Hempstead Reservoir and extends over the reservoir dam, connecting with the first road east of the reservoir.

The Southern State Parkway, one of a series of highways planned by commissions operating under the State Council of Parks, begins at the New York City line at Central Avenue, Jamaica, which it follows for half a mile into Nassau County. The county is furnishing the necessary additional right of way for this first half mile. All types of vehicles will be permitted on the Central Avenue strip, but only pleasure vehicles will be allowed to run over the parkway from the point where it leaves Central Avenue.

Paving is being done by the State Highway Department under Commissioner Arthur Brandt. The landscaping and control of the parkway will rest with the Long Island commission, of which Robert Moses is Chairman. The parkway will ultimately extend well into Suffolk County, and a considerable part of the right of way has already been obtained by the Park Commission through dedication or agreement.

The commission has already commenced development of the water-supply properties recently dedicated by the City of New York through which the parkway will run. The width of the right of way throughout is 160 feet, except through the water-supply properties, where it is wider. Around these streams and ponds will be picnicking places for motorists and special outdoor facilities for the local villages in Nassau County through which the parkway will run.

VESUVIUS ACTIVE AGAIN.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

NAPLES, July 25.—Vesuvius again has enered a phase of mild activity. By day a huge pillar of whitish smoke, spreading out at the top in the shape of an open umbrella, is seen rising from the crater, while by night the whole sky over the volcano is lighted up by an intermittent ruddy glow.

The phenomenon is watched with the greatest interest by many thousands of tourists, mostly Americans, now in Naples. The drive along the seashore is crowded all day with throngs watching the ever-changing spectacle of Vesuvius in eruption. At night numerous expeditions are organized to climb the volcano and watch the outbreak from a close quarter.

Volcanologists declare the eruption is quite harmless and is one of normal periodical returns of mild activity. Indeed experts state that occasional eruptions of this nature make for safety, as they act as safety valves for the volcano. It is only when the volcano has been inactive for a long period that a serious outburst may be feared.

The Sun Is Rising Out of the Ocean

and the morning star, a diamond more brilliant than any of Queen Victoria's jewels, has hidden itself in the bosom of the sky.

A wide belt of carmine, silky-looking ribbon ties together the sea and the green shores which have been permanently wedlocked for centuries.

The Story of the Sunflower

Clytie was a water nymph who loved the sun and worshiped him as a god. She constantly gazed at the object of her affections when he rose in the mornings and while he passed along on his daily course. She had no eyes for any other object. At last her limbs rooted and her face became the sunflower, which turns on its stem so as always to look at the sun.

Even a flower can teach us a lesson, and the daily life of the Store, where many come, offers much of beauty to see, hear and think about.

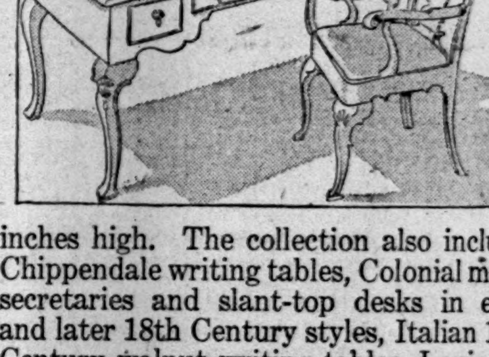
BELMAISON REPRODUCTIONS

Desks and Writing Tables

An Interesting Diversity of Styles
At Savings of 10 to 25 per cent.



A long and interesting story might be written about the various types of desks, suited to differing interiors, to be found in Belmaison's collection. There are, for example, many rooms in which a writing-table is more convenient or more suitable than the slant-top desk. And in writing-tables alone the collections are as rich as if Belmaison existed only for these. There are massive Jacobean examples of oak with leather tops and capacious drawers, and charming small Queen Anne knee-hole affairs of mahogany, with a surprising amount of drawer and cupboard space in very small compass. An extremely graceful Louis XV walnut table bureau with leather top adds size to its other desirable features, the top measuring 5 feet 3 inches by 32 inches. And for certain interiors nothing could give a more effective note than a Queen Anne flat-topped desk in red lacquer.

The Queen Anne writing table illustrated is of walnut with beautifully veneered top with marquetry band, and shell-carved cabriole legs. It is 4 feet 5 inches long by 2 feet 4 inches deep and 30 inches high. The collection also includes Chippendale writing tables, Colonial maple secretaries and slant-top desks in early and later 18th Century styles, Italian 18th Century walnut writing tables, Louis XV desks of the agreeable dos d'ane type in cherry and beechwood, Louis XVI mahogany desks with marble top and tambour front, and tall Queen Anne and Italian secretaires of red, green and yellow lacquer that give such gay relief of color and picturesque form to rooms that might otherwise be a bit too sedate or subdued in tone. Examples of sale savings noted at random—

TO ORGANIZE TRADE GROUPS

CENSUS RETURNS COMING IN

First Few Thousand Concerns Have Sent Replies—Dr. Harris Asks Active Aid of Employers.

With reports in from the first few thousand firms reached by the stagger census, Major Philip Mathews, Chief Executive Officer of the State Transit Commission, and Dr. Louis I. Dublin, statistician of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, have drafted a plan for analyzing the facts reported on the transit census forms, Health Commissioner Harris announced yesterday.

The tabulation program is suggested by the points emphasized in the early returns, which are already sufficient to be fairly typical of what the completed census will show.

"What we propose to do," said Major Mathews, "is to combine the facts for firms which are closely affiliated in groups whose working hours are now approximately the same and who are industrially dependent upon each other. When we have the groups well defined we shall invite them into conference and tell them the facts about themselves.

"When we have secured the friendly understanding and cooperation of forty or fifty of such groups, a schedule of hours can be developed for their approval along stagger lines. Perhaps they will have some other solution to offer, themselves."

Major Mathews emphasized that there was no possibility of accomplishing an adjustment of the ebb and flow of the business life of the city by force of law. The adjustment of business groups to some new schedule must be voluntary, he said.

Retailers, office workers, &c., in the centres of transit congestion will be approached along an entirely different line for classification under any stagger proposal, Major Mathews said. Here the keynote of the classification will be location. For this purpose the city has been "banded" as follows:

1. Battery to Chambers Street.
2. Chambers to Houston Street.
3. Houston to Fourteenth Street.
4. Fourteenth to Thirty-fourth Street.
5. Thirty-fourth to Forty-second Street.
6. Forty-second to Fifty-ninth Street.
7. Fifty-ninth to Seventy-second Street.
8. Seventy-second Street and above.

Bands 2 to 8, inclusive, will be subdivided vertically by Broadway, from Chambers Street to Fourteenth Street, and by Fifth Avenue from there north, forming "east" and "west" sections of each band. This will make a total of thirteen sections within the congested business district of the city and two larger areas to the north where there is still a goodly quantity of business traffic pressure.

Martin Dodge, Industrial Secretary of the Merchants Association, is preparing the preliminary industrial classifications for use in tabulating the census statistics. Copies of the census form may be obtained by calling the Transit Census Office, Ashland 8409.

Dr. Harris said yesterday, "This is an enterprise which should engage the interest and active cooperation of every employer and building manager in the city. The comfort, health and safety of the city's workers is the aim of the Transit Census."

SIX KILLED ON BRIDGE WATCHING DIVING ACT

CHARLESTON, W. Va., July 25 (AP).—The collapse of a small footbridge over Coal River at Whitesville, 40 miles from here, last night caused the death of six persons. Five were killed almost instantly and one died later from injuries suffered when the span gave way under 125 spectators who had crowded upon it to view a free carnival act.

Most of the sixty, who were injured when they dropped twenty feet to the shallow water of the river bed, were women and children. Thirty-five were brought to Charleston hospitals. The remainder were treated on the scene and then taken home.

The dead are:

W. F. Slush, Milan, Mich.

Essie Jarrell, Dorothy, W. Va.

Mrs. George Ward, 30, Whitesville.

Frank McClellan, 44, negro, Whitesville.

State police have started a check to determine whether others were killed.

In the free act, Harry McClain saturated his clothing with gasoline, set it on fire and ran under the bridge to dive into the water. As he passed under the span the crowd shifted from one side to the other to get a better view. The steel cables broke at one end of the span, sliding the spectators off one end and dropping them to the river bed.

Some of the spectators sliding off the bridge struck McLain. He stumbled, but jumped up quickly and plunged into the shallow water to extinguish the fire. He escaped with minor bruises and burns.

A turnbuckle, showing across its broken edge the rust indicative of an old fracture, and the crowding of the bridge beyond the limits of safety, were believed responsible for the accident.

Dry Men Raid Thronged Cafe.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 25.—While the New World Cafe at Baltic and Tennessee Avenues was thronged with merrymakers at two o'clock this morning, Federal agents, led by Captain Thompson of Newark, raided it. They confiscated 18 quarts of whisky and gin, and five bottles of other liquors. They arrested two bartenders, Clifford Baker, 328 North Tennessee Avenue, and Jack Faulk, 136 Bay Street. The men were held for a hearing before United States Commissioner McGee Monday afternoon.

Warns Mothers Spoiled Boys Will Turn Out Bad Husbands

LONDON, July 25 (AP).—Spoiled boys make bad husbands, says Miss H. S. Cooper Hodgson, Health Inspector of the Durham County Council.

"Mothers who are too indulgent to their sons give wives self-centred husbands, who, because they have been thoroughly spoiled, never lift a finger to help in the home," Miss Hodgson declared at a sanitary congress here. She was speaking on some of the difficulties of rearing children.

Fathers and mothers who had not yet learned to understand the miracle of the baby's mind, Miss Hodgson said, were missing a great deal, and through their ignorance incalculable harm was being done—harm which lasted through life. Her motto is:

PASSAIC POLICE CLUB NEW YORK FURRIERS

SIX PLACED UNDER ARREST

Mass Meeting of Textile Strikers to Decide on Intervention by Federation Set for Tomorrow.

Special to The New York Times.

PASSAIC, N. J., July 25.—Six persons were arrested today and many beaten by the police in one of the worst riots since the strike of 10,000 textile workers began seven months ago.

The disorder broke out during the visit of a delegation of 350 men and women, members of the Furriers Union of New York, who arrived in auto buses. The visitors alighted near Ukrainian Hall, where a large force of police under Chief Richard O. Zober was on hand.

The fur men carried signs bearing "Down with the bosses," "All workers must stick with the textile strikers" and similar sentiments. The police objected to the signs, and when they were booed they attacked the fur workers with clubs and routed them. The fur workers broke ranks and fled. A meeting, addressed by Albert Weisbord, was attended by 7,000 men, women and children and was peaceable throughout.

Police Charge Delegation.

When the meeting was over the fur workers attempted to re-form their ranks and the police again were booed. Police Chief Zober gave orders to clear out the New York delegation. The fifty policemen charged the fur delegation and the strikers, who threw sticks and stones at them. While strike headquarters said several New Yorkers had been badly beaten, no cases were reported at local hospitals.

The six arrested included one strike leader and three fur strikers, all being held pending the furnishing of bail.

Those arrested were Vanchesko Coco, 926 East 178th Street, New York, strike leader; Sylvia Kleiman and her sister, Esther, of 317 East Eighteenth Street, New York, charged with interfering with policemen; a third sister, Eva, who was arrested for attempting to hit Patrolman Flanagan; Katie Sogorka of 70 Christie Avenue, Clifton, who was arrested for hitting Officer Connell with a stone, and John Fedo, 11 Arthur Street, Clifton, for calling the police names.

During a mass meeting Weisbord called a meeting of the textile strikers for Tuesday night at Belmont Hall, Garfield, to decide on asking the American Federation of Labor to intervene in the strike. A representative of the A. F. of L., probably Henry Hilfers, State Secretary, will be invited. Weisbord said that all strikers want to be taken in on an equal basis.

Questions to be Answered.

"Do they mean to take us into the A. F. of L. and then sell us out to the bosses?" he asked. "Will they send the present leaders out of town and employ untried ones?" These, he said, would be answered Tuesday night.

Ben Gold, leader of the fur strikers, and Leo Kryzski, Chairman of the Chicago Joint Board of Garment Workers, were also principal speakers. Kryzski said all garment workers were behind the Passaic strikers. Gold told of a $1 assessment on furriers which would bring $12,000 each week for Passaic relief.

The Executive Committee of the associated societies and parishes also met this afternoon and also moved to invite the A. F. of L. representatives to come here and address the strikers. The committee will probably confer with the strike leaders tomorrow.

The United Front Committee issued a statement last night blaming the Passaic Citizens' Committee for the disorder, alleging that the committee's activities resulted in the "vicious attack" on the strikers and members of the Fur Workers Union, who were American Federation of Labor organizers. The committee declared the strikers would stand fast for their own union because of the police tactics.

REMOVES CHURCH ECHO, GETS $4,400 REWARD

Boston Engineer Wins in Test of Offer to End 25-Year Nuisance or Get No Pay.

CLINTON, Mass., July 25 (AP).—The First Congregational Church of this town today was a 6-to-1 gamble on the removal of an echo which has consistently interrupted devotional services since the erection of the edifice a quarter of a century ago.

Sounding boards, wires and tapestries failed to eliminate a hidden voice which often threw back the pastor's words from some undiscovered recess. Two months ago the church trustees accepted a Boston engineer's offer to remove the echo.

The engineer agreed not to charge for his work if unsuccessful, provided the church would pay the cost of a $700 staging. Last week he finished relining the interior of the building and today's service was agreed on as a test.

It was successful in every detail. The Rev. Nathan H. Gist preached an uninterrupted sermon, members of the board shouted at each other without raising an echo, music rolled through the auditorium without a tangled note, and the engineer received a check for $4,400.

WOMAN ARRESTED IN CANTON MURDER

NEW POLICE CHIEF IS BUSY

He Checks Up on Mellett's Data for Clues, but Apprehension of Slayers Seems No Nearer.

Special to The New York Times.

CANTON, Ohio, July 25.—Mrs. Mary Poulos, wife of "Greek Harry," who runs a coffee shop in the "Jungle" section of Canton, was held without bail this morning in connection with the shooting of Don R. Mellett, newspaper publisher, whose death was plotted, it is believed, in revenge for his attacks on vice and political corruption.

She was arrested late last night on information given by half a dozen other women from the "Jungle" who were questioned yesterday. The exact nature of her information was withheld, but it is known that detectives were dispatched yesterday to Cleveland, Akron and Youngstown. They reported today, according to Acting Chief of Police Earl W. Hexamer, that their missions had so far proved futile.

When Mrs. Poulos's alleged connection with the murder failed of definite substantiation, the charge against her was changed to disorderly conduct, and she was released in bail late tonight.

Today was the quietest day in Canton since the killing ten days ago. The suspension yesterday by the Mayor of Chief of Police Saranus A. Lengel, who suffered many bitter denunciations at the hands of Mellett, has, so far as can be seen, brought the apprehension of the slayers no closer than before.

Rewards totaling more than $27,000 await the person who can reveal the perpetrators of the crime and the prosecutor has let it be known that immunity will be accorded any member of the gang responsible for the shooting if he will surrender and reveal the identity of his accomplices. There has been no official indication that anyone has yet nibbled at this bait.

Chief Hexamer, who also retains his old job of Director of Public Safety, spent most of today conferring with Ora E. Slater, chief detective of the County Prosecutor's forces, and Lloyd Mellett, brother of the slain publisher. During his newspaper campaign against corruption Don R. Mellett employed private detectives as well as former crooks familiar with the underworld in his efforts to show the people of Canton what was really going on in the tough part of town and its intimate relations to city politics. Affidavits and notes turned in by these men were scanned carefully today by the leaders of the search. From this data they still hope to unearth the identity of the man who warned Mellett by telephone that he was to be killed, and in this way lead to the actual slayers.

The only outward difference here since Lengel went out and Hexamer took over the reins has been the disappearance from the vicinity of Police Headquarters of groups of "underworld characters" who, under the old régime, had lounged on the rail in front of the station house chatting freely with certain members of the police force.

Another change which has amused the citizens of Canton has been the withdrawal as unofficial Deputy Chief of Police of Guy Hiner, President of the Hiner Structural Steel Company, who has often admitted that if he could not be President of a large manufacturing concern he would like to be a detective. He had two desks and a typewriter in an ante room of the chief's office, and whenever there came a call to round up criminals he donated the use of a high-powered automobile and drove to the scene, participating in the arrests.

"I've got a good notion to take my desks and typewriter out of here," he remarked when he heard of Lengel's sudden suspension. Hexamer, the new chief, who overheard him, remarked: "That's a good plan. You get out with them and stay out."

SHARK IN OYSTER BAY SCARES 50 BATHERS

Special to The New York Times.

OYSTER BAY, L. I., July 25.—Considerable excitement was caused among residents of Oyster Bay yesterday afternoon by the appearance of a six-foot shark among bathers off the shores of the estate of E. M. Townsend.

There were about fifty persons in the water shortly after 3 o'clock, principally residents and guests at the Oyster Bay Summer colony, when a fin was sighted cutting the tepid waters of the bay about thirty yards offshore.

At the cry of warning the bathers—many of whom were children—hurried ashore. A motorboat was manned by Greenough Townsend of the White Star Line passenger department and a group of guests, and an effort was made to drive the shark on to the beach, for it had ventured into shallow water.

The tide was running out strongly, however, and the shark escaped, after being identified as a sand shark, a harmless species which lives on fish. The shark had cut off some eels from a large patch of eel grass near shore, and as Mr. Townsend's boat reached the spot a four-foot eel tried repeatedly to leap into the launch to escape from its peril.

Residents of Oyster Bay said last night that it was no unusual thing for small sharks to be sighted in these waters and that there had been a similar visit last Summer. The sharks that enter the bay, they said, never had tried to attack bathers.

After the shark disappeared swimming was resumed.

SEWAGE PLANT COMPLETED

New System Provides for Hospital and Prison at Grasslands.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., July 25.—George J. Werner, Commissioner of Public Welfare, announced today the completion of the new sewage disposal plant providing for the waste from Grasslands Hospital and the penitentiary. The new plant replaces an old and inadequate system, which for some time has been recognized as a potential danger to the Yonkers water supply.

The new plant has been built with the future in mind and provides a large margin of safety, even if other buildings should be added. The plant was designed and built by Waring, Chapman & Farquhar, civil engineers, New York City.

The Rev. Lloyd B. Gilmour of the Five Points Mission, 69 Madison Street, made public yesterday an appeal he had received to help establish the parentage of the boy who was left at his mission seventy years ago.

Several years before the Civil War, an English woman accompanied by a boy who wore red top boots landed at Castle Garden. The boy was ill and was kept in quarantine for a few days. In that time his mother disappeared and when he was released from the hospital he was sent to the mission. A few weeks later, a Captain Van Meter, then in charge of the mission, took the boy with others to the Middle West to find homes for them. Attempts to find his mother had failed.

The boy could not even remember his last name. A brother, he said, had died on the voyage and was buried at sea. His questioners submitted several names to him, hoping he might recall his own from them. He selected McCann as sounding most like his! His first name was Albert, he said.

Albert McCann grew up in Farmington, Ill., where he joined a cavalry regiment and served in the Civil War.

At the close of the war he learned the tinsmith's trade and went to Winterset, Iowa, where he found work. There, one day, a girl entered his shop, carrying a broken bird cage to be repaired. Young McCann delayed the job and the girl called several times for the cage. There is no record of the bird cage ever having been repaired but a year later, on July 8, 1868, the girl, Frances E. Sanford, married the young tinsmith.

Today Albert McCann and his son, Roy, own the Joplin Cornice Works at Joplin, Mo. He is 79 years old and his wife 76.

In writing to the Five Points Mission, Mrs. McCann asked if any information was on record there of the English mother of the boy with the red top boots. At her request Mr. Gilmour is making the incident public.

GUNMAN MURDERED, BOOTLEG FEUD SEEN

PISTOL FOUND ON BODY

An unidentified man about 29 years old, well dressed and carrying a pearl-handled pistol in a trousers pocket, was shot and killed at noon yesterday in front of La Sala Restaurant at 58 Kenmare Street, almost in the shadow of Police Headquarters.

After working on the case all afternoon without being able to identify the man, detectives expressed the belief that he was a gunman "imported" from out of town in a bootleg feud, and that he had been killed by his intended victims before he could kill them.

The man had been careful to remove all marks of identification from his clothing. He wore a gray suit which the police said had cost at least $125, with tan shoes and socks. He had a gold watch and chain. The initial "M" was on a gold-buckled belt, on one arm he was tattooed with the initials "M. S." and on the other "R. D." His fingerprints were taken at the Oak Street Station, but when examined at Headquarters showed that he had no criminal record in New York.

Heavy traffic was moving along Kenmare Street toward the Williamsburg Bridge when the shooting occurred. Patrolman Robert Shade of the Oak Street Station was about a block away when he heard three shots in quick succession. He ran to the scene, pushed his way through an excited crowd, and found the man lying on the sidewalk. When Dr. Quinn arrived from St. Vincent's Hospital the man was dead.

From the location of the bullet wounds, in the mouth, chest and back, the detectives concluded that he had been shot from a passing automobile which was lost to sight in the maze of traffic.

Almost the only clue to his identity was a receipt from a branch office of the Western Union Telegraph Company in Long Island City, acknowledging payment of a money order. The receipt read, "Received from Albert Devolini twenty dollars, payable to Tony Fanoldi, Buffalo." A slip of paper was also found among his belongings, on which had been written in pencil the address, "88 Summer Street, E. B."

In the neighborhood of Kenmare Street, Mott Street and Mulberry Street, Italian restaurant managers and storekeepers shook their heads yesterday and said they knew nothing of the shooting. The man had been seen frequently in the neighborhood, although he did not live there, they said, and he was known as "Mike Santarelli."

The body was taken to the Oak Street Station. Detectives Coffey, Peterson and Innella of the homicide squad telegraphed to Buffalo yesterday to track down possible clues, and hope to obtain more definite information today.

PRISON'S 'BOY PRODIGY' BEHIND BARS IN QUEBEC

Convict, Said to Have Mentality of 8-Year-Old, Who Bluffed Way Out of Sing Sing, Caught.

OSSINING, July 25.—It will be a long time before the State of New York gets hold of James Traina, the "child prodigy" who bluffed his way out of Sing Sing last Fall and kidnapped a guard by pretending he had a pistol, Warden Lewis E. Lawes admitted today. Traina has just received a twenty-five-year sentence in a Canadian prison in Quebec for robbery. Prison attendants disclosed the fact that Traina had been captured.

Traina, who prison officials said, had the mentality of an 8-year-old child, had not yet started the ten-year term Judge McLaughlin gave him in Brooklyn for burglary and larceny when he broke from Sing Sing. When he was taken to prison he was told he would have to serve a year of a former sentence for violation of parole and was to have started his new ten-year sentence on Aug. 18.

On the night of Nov. 26 last he "held up" Keeper William Murphy, who was armed, outside the Warden's office and, when Keeper T. L. Kennedy walked up, Traina told him to put up his hands and come with him or he would shoot him. Then he deliberately turned his back to Murphy and marched Kennedy a quarter of a mile up the street; took his overcoat and then made him retrace his steps.

Warden Lawes said the keepers should have subdued him readily, since he did not show a weapon and had none.

In Canada, Traina was captured for a robbery and received twenty years for the robbery and five for having a dangerous weapon. When arrested Traina gave, according to Warden Lawes, his name as "Jimmy" Valentine, pirating the name of the crook of fiction.

Rough Seas Stop Channel Swimming.

LONDON, July 25 (AP).—The sea was too rough today for any Channel swimming. The weather all along has been unfavorable, and it is probable that all attempts will be postponed for some time.

SEEKS PART PLAYED BY CHICAGO GUNMEN

Senate Committee Will Inquire What They Did in the Senatorial Primary.

VOTE-BUYING CHARGE MADE

Accusations of Fraud in Count Also Will Be Taken Up in Inquiry Opening Today.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., July 25.—Charges that Frank L. Smith, the successful candidate for the Illinois Republican Senatorial nomination, spent $2,000,000 in his primary campaign, and that Senator William B. McKinley, the defeated Republican candidate, spent $1,000,000 will be investigated by the Senate Committee, headed by Senator Reed of Missouri, which holds its first hearing tomorrow.

Managers for Smith and McKinley declare the charges absurd and gross exaggerations, but Senator Reed and other committeemen are determined to find out if the money expended in the Illinois primary rivals that of the Pepper-Vare-Pinchot campaign in Pennsylvania, where those three men poured out a total of $2,793,583.

Linked with the charges against Messrs. Smith and McKinley, first repeated by Senator Caraway in the Senate June 26, are accusations that Samuel Insull, the traction magnate, stood in the background of the Smith campaign and gave $500,000 to that cause.

Senator Caraway said Mr. Insull was the real utility monarch who was reputed to have poured millions into primary and election campaigns in the last few years.

Traction Interests Involved.

Another angle of the part said to have been played by the traction companies in the primary is that Mr. Smith was appointed by Governor Small as Chairman of the Public Utilities Commission, which has jurisdiction over billions of dollars' worth of property, while Senator McKinley was head of one of the largest public utility corporations in Illinois.

The inquiry into the participation of big business in the primary will be rivaled in dramatic aspect by an investigation of what the Chicago gangsters and gunmen did to win votes for either side. Stories of vote buying, coercion and corruption have been brought to the committee by leaders of both the Smith and McKinley factions and by the law and order societies which have been clamoring for an exposure of how politics works in Chicago.

On top of these allegations the discovery has been made that the Senatorial primary vote in Chicago may be involved in charges of fraud at the polls. Following a request by Senator Reed, County Judge Jarecki has begun an intensive recount of the Senatorial vote and already there are indications of irregularities.

What the gunmen did in the primary is yet to be revealed, but there is a great amount of speculation regarding it here. The gangsters are declared to be deeply interested in the hearings, and one rumor has it that fear of their appearance in the audience led the committee to select the Federal Building as the place for its sessions.

Witnesses and Books Summoned.

Seven witnesses already have been summoned to appear tomorrow in connection with the investigation of the Illinois primary, including Frank L. Smith, Charles Willoughby, Secretary to Senator McKinley, who will not appear because of illness; George E. Brennan, the Democratic Senatorial nominee; Samuel Insull and Edward H. Wright, a member of the Illinois Commerce Commission; Charles V. Barnett, a member of the Board of Review, and Roy O. West, Treasurer of the Republican National Committee.

All these persons have been notified by Palmer E. Anderson, the United States Marshal, to bring with them books, bank checks, drafts and everything that would throw light on their part in the Smith-McKinley campaign and especially on promises of financial and other rewards.

William Hale ("Big Bill") Thompson, former Mayor of Chicago, and Robert E. Crowe, the State's Attorney, also have been called, but Mr. Thompson is said to be on a ranch in the West owned by William R. Hearst, while Mr. Crowe is in Wisconsin on a vacation.

Another witness summoned, but who had nothing to do with the Illinois situation, is Thomas F. Cunningham, a Philadelphian, who is said to have been active in the Vare campaign and who accepted a subpoena a week or so ago. How long Mr. Cunningham will be kept here before he testifies cannot now be told.

It is possible that the Rev. Elmer Williams of the Better Government Association will be summoned, as he asked on a former occasion for a Congressional investigation of Illinois politics.

Allen F. Moore, campaign manager for Smith, and Henry L. Green and Andrew Russell of the McKinley forces also may be asked to appear.

There is a strong possibility that H. F. Scott McBride, head of the National Anti-Saloon League, will be subpoenaed. He was active for some time in Illinois, and the committee thinks he may be able to shed some light on expenditures in Illinois political campaigns.

THOMPSON VISITS LEPERS OF CULION

HE SEES CLINIC, HOSPITAL

Highly Commends General Wood's Humanitarian Work—Island of Palawan Also Visited.

BY RUSSELL B. PORTER.

ON BOARD U. S. S. BUSTAMANTE IN PHILIPPINE WATERS, July 25.—After a night's sail through cool breezes and among the flying fish of the Sulu Sea, the U. S. S. Bustamente landed Colonel Carmi Thompson this morning on the Island of Palawan, the southern end of which is inhabited by Moros. This is the northern of the southern islands, which would be separated from the Philippines by the Bacon bill. It is partly settled and largely mountainous. Its timber resources may be very rich, but it is virtually unexplored.

Most of the inhabitants of Puerto Princesa, the capital, an old Spanish port, turned out to welcome the President's representative and led Colonel Thompson through an arch of tropical flowers and palm leaves. The politicos staged a demonstration of schoolboys carrying banners which read: "We want independence. Please transwit to President Coolidge our opposition to the Bacon bill."

The Provincial Governor told Colonel Thompson the people wanted the United States "to redeem her promise" of independence, but talked mostly about economic development. He said the great need was capital. Less than 3 per cent. of the land is cultivated. The population is 70,000. The island could accommodate 3,000,000.

Visit to Culion Leper Colony.

Colonel Thompson came to Palawan from a visit to Culion, the leper colony. After inspecting the colony, he highly commended General Wood for his "great humanitarian and administrative work for the benefit of mankind" and approved the Governor General's plans for new roads and buildings, to establish a research centre, at an estimated cost of $2,000,000, for the eradication of leprosy throughout the world.

Culion is the largest colony of regenerated lepers in the world, curing 10 per cent. of the cases and arresting the disease in many more. Ever since his arrival in Manila, Colonel Thompson has heard on all sides about the wonderful advance at Culion since Wood became Governor. Today he saw for himself that it was all true.

A launch from the cutter Bustamente landed the Thompson party at a wharf in the non-leper section, where live the doctors, nurses, French Catholic Sisters of Charity and administrative employes. The party walked a few hundred paces to the green gate which lepers may not pass. A sign over the arch read: "Colonel Thompson, we welcome you, and hope you will look at Philippine things in a fair, impartial way." All the lepers able to walk met him, although some were pitifully crippled.

Several hundred in a parade led the party through the colony. Three bands—drums, cornets, violins and saxaphones—played American jazz tunes several years old, including "Over There." The Culion policemen, firemen and sanitary squad were all in uniform. The Filipino women were in quaint flowing native costumes. The school girls wore white middy blouses, blue and white skirts with ribbons and white shoes and stockings. The bare-legged Boy Scouts were in blue uniforms, with red scarfs, khaki hats and white tennis shoes. There were a few Moros in picturesque Mohammedan fezzes. All these were lepers.

"We Want Independence."

American and Filipino flags were carried side by side. Banners carried in the parade proclaimed: "We don't care for economic development; what we want first is our national independence." At their head the Moros carried a banner reading: "Mindanao and Sulu strongly protest the Bacon bill and demand Philippine independence." Mindanao and Sulu are Southern islands which may be separated from the rest of the Philippines.

The Moro banner was carried by a Christian Filipino named Sylvester Morino, who is receiving $100 monthly in compensation from the United States as a World War veteran. The independence demonstration was probably staged by Filipino political appointees in the colony.

The party inspected the clinic and saw arm injections of chaulmoogra oil, which has had wonderful results in checking leprosy. They visited the hospital and saw lepers in advanced stages of the disease, hopeless cripples condemned to slow death. There are fewer such now, however, as the treatment arrests the disease before that stage. A majority of those at Culion are non-repulsive and are able to walk around and do all the work necessary to keep their community going.

Colonel Thompson made a speech in the plaza extolling General Wood's work in Culion. The schoolgirls sang native songs. Seven leper girls made a living "Welcome" sign, wearing letters made from American and Filipino flags. On leaving the colony the party washed their hands and the soles of their shoes in disinfectant to avoid the danger of infection.

Four American Lepers.

There are four American lepers in the colony, but two are declared "negative" and are expected to be discharged as soon as cured. Edward Newsbaumer of Norwalk, Ohio, who contracted leprosy after fighting in the Philippines in the Spanish War, has been at Culion for ten years. He runs the Culion Electric, Ice and Fish Company. Another American recently married a Filipino girl in Culion.

There are 5,121 lepers here, including 3,068 men, 1,500 women, 351 boys and 202 girls. They have movies and give native plays. The country is rocky and barren but the colonists raise rice, vegetables and poultry. Some have little farms on the hillsides around the colony. They live in thatched huts made of bamboo and covered with nipa palms in grooves of cocoanut palms.

The colony makes a beautiful picture, with the green hillsides covered with tropical palms and dotted with white and yellow houses, a few with red roofs, all rising from a calm blue southern sea. The beauty of the scene contrasts with the patient misery which faces the inhabitants, but the island is becoming less a place of despair and more "an isle of hope." Five hundred of the patients have been declared negative and 300 have been sent home in the last five years.

Two American doctors, H. Windsor Wade and Granville A. Perkins, live in Culion, each with his wife. Dr. Perkins has a ten-year-old daughter. Ten thousand miles from home, isolated from the rest of the world, these, with the Filipino doctors, nurses and sisters, they are sacrificing themselves to help mankind.

GENEVA, July 25.—The Swiss papers, under headings like "King Lost in Switzerland," are asking the present whereabouts of King Boris of Bulgaria, who, about a fortnight ago, left Milan, crossed the Swiss frontier at Chiasso and then disappeared.

The King, who is traveling incognito as Count Raliski with his sister, Princess Eudoxia, probably prefers going his way unknown, especially as he has had no previous holiday for eight years and wants a rest.

The Journal Bund of Berne professes to know where the King is staying, but states that it has been requested not to publish the name of the Swiss resort.

NORMAL SERVICE ON I. R. T. IS NEAR

Man, However, Is Not Molested at Manhattan Casino—McLaughlin to Get Untermyer Letter.

Restoration of normal service on the Interborough lines will be announced in a day or two, it was said yesterday at the Interborough offices, 165 Broadway. The west side subway expresses and the east side subway local trains ran at full speed yesterday and full speed service on all lines will be resumed shortly.

There were 341 old motormen at work Saturday and 338 yesterday. The number of old switchmen, 126, remained the same, making 464 old men employed. Altogether, it was announced there were about 700 motormen and 300 switchmen employed, or 1,000 as compared with the pre-strike normal of 736.

A man denounced as "an Interborough spy" was found in Manhattan Casino yesterday afternoon and some of the strikers became angry but their leaders warned them not to molest him. Threatened with arrest for unlawful entry unless he produced credentials, the man displayed a green Interborough pass describing him as "A. Smith," employed as "special." The pass bore the number 06441. To a policeman stationed at the Casino the man had previously said he was "from headquarters." The patrolman berated him for his action and said the strikers had not given any trouble.

"Those fellows have always behaved themselves," he said. "What are you trying to do? Fellows like you stir up trouble."

The unwelcome visitor was in the hall several hours before his identity was suspected.

Detective John J. Broderick of the Industrial Squad, accused by the Interborough strikers of having led an unprovoked attack on some of their members Friday night, was away for the week-end when reporters attempted to obtain his version of the affair yesterday.

Philip D. Hoyt, secretary to Commissioner McLaughlin, said last night that the Commissioner had not received Samuel Untermyer's letter requesting an investigation of the incident. "On receiving the letter tomorrow he will have something to say," said Mr. Hoyt.

PIRATES AND REBELS ACTIVE IN CARIBBEAN

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, July 25.—The days of Captain Kidd returned to the Caribbean Sea recently when a group of new pirates, mostly negroes from British Honduras, with a white captain, sailing in a small schooner without a flag, raided the coast of Quintana Roo.

They looted rubber and chicle camps and took a large quantity of crude rubber and chicle which was ready for shipment to the United States.

Small boats owned by the Mexican Government tried to follow the schooner, but owing to its speed they were unable to locate the refuge of the pirates.

Government reports are that the pirates received their information from chicle workers, who were enemies of certain companies. Owing to the lack of protection by the State Government and its inability to protect the entire coast, the Governor today requests that a Mexican warship patrol the coast.

It is believed that the pirates have a base on one of the hundred small island keys off the Yucatan and Quintana Roo.

Also it is reported that a certain island near the Quintana Roo coast is being used as base by a group of revolutionists, who are developing a new movement against the Government of Chamorro in Nicaragua. These revolutionists are supposed to have obtained their arms and ammunitions in Spain, transhipped to Cuba, thence to their island.

They have, it is added, two large bombing planes, which will fly from Caribbean water directly to the East Coast of Nicaragua, where natives opposed to Chamorro are awaiting the arrival of arms to start their revolt.

TO INSPECT CALF AND KID.

Harris Seeks to Extend Sanitary Code on Meat Shipments.

Dr. Louis I. Harris, Health Commissioner, announced yesterday that he would seek a change of the sanitary code to prevent the shipping of uninspected calves and kids into the New York markets.

The present code provides for the shipping, without further formality, of meats which have already been inspected by Federal or other State inspectors. For meats which have not been inspected, the code requires shipment with the head and entrails intact, but excepts calves and kids. It is therefore possible to ship such animals with all traces of possible tubercular condition removed. It is to correct this situation that Dr. Harris seeks to alter the code.

PRODS SMITH TO ACT IN INQUIRY ON MILK

WANTS 'HIGHER UPS' CAUGHT

ASKS SUPPORT FOR HARRIS

Commissioner Says Walker Is Anxious to Help in Whatever Way Will Do Most Good.

The Citizens Union made public last night a second letter to Governor Smith reiterating its request that he cenvene extraordinary terms of the Supreme Court in the milk graft investigation and start Grand Jury investigation under its authority.

The letter cites two occasions on which the union has approached Mayor Walker with the same suggestion, and sets forth the Mayor's failure to request the Governor's intervention as justification for the Governor to step in without Mr. Walker's invitation. The Mayor, it is asserted, expressed himself in favor of intervention by the Governor on both occasions, but on the second he explained that Governor Smith was opposed to such a course.

Says Others Are Implicated.

"The delay which has already occurred is proving prejudicial to the public interest," the letter says. "Further delay may be fatal. The uncontradicted testimony at the Clougher trial can leave no doubt that persons higher up are implicated in this ugly mess."

The letter praises the work of Dr. Louis I. Harris, Health Commissioner, in trying to clear up the milk situation.

"As his investigation has proceeded, however," it continues, "it has become increasingly clear that, under existing conditions, his best efforts are bound to fail in securing a complete revelation and correction of all the evils that existed. This is due in large part to the limited territorial jurisdiction of the respective District Attorneys and the practical difficulty in the way of coordinating their independent inquiries. Because of these limitations we have made our request that the powers of the State be brought to bear, unrestricted by county lines. We are certain that with such State conduct of the inquiry Commissioner Harris would cooperate fully and would be able to render even more effective service than heretofore."

Dr. Harris said yesterday that he was going over the additional evidence brought out in the past week. He said the continual new testimony made the situation one of constant change and that he and Mayor Walker had conferred on the best means of conducting the investigations.

Says Mayor Is Ready to Help.

"Mayor Walker is fully alive to the situation," he said, "and is anxious to help in whatever way will do the most good."

Mayor Walker could not be reached last night.

Assistant District Attorney Pecora has obtained the aid of the police in the search for James Francis Smith of 373 West 125th Street, who has been accused of arranging for an approach to a juror in the trial of William Kehoe on charges growing out of the milk investigations. If Smith returns to his home he will be taken to Mr. Pecora's office for questioning today.

HAS LOST TWO MILLIONS, SAYS VANDERBILT JR.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 25.—Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr., who spent the week-end at the Ambassador Hotel here, said today that the "differences" between himself and his family have already cost him nearly $2,000,000.

One million dollars, said young Mr. Vanderbilt, has been diverted from the fortune he will inherit to cancel notes against his newspapers held by his family; another million, comprising a trust fund created for him by his family several years ago has been revoked.

Young Mr. Vanderbilt vouchsafed the information that although when he returned from Europe aboard the Leviathan last week he made no move to communicate with his family. His father, General Vanderbilt, made a hurried trip from Newport to New York and a brief interview took place between them. The General told him, said Mr. Vanderbilt, that the trust fund had been revoked and "a mere pittance" substituted. At the same time he succeeded in his determination to obtain from his father the cancellation of the million dollars' worth of demand notes against his newspapers. This was agreed to, he said, after a perfunctory inquiry concerning each other's health. Then the interview ended and young Mr. Vanderbilt came to Atlantic City.

VAN DYKE PREACHES FAREWELL SERMON

MUST GET MEN IN, NOT OUT

Fashionable Community Needs the Gospel Perhaps More Than Any Other, He Declares.

Dr. Tertius van Dyke preached his farewell sermon yesterday at the Park Avenue Presbyterian Church, where he has occupied the pulpit for eight and a half years. He has accepted the pastorate of the First Congregational Church of Washington, Conn.

Six years ago, when he announced that he planned to make this change, Dr. van Dyke gave as one of his reasons that New Yorkers wanted not only life with a jazz tempo, but religion of the same brand.

"A church must never become an exclusive little club, shut off from the bitter needs of a troubled and lost world," he said. "That would be putting the church above the purpose for which it exists; that would be the beginning of spiritual death.

"This community needs the Gospel, perhaps more than any other, simply because it tends to consider itself fashionable, superior. There are any number of people along Park Avenue who are Christians of the highest type; but there is here—among riches of another sort—a famine of hearing the words of the Lord. There is a fine work to be accomplished here, through the Christian energy of the members of this church.

"In going away, I cherish not the slightest feeling of discouragement for the future of this church's work. I have no hesitancy in leaving in the hands of the men and women here the work in which my heart is very deeply engaged.

"The longer a man lives, the more he sees of actual conditions, then the more surely will he find his only moral, tenable view of conduct in Jesus Christ. There is no middle course, as I see it. You must either follow Him with passionate devotion, or look upon Him as one of the greatest impostors that ever lived.

"The Church today is coming to a fresh realization of His leadership. Creeds and dogma are no longer used as absolute and final instruments in judging a man's Christianity. No longer do we consider these as the only means of entrance a man has into the Kingdom. Our business, as churchmen, is to get men into the Church, not to keep them out.

"No sensible Christian would insist on denominationalism as a primary consideration. And yet we're only beginning to realize how secondary it is, after all. Thank God, the ministry, too, is being rescued from its position of unreasoning authority."

DR. BROOKS CONDEMNS CRITICS OF THE YOUNG

Insists Religion Has Not Lost Hold, but Says "Scaring" Persons Into It Has.

Declaring that the assertions that young people are increasing in moral degeneracy is a deliberate misrepresentation of the facts, the Rev. Dr. Duncan W. Brooks in his sermon yesterday at St. Thomas's Episcopal Church, Bushwick Avenue and Cooper Street, Brooklyn, said that the people of our time had more of the genuine spirit of Christ than certain periods in the past.

"The time has come," Dr. Brooks said, "for preachers to quit talking about the younger generation growing worse. Where is their faith in Christ and His power to uplift mankind?

"To be sure our young people are no longer being reached by the type of preaching that depicts them as moral lepers. The old-style revivalistic type of preaching no longer reaches them, because it is based upon a false premise. How well we remember the well-meaning revivalist of the past who preached a 'fire and brimstone' religion and called unto the people to be saved in order to avoid an everlasting hell.

"The religion that Christ taught, so far as I find, was that type of religion that made its appeal to the intellect and the soul and impelled people by the sweet influence of his own personality.

"To 'scare' young people into 'getting religion' is a thing of the past. To win them by the goodness, the love, the mercy, the justice and the manliness of Christ is the method of today."

SEES WORLD FULL OF EVIL.

Special to The New York Times.

RAMSEY, N. J., July 25.—The Rev. W. R. Siegart, pastor of the Church of the Redeemer here, preached tonight at the Union services of his church with St. John's Episcopal and the First Presbyterian of Ramsey.

Mr. Siegart said it was difficult in this world to take the better viewpoint when war, industrial slavery, racial and international hatreds, lawlessness and evil in many forms were evident and visible.

"But while our hearts yearn for the beauty of the world and the good things therein as we entreat the father of all mercies to open our eyes to the world," he said, "may we look with unprejudiced sight upon all of its aspects and see evil as well as good, sorrow as well as joy. Let us see the adverse elements of the world as obstacles to be overcome and as opportunities which beckon to us for assistance."

Offerman Views Jesus as a Hero.

Jesus, heralded by John the Baptist, who was the most popular preacher of his day, first of all captured the imagination of the people as a popular hero, said the Rev. H. C. Offerman, pastor of Christ Lutheran Church in East Nineteenth Street yesterday. "After the Pharisees, who hated the brotherliness preached by Christ, began to draw the people away from him, said Mr. Offerman, "many who had at first admired Him, misunderstood Him and then began to criticize Him. The looser, however, the popular bond the closer grew the intimate circle of Christ's disciples."

Dr. Maguire Depicts Life as Wrestling Match, With Conflict Needed for Victory Over World

"All life is a wrestling match," said the Rev. Dr. Gabriel Maguire, visiting preacher from Charleston, W. Va., in his sermon yesterday at the First Baptist Church, Broadway and Seventy-ninth Street. Dr. Maguire's sermon was built around the midnight struggle of Jacob with the Angel of Mercy.

"From the Garden of Eden down through the ages life has been nothing but a midnight struggle for man," said Dr. Maguire. "For Joseph there was a pit; for Daniel a lion's den; for Peter prison; for Paul shipwreck and a dungeon; for Jesus a cross. And for us, what is there? A weak body.

"Some one once said to a Christian reformer, 'The world is against you.' The reformer answered, 'The world is not against me; I am against the world.' There can be no victory without a conflict.

"You have found life a wrestling match. If you haven't found it so today, you will find it so tomorrow. You have wrestled with business, with disease, with evil appetites, with your conscience, with life. But it is through the sorrows of life alone that you can come to the highest Christian experience.

"It is trouble that saves and blesses us. Draw the enemy's fire, come up to the front line of trenches in the battle of life and you will emerge the victor, for you are fighting a conquered foe."

PASTOR SAYS BIBLE IS NOT ALL TRUTH

DECRIES PRIMITIVE FAITH

God Wants Us to Increase Our Knowledge, He Adds—Hits Fundamentalists as Intolerant.

The Rev. Clifton Macon, preaching yesterday morning in St. Bartholomew's Church, Park Avenue and Fifty-first Street, appealed for conviction rather than credulity in religious matters. He added that in his opinion the Bible was not all truth, any more than a gold mine was all gold.

"People have an exaggerated loyalty," he said, "to the letter of this Book. They are credulous about things on which they should have intelligent convictions. Therefore, fear, credulity and superstition form a large part of what people call their belief in God.

"God does not want our fears, or credulity or our superstitions. He wants our intelligence, and He knows when we are using all the intellectual powers with which He has endowed us. He wants us to avoid crude, puerile, primitive beliefs. We have done away with the scientific knowledge of 4,000 years ago. We no longer believe that the earth is flat, or that rain falls from the windows of Heaven. Why should we make an exception when we come to the Bible?

"We of today must be open minded and eager to increase our knowledge. Why do we disagree with the so-called Fundamentalists? Because, it seems to me, they are rigid and intolerant of development.

"Do you believe in a God who resorts to talking serpeants and asses? Do you believe in a God who visits parental sins on little children? In a God who is cruel and vengeful?

"I was recently talking with a mother who complained that her son, after graduating from college, took little interest in the Church. It appeared that he had had a strict literal interpretation of the Bible taught him in Sunday school.

"Of course the inevitable happened. He went away to college and was taught something of science, and became convinced that his parents and Sunday school teachers were old fogies.

"There was the mistake. If you let your children go to Sunday school and be taught that the Bible is to be taken literally, you are jeopardizing their faith."

FRIENDSHIP FOR FRANCE WILL DEEPEN, HE SAYS

STAMFORD, Conn., July 25.—Preaching in the First Presbyterian Church of Stamford this morning, Dr. S. Edward Young, pastor of the Bedford Presbyterian Church, Brooklyn, addressed a congregation that included many New Yorkers.

"Eyewitnesses of France's suffering in the World War," he said, "and all who have seen the way some Americans flaunt their money and bad manners abroad, will understand better the increasing demonstrations in France against Americans. At such times the sober sense and restraint of the less excitable and more judicious in both countries can save the day for international good fellowship.

"America and France must be friends forever. It would have been magnificent if France, justly owing us vast sums borrowed to preserve her liberties, had continued, without a murmur, to pay her honest debts, and it would have been magnificent if we, remembering the priceless help of France in our struggle for independence, and recognizing how France held back German militarism that threatened us also, had postponed further the date of France's payment or canceled it altogether.

"But neither nation has been perfectly magnificent, and the common challenge is to both nations, together with the British Commonwealth, to work for world-wide brotherhood. Individuals imbued with Christ's appreciation of humanity are the ones to turn the tide from incipient strife to a yet deeper spiritual fellowship of Frenchmen and Americans."

Sees Church Spirit "Power House."

Speaking on "The Foes in the Household," the Rev. Dr. Albert E. Ribourg, rector of St. Andrew's Episcopal Church, 2,067 Fifth Avenue, declared yesterday that the greatest battles of life were fought within a man's own heart.

"The Church of God," Dr. Ribourg said, "is not a social club where people congregate to meet each other and so advance their social status. It is a spiritual 'power house,' where individual souls are charged with the spirit of love, service and sacrifice, thus becoming a source of strength for all men and society."

DEATH, HE ASSERTS, IS EFFECT OF FEAR

SECRET TO PROLONGATION

Biologist Says It is Found in the Will and Wish to Overcome Heredity.

"Theoretically, man can live forever," declared Dr. Arthur D. Rees, lecturer and biologist, yesterday in an address on "Natural Religion and Personal Heredity" at the Community Church, Park Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street.

"The accepted duration of threescore years and ten is without foundation, except man's willingness to accept it," he said, "and when we look at death we do not find the cause of it in the cell; we must look elsewhere for it. No organ will stop unless nutrition is stopped. As long as nutrition is continued, life will continue and the organism will continue to grow.

"Death is a matter of psychology and mentality. Death is simply a fear carried into effect. We are told that we will die when we attain an age somewhere between 50 and 70. We believe this and look forward all our lives to dying at that age. As we think, so we are. To live forever we must conquer the tendencies that destroy life."

Dr. Rees praised the philosophy of S. N. Patten, who anticipated the trend of modern psychology in making human motives the central problem of economics, and said:

"Heredity says, 'I put you there, and there you shall stay,' and the wish to do and to be is always in conflict with heredity. But some psycho-plasmic development creates a will to rise out of the limitations of heredity. The will and wish to overcome heredity is the secret to prolongation of life, and to man's adjustment both to the physical universe in which he lives and to the moral and spiritual order of which he is a part."

SAYS MANKIND YEARNS TO SEE AND KNOW GOD

Philip's request to Christ, "Lord, show us the Father," is the universal plea of man, expressing a longing to see and know God as he knows his fellow-man, said the Rev. A. Steimle in his sermon yesterday at the Evangelical Lutheran Church of the Advent, Broadway and Ninety-third Street.

"Man seeks to discover an individual from whom he may receive blessings, grace and favor," he said. "This is proved by the innumerable temples and places where man has worshipped throughout the ages. In his search he may change the incorruptible into the corruptible, the creator into the creative, but it is a definite personality for which he seeks.

"We are not satisfied to bow down to any force however great or almighty. It is only when we say: 'I believe in God the Father,' that we express the close personal relationship of the fatherhood of God. The sonship of Jesus Christ added love which is the great outstanding characteristic of Christian religion."

The Rev. Steimle said Christ's answer to Philip's question was of immense significance because His words, "When you have seen Me you have seen the Father," were proof of John's statement of His coming. "In Him," he said, "is expressed the image of the Godhead. In Him the revelation of God is complete and final, in Him we have the last word from God. It would matter little to us if Jesus were only a perfect man, an ideal individual; what is important is that He is the essential God."

Christianity, the Rev. Mr. Steimle explained, is God going after man; heathenism is man going after God—and being unable to find Him. The place to find him, he said, was in a study of His word.

Christianity Religion of Outdoors.

"Christianity is a religion of the great out-of-doors," said the Rev. Dr. Henry Hugh Prostor, pastor of the Nazarene Congregational Church, Herkimer Street and Troy Avenue, Brooklyn, yesterday in his final sermon before his vacation.

"Among the voices of Summer that call us is gratitude for God's manifold gifts in nature which come to a climax at this season. Summer emancipates us from the conditions of Winter, brings us nature's best and leads us out into the open.

"Meditation is another voice of Summer. Thought and action are two inseparable elements in life, and this is the season for emphasis on the meditative side of life. This is a time to read and get fresh thoughts, to plan bigger and better for the coming year, and through prayer to let in higher intelligence, new strength and nobler purpose."

URGES PROPER USE OF LEISURE HOURS

WORK FOR THE CHURCH

Pastor Points the Way to Closer Union of Education and Labor "Too Long Divorced."

The Rev. C. Everett Wagner, pastor of the West Side Methodist Episcopal Church, at 461 West Forty-fourth Street, in his sermon at the evening services yesterday spoke of the need for the proper employment of leisure time. The occupations of a man's leisure hours present the true key to his character rather than the work by which he gains a living, he said.

"Leisure," he continued, "is spent in carrying on the innermost longings of people. Naturally, with the recent acquiring of a wealth of leisure time it is squandered and dissipated like sudden riches usually are. Students of social life superficially thought that hours of ease would automatically bring a decided improvement in living. With the diversified ways in which these spare hours have been concentrated in searching for permanent happiness where it could never be found, social students are now insisting that people must be coached in learning how to use their leisure for the largest amount of lasting joy."

Mr. Wagner said that the church should teach people how best to employ their spare hours. "When these spare hours are applied to continued education for men and women," he said, "it will bring about the marriage of labor and education which have been too long divorced."

DEPLORES PETTINESS OF CLASHES ON CREED

A return of the gospel meeting and the old-fashioned street-corner evangelist was demanded yesterday morning by the Rev. Dr. Lucius B. Compton of Asheville, N. C., at the Old Tent Evangel, being held this Summer at the Manhattan Congregational Church, Broadway and Seventy-sixth Street.

"We do not need church federation or organization," he said, "but we do need more of the presence of the living Jesus and the Holy Ghost in men's hearts. Christ was not a denominationalist, and He was not concerned with the petty squabbles of different sects. We must be real Christians and realize that God is the Father of us all, and the knowledge of that is sufficient. Think of the grandeur of calling God Father, for we can really call Him Father without at all becoming too intimate or blasphemous. Indeed, the fact that God manifests Himself as Father in all of us is a greater miracle than any healing of the sick or raising of the dead.

"The reason why many religious people derive little comfort from their belief and remain sad is that their vision of God comes from the outside and not from within. Instead of religion, there should be an inner revelation, and the divine, living God-man should be in the heart of hearts. We are not to suppose or hope, but actually to know. That knowledge is a deep and revealed knowledge and is not dependent upon intellect, ritual or denomination. It is the real sign of a Christian."

COUNSELS STOICISM IN HEAT

Spirit Should Triumph, Says Rev. F. D. Niedermeyer at Perth Amboy.

PERTH AMBOY, N. J., July 25.—In a sermon to his Sunday school this morning the Rev. Frederick D. Niedermeyer, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church here, said that the worth of Christianity as a life philosophy lay partly in how well one applied it to every-day needs. A case in point, he said, was its value to the individual as aid in hot weather.

"The havoc wrought in our lives by a period of high temperature," he declared, "may be so great that wisdom counsels us to be forearmed against it. The thoughtful practice of Christianity will help us to go through a heat wave without occasioning a number of possible regrets. Too often we are so concerned with our physical discomfort that we have no attention for spiritual things, and in such a time the spirit of man should rule and triumph."

CHRIST AS HISTORIC FIGURE

Dr. Foulkes Says No Critic Ever Has Denied Jesus Existed.

Jesus is "a changeless Christ," according to the Rev. Dr. William Hiram Foulkes, pastor of the Old First Church of Newark, who preached yesterday morning in the Central Presbyterian Church, Madison Avenue and Fifty-seventh Street.

"To most of us," he said, "He is first of all the historic Christ. We dare not abandon the assumption of the historic element of our faith. There has never been a critic who has been so silly as to say that Christ never existed."

Dr. Foulkes asserted that the testimony of the Apostles was proof of "the historicity of Christ's burial and resurrection."

Many persons, he declared, demand "more light on the face of Christ when they fail to look upon the light already there."

MORE TIME GIVEN TO ELECTRIFY ROADS

ONE PETITION IS DENIED

Service Board Says Dock Company Has Failed to Meet the Law's Provisions.

The Public Service Commission has granted extensions of time under the law passed in 1921 requiring electrification of railroads in New York City to the New York Central Railroad, Long Island Railroad and the Bush Terminal Company. The petition of the New York Dock Company, which operates the Fulton, Baltic and Atlantic terminals in Brooklyn, was denied. In denying this application, Chairman Prendergast commented as follows:

"There has been no effort to comply with the requirements of the statute, nor is there any promise that if an extension of time should be granted there would be a future attempt at compliance, all of which indicates a finding that sufficient reasons do not exist for the extension prayed for there, nor for any extension under the present circumstances."

The extensions granted the New York Central applied as follows: Yonkers Branch, Putnam Division, time for compliance extended, nunc pro tunc, from Jan. 1, 1926, to Feb. 1, 1926; Main Line, Putnam Division, including Saw Mill River Branch, to Jan. 1, 1930; Port Morris Branch and electric division sidings and yards, to July 1, 1927; West Side freight line between Spuyten Duyvil and Seventy-second Street, to July 1, 1929, without prejudice to the right of the railroad to apply for further extension on or before June 1, 1929; West Side freight line, between Seventy-second Street and St. John's Park, or other southerly terminal that may be provided, to July 1, 1930, without prejudice to further extension on application filed on or before June 1, 1930.

To Test Diesel Locomotives.

The commission's announcement states that two Diesel locomotives will be in service on the Putnam Division by December and will be tested before further orders for these locomotives are made for this line.

"The electrification of the west side freight lines and yards involves the elimination of various grade crossings in the neighborhood of Manhattanville and Dyckman Street. This is under the jurisdiction of the Transit Commission, which is presently engaged in supervising elimination under the Railroad law and Chapter 510, Laws of 1926. Such work will probably take from two to three years to complete, as it involves the elevation of tracks over a number of existing streets.

"For operation between Harmon and the Seventy-second Street yard two experimental freight electric locomotives were ordered some time since for delivery in March of this year, but the actual delivery has been postponed until August. Seven electric locomotives for switching (using third rail for current) have already been delivered for use on this line as well as the Port Morris branch.

"With reference to the electrification of the west side freight line between Seventy-second Street and St. John's Park, the petitioner has sought to acquire by purchase three experimental Diesel locomotives. A contract was closed Jan. 7, 1926. Two additional contracts are expected to be awarded within the current month and these experimental locomotives can not be delivered before July, 1927. Sufficient reasons appear to exist to warrant the inference that at least a year for development and experimental work would be required and two years thereafter for the construction and delivery of the number which would be necessary for this service.

"Petitioner has made substantial progress in an effort to comply with the provisions of the statute. That expedition which should reasonably be expected, in view of the circumstances, has been employed. The plans have been circumspectly prepared and much has been accomplished in the five major undertakings. The reasons, which are required by the amendment to the statute, have been considered and deemed sufficient."

Long Island Gets Till 1931.

The Long Island Railroad is given until Jan. 1, 1931, to complete electrification. The company submitted evidence to show that it has a definite $3,000,000 program for the current year and like programs for subsequent years, the total cost for electrification being estimated at $13,000,000.

"It is manifest," says the memorandum, "from this survey of facts that this company is sincerely endeavoring to comply with the statutory requirements and that its program will insure compliance therewith."

The Bush Terminal Company, operating piers and terminals on the Brooklyn waterfront between Second Avenue, Thirty-first Street, the Pierhead line and Thirty-ninth Street and tracks in Forty-first Street and First Avenue, principally on private property, received an extension until Jan. 1, 1931. The company plans to install certain temporary overhead power construction to test the feasibility of handling cars from floats by means of electric locomotives.

AMERICAN SHIP LINES. GAIN.

Privately Owned Fleets in Ocean Trade Show Tonnage Increase.

WASHINGTON, July 25 (AP).—Steady and substantial progress in activities "of American shipowners in ocean-borne commerce" is reported by Shipping Board experts for the last year, the privately own American merchant fleet in operation July 1 this year being 10 per cent. greater in numbers and tonnage than a year ago.

The report says there were 1,206 such craft of more than 1,000 tons gross, aggregate gross tonnage, 5,760,000, compared to 1,093 ships and 5,193,500 tons a year ago. Passenger ships increased from 168 to 175, and there were 100 additional general cargo boats in operation.

The tanker fleet alone decreased among foreign-going vessels, from 131 to 115. Only 7.2 per cent. of the privately owned merchant fleet was inactive on July 1, while less than 35 per cent. of the Government-owned fleet was in service.

During the year the Government fleet decreased from 1,211 vessels, aggregating 5,876,400 gross tons, to 1,005 vessels, aggregating 5,106,800 tons, 206 ships having been disposed of.

GATINEAU POWER CO. OFFERS SECOND ISSUE

$12,500,000 of Bonds Come on the Market Today—$1,291,000 for Little Rock, Ark.

A second phase of the financing of the power development on the Gatineau River in Quebec is introduced with the offering today of a new issue of $12,500,000 Gatineau Power Company 6 per cent. sinking fund gold debentures by a syndicate headed by the Chase Securities Corporation, Bankers Trust Company and Harris, Forbes & Co., and including Lee, Higginson & Co., Blair & Co., Inc., the Union Trust Company of Pittsburgh, the Continental and Commercial Trust and Savings Bank, Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., and Redmond & Co. The debentures are priced at 99½ and accrued interest, to yield 6.05 per cent.

The company's first financing consisted of a $25,000,000 issue of 5 per cent. bonds, which were oversubscribed on the day of offering last week. The Gatineau project includes four plants now being constructed, which will develop a total of 397,500 horsepower. Net earnings available for interest are estimated in excess of $5,400,000 annually, or more than three times the requirements on the entire $37,500,000 of the two issues. The Gatineau company is a subsidiary of the International Paper Company and is developing one of the largest power projects in Canada.

The William R. Compton Company, Ames, Emerich & Co., the Northern Trust Company and the Federal Commerce Trust Company of St. Louis are offering a new issue of $1,291,000 Little Rock (Ark.) school district serial 4 per cent. bonds, due Sept. 1, 1932 to 1955. The bonds, which are exempt from all Federal income taxation, are priced to yield 4.40 per cent. for all maturities.

SEATS RISE IN PRICE ON PRODUCE EXCHANGE

Latest Sale Made at $3,150, Due to Coming Start of Trading in Futures.

As a result of the start of trading in grain futures on the New York Produce Exchange on August 2, prices of memberships in the exchange have made sharp advances. The most recent price was $3,150, a new high figure. This seat was purchased by Axel Hansen of the Hansen Produce Company, Chairman of the Grain Futures Committee of the exchange. When the committee started work to bring about the New York Grain Futures Market last February seats on the exchange were selling at around $1,150 each.

Many seats have changed hands in the last two weeks at $3,000 each. It is expected the price will continue as high as if not higher than that paid by Mr. Hansen. Grain operators from Winnipeg, Baltimore, Duluth, Buffalo and Kansas City have become members.

A new Produce Exchange ticker will be placed in service when the futures market opens next Monday, according to B. H. Wunder, President of the exchange. The Western Union Telegraph Company will supply the service. Plans are also being made, President Wunder said, to install a twenty-second cable service between here, Liverpool and London.

HOGS LOWER AT WEEK-END.

CHICAGO, July 25.—Hogs declined 65 cents to $1 from the high point of the week and closed 50 cents to 80 cents lower than a week ago. The top for the week was $14.50 and the close was around $13.85, with the average at the last $12, while the week's average was $12.25, or 60 cents lower than the previous week and $1 under last year. Packers bought 96,000 for the week.

Farmers are marketing their sows at a more rapid rate and they are averaging 300 to 350 pounds and are a larger percentage of the total than for many months.

It was a good week for light yearlings around 900 to 1,000 pounds and for fancy heifers of about the same weights, with the top on yearling steers $10.65. Heavy beef steers, which were in the larger supply, were difficult to dispose of and closed 25 cents to 40 cents lower, while yearlings were 25 cents to 40 cents higher.

The average of beef steers for the week was $9.35, the same as the previous week, compared with $12.25 last year. Butchers' stock closed 15 cents to 25 cents higher on the better grades and easier on the common. Feeders were in active demand, with prices firm to 25 cents higher.

Sheep and lambs did better last week, with an upturn of 75 cents to $1 on Westerns and 75 cents on native lambs, with an average for all lambs of $14.30, a gain of 40 cents for the week, but a loss of 60 cents from last year. Sheep averaged $5.85 against $5.75 the previous week and $8 last year.

Receipts of cattle in Chicago for the week of 53,800 compared with 46,566 last year; hogs, 125,900, or 21,000 more than last year; sheep, 59,200, or 6,000 in excess of last year.

COPING WITH ICE DEMANDS.

400,000,000 Pounds Used Last Week, but Plants Well Supplied.

Consumption of ice in New York City during last week, the first extended hot spell the city has had thus far this year, totaled more than 400,000,000 pounds, according to C. C. Small, President of the Knickerbocker Ice Company. The city's ice plants "are meeting every demand of the hot days and no shortage has developed," Mr. Small said.

"Reserve stocks of the ice producing companies have proved adequate," Mr. Small pointed out. "Large reserve stores of ice are held at strategic points throughout the city to supplement current production. The largest consuming industries were the meat and milk industries and the heaviest consuming district was the lower east side. One of the Knickerbocker Company's plants in that district distributed more than 3,000,000 pounds of ice daily during last week."

Security Trust Stock Action.

Common stockholders of the International Securities Trust of America at a meeting in Boston authorized a 200 per cent. share distribution to shareholders of record at the close of business on July 24. Previous common shares, which are to be exchanged for three new common shares of beneficial interest in the trust, had risen in bid price from $48 in July, 1925, to $76 at the time of the distribution.

AUSTRIA'S FINANCES FOUND IN GOOD SHAPE

IDLE WORKERS INCREASE

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, July 25.—The forty-second and final report of League Commissioner Zimmermann, given out yesterday, recapitulates in tables of comparative statistics the history of Austrian reconstruction. It shows that the plans greatly benefited the country financially, but that economic construction lagged far behind, and that the situation from this viewpoint is still unfavorable.

The improvement in the country's finances since reconstruction began is proved by the following budgetary figures, excluding investments of 10,000,000 schillings: In 1923, a deficit of 82,000,000 schillings; in 1924, a surplus of 90,000,000, and in 1925, a surplus of 167,000,000. This is due partly to increased revenue, but even more to decreased expenditure.

The expenditure in 1925 was the lowest attained but still was 28,000,000 schillings more than the maximum the League's Financial Committee set. Commissioner Zimmerman explains that this was due to force majeure. The revenues have also exceeded the League estimates.

At the beginning of reconstruction Austria promised to discharge 100,000 officials by July, 1925. To date 85,187 have been dismissed, not including 11,000 employes of the Southern Railway subsequently attached to the State. Despite this, the amount of the budget's expenses for salaries and pensions has unceasingly increased, rising from 580,000,000 schillings in 1923 to 968,000,000 in 1926.

The amount of the League loan still remaining at the disposal of Austria is 217,000,000 schillings, including accumulated interest. Pledged revenues during 1925 and the first five months of 1926 are quadruple the amount needed to cover the loan service.

The report declares that Austria is still suffering from the economic crisis which started in 1924. While the commercial deficit last year, 934,000,000 schillings, was 500,000,000 less than in 1924, it is pointed out that this was due to restricted imports, especially coal, indicating diminishing production. This is borne out by the figure of the unemployed, which each year since 1924 has been greater than in the same period of the preceding year. The number receiving doles reached the highest point, 226,000, last February. It is now 150,000. The steadily falling consumption of coal is given as another indication of the economic situation.

Credit is given to the Government for its great efforts to improve markets through commercial treaties, a great number of which have been negotiated "without however succeeding in the desired result—the diminishing of duties sufficiently to stimulate Austrian industry decisively."

RECORD GRAIN HARVEST PREDICTED IN RUSSIA

MOSCOW, July 25.—Figures for the Russian harvest are revealed by a resolution of the Central Committee of the Communist Party regarding the agricultural policy published in today's Pravda. According to the Central Statistic Bureau the estimate on June 15 amounted to a total grain harvest of 2,820,000,000 bushels, compared with 2,508,000,000 last year, or an increase of 10 per cent. More recent figures by the Central Statistic Bureau show a still further increase, so that the total may well reach 3,000,000,000 bushels.

Taking the June 15 figures as a conservative estimate would leave a surplus of 500,000,000 to 600,000,000 bushels over that of the needs peasants for their families, their cattle and seed reserves. In point of fact this figure will probably be too low, because the peasants already have large reserves. It is more likely that the surplus will be 750,000,000 bushels, which as the resolution points out must be purchased somehow if grain prices are to be prevented from falling to a level that will lead the peasants to reduce the area of planted grain next year.

Unfortunately there are three difficulties:

2. Goods prices are so high, owing to the goods famine, that the peasants won't buy them, which means the peasants won't sell their grain.

3. Internal expenses of transport, storage, &c., are so high as to make the export of grain far less profitable than should be the case. The resolution demands the reduction of these expenses and a vigorous attempt in all sections of the Soviet to provide the peasant market with manufactured goods at lower rates.

Reading between lines, it is obvious that the peasant question is causing great anxiety to the Communist Party leaders. It is easy to talk about lowering rates and reducing expenses but the fact remains that Soviet industry—and transport—has now been raised to the highest pitch possible without large expenditure of capital which the Soviet Government does not possess.

FRANC'S RISE HITS IRON AND STEEL MEN

FEARED FATE OF THE MARK

PARIS, July 25.—French iron and steel men are greatly perturbed over the new sharp rise of the franc, having in the past month taken steps to meet the fall which was arrested only by the defeat of the Herriot Cabinet. On July 22 new prices were put into effect and show the second increase in a single month.

The movement among producers to accept orders only on the condition that the payment be made at the price effective on the date of delivery had also become general.

As bookings are complete for most mills until the end of September, the problem is not yet as acute as it might be, but only the future will show how the policies adopted are going to work out.

Although the matter is carefully veiled, these policies in reality resulted from the fear that the franc would go the way of the German mark, and the technical press has been full of "suggestions" as to how the steel makers could best cover themselves against loss, and how to figure sales prices in reference to the depreciation of the franc and varying production costs and overhead charges.

For more than a fortnight virtually no domestic orders were accepted, while the export market continued to grow. Meanwhile production steadily increased, with bookings full for two to three months ahead.

These prices were calculated at seven times the pre-war average, although at the time the franc was between one-ninth and one-tenth of its gold value on the exchange market.

The recent rise of the franc is bringing it toward one-seventh of its gold value, and this means that France's iron and steel prices will be equivalent to the pre-war price unless price slashing occurs.

While some producers fear they will lose distant export markets, the majority welcome higher prices, which bring real instead of fictitious profits.

The only element to prevent the policy of higher prices from proceeding rapidly is the desire to favor domestic customers as much as possible, although the latter's recent frantic attempts to get their orders accepted during the exchange panic shows that they, too, are prepared for any contingencies due to inflation, but not for those due to deflation.

REPORTS BUSINESS ON SOUNDER BASIS

A greater general soundness than was expected six months ago characterizes the domestic situation as business enters the second half of the year, and it is now possible to look forward to the remainder of 1926 with a considerably greater degree of confidence, says the current issue of the Guaranty Survey published by the Guaranty Trust Company of New York.

"Perhaps the most important development of the half year bearing on the general business outlook was the change in the course of stock prices," the Survey states. "The upward movement of values and feverish speculative activity, which were in full swing at the end of 1925, culminatel in a moderate and orderly recession, which has given way to renewed strength in the last two months. An even more important consideration is that the boom psychology subsided without having communicated itself, as it usually has done, to commodity markets in general.

"Developments in most of the leading branches of industry and trade have been reassuring. The iron and steel industry, by moderate curtailment of output, has achieved a reasonably close balance between production and consumption. Building activity continues very large, but has given some signs of moderation and of a less speculative character than it exhibited a year ago. The automobile business has maintained a higher level of output and sales than appeared to be possible at the beginning of the season, and neither operating schedules nor price levels indicate any weakening of confidence on the part of the manufacturers.

"The petroleum industry is in an exceptionally strong position, although some apprehension as to overproduction has recently been reflected in the prices of oil shares. Textile manufacturers, while less favorably situated, have profited by low prices for raw materials.

"The firmness of commodity prices in the last three months bears witness to the essentially sound conditions in most markets. Although the buying policies prevalent in recent years have prevented any marked increase in the volume of unfilled orders, commodity stocks remain at a level which reflects conservatism on the part of producers. The credit situation has been materially strengthened by the decline in stock speculation and the corresponding shrinkage in the volume of funds tied up in security loans. The possibility of an advance in money rates sufficient to restrict general business activity is even more remote now than it was six months ago."

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Seasonal Recessions in Business and Industry Less Pronounced Than in Previous Years.

The impression gains ground that in many respects, from a financial and business standpoint, this is a most remarkable year. It now appears evident from the testimony of our most reliable barometers of conditions in trade that the seasonal recession in activity is less pronounced this Summer than for the past three years. Records have been broken in a number of industries in the first half of the year, notably in the iron and steel trade and in the automotive industry. In many other lines operations are fully above last year. The prediction is freely made that corporate profits as a whole for 1926 will range some 10 per cent. above 1925, which in itself was an extremely satisfactory year. Forecasts made at midsummer of Autumn trade are not always borne out by the developments of the Fall, but the financial skies are so cloudless at the moment that the feeling of optimism in trade is widespread and preparations for an active business in the last quarter of the year are going forward on a scale which was not considered likely three or four months ago. Evidence of this is to be found in the time money market, in which rates have firmed up during the last week on a steady and at times keen inquiry for time funds which may be retained for the balance of the year. These arrangements for money may be called the foundation for plans for increased operations in many diversified lines of industry.

The main disquieting development, which, however, thus far has had only sympathetic effect upon our markets, is the crisis which has developed in the franc. In the wave of disappointment which swept the world markets as two French Cabinets fell, and with the sober truth of a bank statement showing a greater degree of currency inflation than ever before, the franc declined to a point below 2 cents, from which it has since rallied one-half cent following the organization of the Poincaré-Briand Cabinet. Politics, protests at the terms of the American debt settlement and a panicky attitude toward the franc on the part of the French people have been added factors to as chaotic a condition as has developed in France since the war. It is the task of the new Ministry to prevent the franc going the way of the mark, to rekindle the faith of the people in their own currency and to adopt measures of taxation which will bring into the Treasury sufficient funds for its operation without a continued "watering" of the currency to keep the country going. Such a task is tremendous and one demanding drastic and determined action. It may be added that there is more confidence, at least in international banking circles here, in the new Government than in any of the recent Cabinets which have fallen in such quick succession, each admitting its inability to cope with the situation.

Trading in securities has been on a heavy scale, with the market characterized by extremely wide price changes. In the main, leading stocks gave a good account of themselves during the last week. However, market conditions have not changed a great deal since mid-June; there is still quite a tinge of professionalism apparent, and to all intents and purposes the public is not greatly interested in present stock fluctuations. This is proved, if in no other way, by the fact that brokers' loans have increased only about 22 per cent. from the minimum of the year, and at the same time, stocks have regained more than two-thirds of the ground lost in the violent break of the first quarter of the year. Conditions have been ideal for a process of professional accumulation of securities. These have been a combination of easy money, improved corporate earnings, a big backlog of investment and semi-investment funds seeking vehicles of employment, and finally, the prospect of more active business later in the year with consequent increased corporate earnings. It is the theory of the professionals that Autumn markets this year will be big and wide, giving opportunity for wholesale distribution of stocks which have been accumulated during the Summer. There will be great disappointment in Wall Street if public interest in the market does not show a sharp revival toward the end of the year.

So much depends upon the out-turn of crops this Fall, in helping to keep business in its present prosperous condition, that the midsummer crop reports are of unusual interest. Last week's estimate by the Department of Agriculture of an out-turn of cotton of 15,368,000 bales, as compared with a forecast of 15,635,000, and of 16,103,679 in 1925 was just about in line with trade expectations, but at the same time gave measurable assurance of a good crop. The condition as of July 16 of 70.7 per cent., as compared with 75.4 on June 25, was due mainly to the unsettled weather conditions in many sections of the South as well as to the inroads which insect damage has done to the crop. Although much may happen between this and the picking of the cotton, it would seem that the Government forecast of a crop slightly below that of last year is a reasonable one. The recent revision of the Canadian Government's wheat estimate, with news of adverse weather conditions in some sections of our own Northwest, have proved of sustaining value to the open market price for grain. Price fluctuations, however, have not been wide. They seldom are in the Summer period of weather uncertainty when crops are in the making.

The stability of commodity prices and the advances in many directions give further proof that the decline in commodities has been effectively stopped. Out of a total of sixty-four changes in the list of wholesale quotations, compiled by one of the large commercial reporting agencies last week, thirty-five were in an upward direction. This was due mainly to the stability of primary textile markets, to the fact that steel prices are holding well and to the further fact that copper and some of the other metals have advanced. This testifies doubtless to a gradually increasing demand for commodities of all sorts. Competition in many lines is sharp and margins of profit are not extremely large. Nevertheless, production and consumption are now so evenly balanced in the important lines of trade that the expected increase in buying volume within the next two or three months is almost certain to produce a gradual stepping-up of the ratio of operations in important lines.

New Issue

6% Sinking Fund Gold Debentures

Dated June 15, 1926 Due June 15, 1941

Interest payable June 15th and December 15th in New York and Boston in United States gold coin and in Montreal and Toronto in Canadian gold coin, without deduction for any United States Federal Income Tax not exceeding 2% which the Company may lawfully pay at the source. Pennsylvania Four Mills Tax refundable upon timely and appropriate request. Redeemable at any time at the option of the Company in whole or in part on thirty days' published notice at 105 up to and including June 15, 1931 and thereafter at ½% less each succeeding year, plus accrued interest in all cases. Coupon Debentures of denominations of $1,000, and $500 registerable as to principal only, interchangeable in like principal amounts. Montreal Trust Company, Trustee.

Company: Gatineau Power Company, a Quebec corporation and a wholly owned subsidiary of International Paper Company, will own in fee or hold through long term government leaseholds water power sites in the Province of Quebec, Canada, with an aggregate potential capacity in excess of 700,000 hp. The Company is now undertaking a development program calling for the completion by the fall of 1928 of four hydro-electric plants with an initial aggregate installed generating capacity of 397,500 hp., of which 373,500 hp. is on the Gatineau River. This river, one of the most important power rivers in Quebec, enters the Ottawa River from the north in the vicinity of the City of Ottawa. Two of the developments with over half the initial capacity lie within seven miles of that city.

Power Contracts: Contracts for the sale of over 90% of the primary power to be generated by the initial installations at these four plants have already been executed with the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario, the Canadian International Paper Company and the Canada Cement Company, Limited, and the balance is expected to be readily absorbed in the adjacent power markets. The Trust Deed under which the First Mortgage Bonds of Gatineau Power Company are to be issued will contain provisions limiting and defining the conditions under which certain changes may be made in these contracts in order to introduce the reasonable flexibility desirable in long term contracts.

Upon completion of all four power plants and the delivery of the ultimate amount of power under the contract with the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario, it is estimated that net earnings of the Company available for interest and reserves will exceed $5,400,000 per annum, or over twice the combined annual interest requirements on the entire $37,500,000 First Mortgage Gold Bonds and $12,500,000 6% Gold Debentures issuable against this initial construction program and that the thirty-year contract with the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission will alone produce annual net earnings for interest and reserves over 1¼ times such interest charges.

Guarantee of Completion: A deposit sufficient, in accordance with careful estimates checked by independent engineers, to provide funds for the completion of the present development program up to the initial capacity of 397,500 hp. will be held in escrow so long as required, subject to withdrawal as expenditures are made for this purpose. This deposit will be composed largely of cash, and the balance will consist of $12,500,000 (the portion of the initial issue not being sold at this time) of the Company's First Mortgage Bonds, International Paper Company agreeing to find purchasers for these Bonds as additional cash is required. International Paper Company has, furthermore, guaranteed to provide any additional funds which may be necessary for the completion of this initial development program.

Capitalization: (Upon completion of the present program)

International Paper Company: International Paper Company with its subsidiaries is the largest manufacturer of paper in the world and one of the largest holders of water powers in North America. The capacity of its paper mills is more than twice as great as that of any other company on this Continent. Upon completion of the present development program of Gatineau Power Company, International Paper Company with its wholly owned subsidiaries will have developed water powers with a total installed capacity of almost 600,000 hp. (500,000 hp. hydro-electric and 100,000 hp. hydraulic), capable of being increased through further development and through the utilization of undeveloped sites to about 1,400,000 hp.

FRENCH PIN FAITH TO POINCARE PLANS

CONFIDENCE IN NEW CABINET

Believed in Paris That American Debt Pact Will Be Ratified—Condition of Bank and of Circulation.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 25.—The Bourse continued last week to interpret the successive reactions of the public to the political crisis. The fall of the Briand Cabinet and the constitution of the Herriot Government were signs for a further fall in the franc, and the consequent rise in all foreign securities quoted on the Paris Bourse, particularly the favorites with foreign markets. This state of affairs revealed clearly the anxiety of the French public all the more as the rise in French industrial stocks, which commenced last week, suddenly ceased. Nevertheless, this feeling of anxiety is not so deep that French opinion should not be considered definitely pessimistic concerning currency prospects.

Cabinet Change Aids Franc.

The mere announcement that Poincaré would form a new cabinet sufficed to improve French exchange. The effect was immediately felt on the Bourse, and was a signal for a strong demand for French rentes and Treasury bonds. It must be noted that the sudden change in the temperature of the market was solely due to the personality of Raymond Poincaré and the colleagues he chose, because their program is not yet known. Judging from his past record, it may be supposed that Poincaré will not subscribe to any reorganization plan for French finances which would scare the wealthy classes. The experts' plan offers all guarantees in this respect, and the Government ought to make the widest use of the plan.

With regard to the Washington agreement which the experts' plan proposes to ratify, Poincaré has not expressed an opinion publicly, so prognostications are vain. It may be presumed, however, that he will adopt only an attitude compatible with definite restoration of the French credit abroad and will favor ratification.

Condition of Bank of France.

The Bank of France return shows an increase of 7,000,000 francs in bills discounted, private deposits rose 720,000,000 and circulation only 87,000,000. But advances to the State advanced 550,000,000 to 38,350,000,000, leaving only 150,000,000 margin under the maximum. This state of affairs was construed by the Herriot Cabinet to demand the urgent voting of a bill authorizing the Finance Minister to transfer to the bank the remainder of the Morgan credits, and to raise the limit of circulation by the same amount. This bill was passed by the Chamber and the Senate, thus re-establishing the margin of 1,500,000,000 francs.

ESTIMATE STRIKE LOSS AT FULLY £148,500,000

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 25.—The gravity of Britain's industrial situation is clearly brought home by estimates of the nation's loss through the coal strike by Walter Runciman, a former President of the Board of Trade. He calculates that the loss under all heads during the general strike was £30,000,000. Since then, in consequence of the coal strike, he estimates that the heavy industries have lost £46,000,000; textile and other exports, £17,500,000; home trade, £20,000,000; miners' wages, £25,000,000, and £10,000,000 other wages, making a total loss of £148,500,000.

Stated in terms of weight, the coal stoppage has deprived the country of 1,000,000 tons of pig iron and 1,200,000 tons of steel, while the value of cotton exports from May 16 to July 16 show a decline of £7,500,000. Woolen exports are £1,500,000 lower and other textile exports £250,000 down. Despite the increased coal chartering, there is now 859,739 tons of shipping idle in British ports, against only 359,849 tons at the beginning of last April.

DUTCH FOREIGN TRADE SHOWS LARGE GAINS

AMSTERDAM, July 25.—Dutch imports for June were 212,000,000 guilders, for May, 195,000,000, and for June, 1925, 183,000,000. From January to June, inclusive, they were 1,222,000,000, and for the same period in 1925 were 1,186,000,000. Exports for June were 133,000,000 guilders, for May, 129,000,000, and for June, 1925, were 124,000,000. Exports from January to June were 791,000,000 guilders, compared with 842,000,000 in the same period of 1925.

The import balance for the first half of the year was 430,000,000 guilders, against 344,000,000 in the first half of 1925. The outlook is considered not unsatisfactory, although the situation is hampered by foreign currency complications, as reflected in larger imports in June.

DEBT CONTROVERSY REGRETTED IN CITY

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 25.—The reopening of the debt controversy is deeply regretted in the City. It is felt, however, that Mr. Mellon's statement was provocative and that Britain's retort courteous was fully merited. It is hoped that this will close the incident, which never should have occurred. Whatever the City thinks about the settlement of Britain's debt to America, it regards it as a compact to be strictly observed without after comment or recrimination.

Far-sighted financiers and others possessing the necessary degree of patience, nevertheless, visualize the day when there will be a great change in general American sentiment toward Europe's debts. Forces are quietly but patiently at work seeking the establishment of a better understanding and anything which tends, such as this particular debt incident, to check progress in this direction is strongly resented.

That the present dispute will adversely affect business relations between America and Britain is not believed in the City, although, being so strictly non-political, financial London is sometimes inclined to underrate the strength of the political undercurrent which may or may not run through incidents such as this debt breeze.

If there is any interruption to good business relations between London and New York, it will not come from any grievance on this side concerning intergovernmental financial deals which are now a thing of the past and placed upon a footing which, while it may burden our future, was the best we could make of a bad job. It is not the way of the City to look back, and there are many people of sound judgment who foresee the time when war debts will be wiped out upon conditions a great deal more favorable to all concerned than seems possible in the present temper of debtor and creditor.

GERMAN IMPORTS UP AS STOCKS DECREASE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, July 25.—Reversion to the passive foreign trade balance in June caused no surprise, because an increase in imports of materials was inevitable owing to a depletion of stocks during the first half of the year. Imports, excluding precious metals, were 791,924,000 marks, against 702,943,000 in May. Exports were 758,756,000, against 728,963,000. Imports of raw and half-manufactured materials exceeded those of May by 62,000,000 marks. Increased exports are under the heading of raw and half-manufactured materials, and are largely due to coal sales abroad. The return is regarded optimistically, because the increase in imports of materials proves the manufacturers' faith in a general trade revival.

The Boerse has been irregular to weak, but this is regarded as the natural reaction after the big bull movements in May and June. Resumption of the upward movement is expected if money continues cheap. Bank stocks are in big demand, active stocks now stand about 10 per cent. below the year's high prices.

DECLINE OF STERLING DESCRIBED AS NATURAL

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 25.—The recent fall in sterling has provoked comment, but has occasioned no surprise. In the first place, the period during which exchange should normally favor London is rapidly drawing to a close. The rising tendency of dollars is, indeed, hastening those purchases which must necessarily be made soon to provide for ordinary trade indebtedness between London and New York.

Certain pressure on exchange also is arising out of Britain's coal purchases in America. Considerable purchases of dollars on this account are believed to have been made within the last few days. The grave difficulties of France, while driving French money into sterling, have also forced it into dollars. There is no evidence at present that the release of the Morgan credits in favor of the Bank of France is affecting the exchange position, although such a step might result in substantial sales of dollars and move exchange in London's favor.

Viewing the sterling situation as a whole, the opinion is that unless special circumstances arise the rate will not this year again reach this month's high point of $4.86⅞, while the trend will probably be moderately unfavorable to London.

BANK RATE CHANGE BELIEVED UNLIKELY

BANK RESERVES SHOW GAIN

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 25.—Whether there is any real ground for Wall Street's talk of an advance in the New York rediscount rate or whether the idea is put about for stock market purposes, the mere suggestion has been sufficient to cause the London money market to discuss with less hope the chances of a reduction in our own official discount rate. Monetary conditions are easy here, with the prospect of remaining so for the next few weeks during the slack business season.

Gold also continues to flow in and the Bank of England's stock of coin and bullion now amounts to £151,733,845, which is the highest since last October. Its reserve, £30,116,720, is also at the highest point for nine months, while only twice since last October has the ratio of reserve to liabilities been above the present figure, 24.5 per cent. It is believed on such a position as this a lower bank rate would be fully justified, but there are other factors operating which call for maintenance of the bank rate.

The Changes of a Year.

Chief among these is the critical industrial situation produced by the long coal strike. The eight-year bank rate was reduced from 5 to 4½ per cent. on Aug. 6 last year. Gold was then flowing in rapidly and the Bank of England's gold holdings were nearly £13,000,000, larger than now, while its reserve was nearly £8,000,000 higher. Last August, however, the country was not faced with an industrial crisis such as exists today, while the embargo on foreign capital issues was in force, whereas there is now no restriction on lending abroad.

Into the balance which is weighing against the chances of an early reduction in the bank rate is now thrust the adverse movement in American exchange. Discount rates in the open market, nevertheless, have shown a weaker tendency, but this is due rather to technical than to general conditions, the market being poorly supplied with bills for which there has recently been a renewed Continental demand at competitive rates.

Do Not Expect Rate Change.

There are many who still consider that any substantial reduction in coal mining operations will be the signal for a reduction in the bank rate, in accordance with the Chancellor's forecast of some months ago, but more cautious observers believe that conditions have changed to such an extent since then that chances of a lower bank rate before Autumn are distinctly remote.

Currency notes outstanding at the end of the week aggregated £291,981,048, as compared with £291,658,772 in the previous week, and £294,718,011 two weeks ago. The highest of the year to date is £303,566,376 in the week ended May 16; the lowest £284,178,770 in the week ended Feb. 19.

GERMAN INTERNAL LOAN TO AID UNEMPLOYMENT

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, July 25.—The German money situation is favorable and a new Reichsbank rate reduction is possible. Private discount rates remain 4½ per cent., the day money rate of 5 to 6 per cent. is nominal, as few borrowers can be found. The Reichsbank return for July 15 disclosed news of a big improvement in the status of the bank through a decline of 80,000,000 in discounts, and 154,000,000 in circulation. A big strain, however, will be put on the capital market. The Government proposes to raise a loan of at least 200,000,000 marks for unemployment relief, for work on railroads, canals, electricity and housing for agricultural labor.

The Hamburg-America Line and the North German Lloyd have decided to increase their capital. The dye trust will also increase its capital in connection with its latest absorption. The Gold Discount bank proposes to grant a further 100,000,000 marks credit to agriculture. Trade stagnation, though gradually improving, remains so severe that the demand for money and capital is weak.

BERLIN, July 25.—The index of wholesale prices for July 21 is 126.3, against 128.1 on July 14. The cost-of-living index for June was 140.5, against 139.9 for May. The steel industry reports an all-around moderate improvement. There is considerable English demand for German semi-finished steel, the bars market is slightly more active, and thick sheets, drawn wire and wire rods are also all improved. Delivery terms have everywhere lengthened. The June pig iron output, however, was only 720,081 tons, against 941,201 tons in June, 1925.

The coal situation continues to improve as a result of the British strike. The Ruhr output for June was the biggest since the war, and the number of miners engaged the biggest since 1924.

EUROPEAN OPINION ON FALL OF FRANC

Developments Viewed as Alarming in London and Berlin, as Cabinets Change.

DRASTIC MEASURES URGED

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 25.—The swift changes in the French political situation are as bewildering as they are amazing to financial London. That France should be driven right into a corner because party differences cannot be composed is an astonishing thing to the average British business man. France, by persistently putting politics before finance, has forfeited much of the sympathy felt for her in conditions from which she emerged after the war; but, standing as she does on the brink of a financial collapse, she still retains the good-will of this country, and last week's violent movement in franc exchange shows how extremely sensitive London is as to developments in Paris.

When francs sold in this market, as they did on Tuesday, at one penny apiece against a normal of 9½ pence, it was felt that the "darkest hour before dawn" probably had been reached. Confidence never has been entirely lost, although it has been severely shaken, and as a red light is now thoroughly clear to the French public it is hoped and believed that a Government will now be found which will subordinate party politics to financial needs. These needs are desperate enough, and no attempt is made here at present to forecast the future of the franc. France undoubtedly has power to put her finances in good order. We are now to learn whether she has the will to do so.

A Financial Sudan.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, July 25.—The Neue Freie Presse says: "Since the French Revolution a similar situation has never occurred. France seems steering toward the financial and economical Sudan. Such muddling cannot restore confidence at home or abroad, and everything depends upon confidence. Sacrificing the Morgan credits was a deed of despair, like sacrificing the Guards at Waterloo. It is clear that absolute financial slavery will be the consequence. Poincaré burdened his former policy and cannot possibly regain Anglo-Saxon confidence without their help. Inflation and financial panic seem inevitable. Each new man Poincaré included in his new Cabinet must try to get money which is now possible only by selling gold.

"Before Aug. 16 France must pay 2,500,000,000 francs, although the direct duty of May and June brought together only 148,000,000 francs. It is to be hoped that a clear comprehension of the situation will finally triumph over mistaken patriotism and false pride, which are madness in the face of financial defeat. Otherwise not only the financial system is in danger, but there is danger to the whole democratic-republican Constitution."

Berlin Foresees a New Currency.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, July 25.—The new collapse of the French franc was regarded as a sensational event and had no disturbing effect on business sentiment or on the Boerse. In this respect it differed from earlier collapses, all of which temporarily shook German business confidence. Berlin's optimism lies in the conviction that once the franc becomes entirely useless for internal trade, stabilization or replacement with a new currency will become inevitable. This was Germany's own experience. So long as the French currency conditions are tolerable, no reform will be put through. The German view, therefore, is that the worse things are the better is the prospect.

Poincaré's Cabinet is not regarded with disquietude here, as it is considered that France's difficult position will prevent any resurrection of Poincaré's former policy toward Germany. Politicians also realize that France can be ruled without the collaboration of the Left Party. Therefore, an aggressive foreign policy is impossible. All interests here wished for French currency reform. French exchange dumping is the only obstacle against recovery of the German steel trade. France's foreign trade balance proves that she is selling exports at a figure far below the prices paid for imports. Hence, whereas in the first half of the year 1925 she had an export surplus of 2,570,000,000 francs, in the first half of 1926 the import surplus reached 2,691,000,000 francs. Exports below value are the chief cause of France's passive foreign payment balance and are both the cause and the effect of her depreciated exchange.

How the Morgan Credit Was Used.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

AMSTERDAM, July 25.—The French situation is considered here as entirely speculative, and recovery and stabilization will be possible only when public confidence returns. The fall of the Herriot Government was unavoidable, as the capitalistic groups must help, and they would not assist in ultra-radical measures. Moreover, the general opinion of the capitalistic groups is that stabilization is impossible without foreign help. Herriot's program contains mere self-help, meaning a heavy drain on capital. Now the Poincaré Government inspires confidence, more so as he is believed to have obtained special powers, excluding certain Parliamentary ones.

Interesting figures are published here on the use of the Morgan loan. There is $33,000,000 left, equaling 1,400,000,000 francs. Up to May 19 no use was made of the Morgan loan. Afterward $56,000,000 was sold. A total of 1,000,000,000 francs was obtained from this sale on June 1, 15,000,000 on June 2 and 407,000,000 on June 3. Practically all of this money was used for Treasury purposes, instead of in defense of the franc. Until Wednesday morning the balance in favor of the French Government at the French Bank was only 60,000,000 francs, which was increased the same day to 150,000,000 francs. The maximum advances to the Government are now 38,500,000,000. Actual advances are already 38,350,000,000. The maximum of circulation is 58,500,000,000 francs, and it is actually 55,000,000,000 at the present, so there is a reserve of only 3,500,000,000, which will not last long. Therefore price inflation is unavoidable. All of this explains why the Dutch bankers have not much faith in French developments.

There has been extensive short-selling of the franc, and therefore every sign of hope met covering which caused recovery. This was especially so when the Herriot Government fell.

GRAIN CROPS GOOD IN MOST OF EUROPE

BERLIN, July 25.—German crop reports for the first of July disclose considerable damage done by rain. The chief grain crop, winter rye, is slightly behind the condition at the same date of 1925, but is well above the average. Wheat, barley, oats and potatoes, as well as sugar beets, are all above the average.

The Russian agricultural reports continue optimistic, but the actual result will not be known for some weeks. Polish reports are also fairly good, especially rye. Rumanian official and private reports agree that the crop will establish a record, in fact nearly 50 per cent. better than in 1925. Hungarian wheat and corn conditions are reported good, but the rainfall has been excessive. Yugoslavia reports resemble those of Rumania. Yugoslavia has contracted for big grain sales to Italy.

Russia's imports for June were 50,700,000 rubles, against 41,500,000 in May. Exports were 51,800,000 rubles, against 38,200,000. The quarterly reports show that passivity in the trade balance is declining, and a renewal of export surpluses is predicted in the July and September quarters.

Middle European Outlook Good.

VIENNA, July 25.—The middle European crop outlook is hopeful, since the rain ceased at the right time. Rumania expects a 50 per cent. higher crop than in 1925, therefore the lei is rising constantly. Damages to the Hungarian crop are not important.

Yugoslavia will have a medium-sized crop, although enormous inundations by the Danube, ruined vast areas. Wheat prices in Vienna are unchanged, as a new crop is not yet offered. Rye is already considerably lower.

PARIS, July 25.—The harvest prospects are better than foreseen a few weeks ago. Iron and steel statistics are not yet out, but the market is very active, especially for the export trade, and prices are rising. The wholesale price index for June is 754, compared with 702 for May. The cost-of-living index for June is 544, compared with 522 for May.

SHARES DECLINE IN VIENNA.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, July 25.—The Vienna Boerse shows a slight decline, because shares with a franc dividend, such as the State railways, are giving way. Speculators in Austrian pre-warrants are greatly troubled because the Reparation Commission claims the deposit of rentes in the hands of the State. The old Austrian gold rente fell during the week from 100,000 to 60,000.

Nevertheless, the general downward movement is only slight, as industry, especially electricity, is still regarded optimistically. Budapest and Prague markets are weaker, through Austrian selling.

STOCK INDEX AT NEW HIGH.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, July 25.—The weekly index number of Stock Exchange prices, compiled by Professor Fisher and based on the week's fifty most active industrial shares, reckoning their average for January, 1925, as 100, is 155.5 for the past week. This compares with 150.4 the week preceding, 148.5 two weeks before, 148.3 three weeks before and 143.3 four weeks before.

This week's average is the highest for the year to date; the average of 121.1 on April 17 was the lowest.

Merchandise Company Profits Up.

The New York Merchandise Company reports net profits for the first half of 1926 of $201,362, after taxes and charges, which is equal, after preferred dividends, to $2.24 per share, earned on the outstanding 75,000 shares of common stock. This compares with $175,440, or $1.78 per share in the corresponding period of 1925.

SHORTS ARE KEPT ANXIOUS

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, La., July 25.—Although the culminating event of the past week in the cotton market, the Government Crop Report was the dominating influence all through the period under review. Prices have fluctuated, largely influenced by the process of evening up of commitments in advance of the report. Thus prices eased off when longs deemed it the part of wisdom to liquidate their holdings and take no chance of the Bureau proving bearish, as some traders believed it would, and, per contra, they advanced when shorts, impressed by the confident predictions that the indicated crop would prove no larger than 15,000,000 bales, deemed it the part of wisdom to cover.

Although the speculation as to what the Government might show was the dominating influence, the weather and crop advices played a strong secondary rôle. Following a week or ten days of fairly good weather, showers set in again, and reports of plants running mostly to weed and fruiting poorly became increasingly numerous, and although less was heard of the cotton hopper, a good deal of complaint developed as to the activity and spread of the much more formidable boll weevil. These influences brought fresh buyers into the market constantly and kept shorts on the nervous seat.

The Government crop report was regarded by traders here as largely a stand-off, the condition average of 70.7 being lower than looked for by most traders and therefore bullish, while the indicated crop of 15,368,000 bales of equivalent 500 pounds weight was considerably larger than expected and therefore bearish. The market, however, made but a limited response to the bearishness of the indicated yield, declining only 31 to 32 points, and then promptly recovering the loss, so that Friday's trading actually resulted in a small net gain for the day.

It is not unlikely, however, that the market would have declined more than it did but for the fact that the weather has been distinctly bad since July 16, the date of the returns to the Government upon which Friday's report was based, and the market was confronted with the first tropical storm warning of the season. It was promptly recognized that should this disturbance now in the Caribbean Sea and working rapidly northwestward reach the cotton belt it would prove a distinctly bullish influence, as such storms are always accompanied by heavy and widespread rains, whereas the crop is sadly in need of a good spell of hot, dry weather.

A good deal of comment was occasioned among local traders by the large indicated yield reported by the Government on a condition average 4.7 points lower than the average given on July 2. Such a falling off in condition warranted, in local opinion, a much greater cut in the indicated yield than the 267,000 bales allowed by the Government. According to local gossip, the Government used a par in deducting the yield from the condition applied to the acreage of 212.5 pounds per acre in figuring out Friday's estimated yield, as against a par for the previous report of only 202.7 pounds, an increase of 9.8 pounds. Last year the Government used a par of 195 pounds for its initial estimate and a par of 199 pounds for the second estimate, a difference of only four pounds. If the Government had raised its par only four pounds this year, as it did a year ago, the indicated yield would have figured out 14,946,000 bales instead of 15,368,000.

Of more actual importance than the indicated yield given out by the Government is the admission in the comments accompanying the report that the cotton hopper took a heavy toll of the prospective fruit of the plant and that weather conditions have been such as to encourage a much wider increase in the number of boll weevils than was looked for, a fact which may have serious consequences a little later on, unless the weather becomes sufficiently dry to check the pest and render means of controlling it effective.

INDEX OF COMMODITIES AT YEAR'S LOW POINT

NEW HAVEN, July 25.—Professor Irving Fisher's index number of American commodity prices for last week, based on 100 as the average of 1913, is 149, comparing with 150.2 the week before, 150.8 two weeks before, 150.2 three weeks before and 152 four weeks before. This week's average is the lowest for the year to date, and also lower than any reached in 1925; the highest thus far this year was 159.7 on Jan. 30.

The highest weekly average reached in 1925 was 164.4 on Jan. 31, which was also higher than any reached in 1924. The lowest was 154.1, on May 2. The highest percentage since the war was 247, in May, 1920; the lowest, 130, in January, 1922.

Crump's British index number, as cabled for the past week, is 141.1, which compares with 140.5 the week before, 141 two weeks before, 140.6 three weeks before and 140.2 four weeks before. The highest Crump average thus far in 1926 was 146.7 on Jan. 9; the lowest was 138.1 on June 19.

The index number of average Italian prices, compiled by the Chamber of Commerce at Milan, was 674.5 last week, comparing with 665.9 a week ago, 660.5 two weeks ago, 659.2 three weeks ago and 654.7 four weeks ago. This week's average is the highest for the year to date; the average of 636.2 for the week ended May 1 was the lowest for 1926 to date.

STEEL OPERATION AT 80 PER CENT.

RUSH AT PIPE MILLS, TOO

PITTSBURGH, July 25.—The steel mills continue to operate at an average of about 80 per cent., and the final report of ingot production in the month will show a rate in that neighborhood. Mill operations could stand a four-point decrease from the 80 per cent. of June and show no greater monthly decrease than April, May and June presented, the peak rate having been 92 per cent., in March. Operation at 80 per cent. this month would represent 20 per cent. greater tonnage than was made in July of last year.

Contracting is out of season, but specifications against contracts previously made for the quarter have been coming in freely, and there is a good run of strictly new business. That mills are operating very largely from hand to mouth is shown by changes in operating schedules from week to week, increases and decreases coming indiscriminately. In several lines there is perfectly steady operation, there being business ahead. The lines conspicuous in this respect are rails, oil country tubular goods and tin plate.

Good Year in Rail Production.

Rail production has been practically at capacity for several months, and there will hardly be any decrease before September, when shipments to Northern roads will probably begin decreasing. This year will prove an unusually good one in rail production, even though exports have been running light.

In oil country goods the pipe mills have long been booked above their capacity. A few weeks ago delivery promises extending to eight or nine weeks were being talked of, but four to five weeks seems now to be the usual time on new orders or specifications against contracts. Shipments to the oil and gas fields usually begin decreasing in October, but in the Southern fields there is little seasonal influence.

Pipe mill output, in point of tonnage, is well in excess of any previous record, there being nearly a 100 per cent. operation, with capacity substantially increased in the past year by the two new plants in the Chicago district.

Big Export Demand for Tin Plate.

Nearly all the large tin plate plants are now scheduled, with actual specifications, through next month. Operation is a trifle higher than in June, when ordinarily the swing at this time of year is in the other direction. There has been heavy export demand, there being scarcely any British production of tin plate on account of the coal strike.

Some of the fruit and vegetable packs now promise to be even heavier than expected, and there is a special rush for the next three weeks to take care of the Wisconsin pea pack. California will take more cans than estimated.

Such well sustained steel production at a time when a seasonal dip is expected increases the chances of there being a tapering off later in the year. There is no longer reason to expect this year to follow the course of 1925 and 1924, when such a dip occurred in the middle of the year as to invite an upward reaction.

IGNORE COTTON STATISTICS.

But Trade Is Prepared for Large Carryover Report.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, July 25.—For the moment no attention is being paid in cotton circles to statistics of the supply and distribution, although it is generally accepted as a fact that the carryover into next season will be large. The annual figures will become available in another ten days, but it is not believed that they will present many surprises.

In the meantime there has been a decided improvement in the domestic cotton goods trade, both cloths and yarns being in broader demand, with the mills increasing their activity. Should the outlook for the growing crop continue unfavorable owing to inclement weather and the depredation of insects, buyers of cotton goods will probably be induced to relax their policy of buying only from hand to mouth and venture upon some forward business.

Although it is claimed that the activity of the cotton hopper has diminished the effects of the ravages of the pest are becoming daily more apparent in the scarcity of the fruit on the plants. The bottom crop, which usually furnishes a good proportion of the crop, has been seriously cut, according to all accounts, and although the plants, with good weather would probably take on fresh fruit, the weevils would have an excellent chance of taking a large toll of this late production unless the weather proves remarkably favorable from now on.

Grain Prices and Receipts.

CHICAGO, July 25.—The grain markets have lost the considerable part of their recent advance, yet the close on wheat, as compared with a week ago, showed losses of only 2⅜ to 4¾ cents. Corn is ⅝ lower to 1⅝ cents higher; oats 2¼ to 2⅜ cents higher; rye 2⅛ to 3⅛ cents lower.

Primary receipts of wheat for the week this year run 19,264,000 bushels; last year, 14,668,000. Corn receipts this year run 3,768,000 bushels; last year, 2,838,000.

Wheat shipments this year run to 6,502,000 bushels; last year, 5,513,000, and corn shipments this year run 2,240,000 bushels; last year, 2,332,000.

WHEAT THRESHINGS EXCEED FORECASTS

BIG FORWARD MOVEMENT

CHICAGO, July 25.—Spring wheat crop is a weather proposition, the size depending upon conditions in the next three weeks in the American and Canadian Northwest. The present situation is moderately bullish as there will be smaller crop than last year on both sides of the international line. The Winter wheat crop is made and favorable weather will facilitate threshing. The yield is running far ahead of expectations, both in the Southwest and Middle West.

The Winter wheat situation is bearish due to the heavy movement from farms. Primary receipts since July 1 are almost 49,000,000 bushels, or 20,000,000 bushels more than last year and prospects are for a continued heavy movement with a slackening in the milling demand and a lighter export business than was expected recently.

There is enough bearishness to offset largely the damage in the Spring wheat country, and the future course of prices is dependent largely upon the attitude of leading professional speculators. One of the largest of the local operators says:

World Situation in Wheat.

The foreign statistical position is moderately bullish on wheat, but the financial conditions, particularly of France, are against extensive purchases in anticipation of future requirements. Supplies of wheat the world over are not expected to be much in excess of requirements. Europe has a smaller crop, the Canadian prospects are in doubt, and any reduction in the estimated yield from last year will, in a measure, offset the excess of supply in the United States.

The world's carry-over is the lightest in years. In the United States it is only 60,000,000—23,000,000 bushels less than last year—and the world's carry-over is short around 20,000,000 bushels.

The Australian and Argentine crops may change the present outlook, but should anything happen in those two countries, yields will be materially cut down and throw more of a burden on North America for supplies. As to Russia, it is too uncertain to make any definite estimates.

With a close adjustment of supplies to requirements the future course of prices will be influenced by the volume of speculative buying that comes into the market. Wheat around present prices, $1.40 for September at Chicago, is considered a reasonable figure.

Crop Reports Favor Oats.

Unfavorable crop reports for oats over the large surplus-producing sections has brought in more speculative buying and advanced prices, as indications are for a general shortage of feed stuffs over a large section of the country.

Rye is gaining friends, due more to the short crop which has brought in increased buying and narrowed the discount under wheat. Export business, however, remains disappointingly small.

COMMODITY PRICES.

Declines outnumbered gains in the trading in cash articles last week, nine of the subjoined list of twenty-five staples showing losses, six were higher and ten firm and unchanged. This mixed price movement showed that in the grains wheat, rye and flour sagged, while corn and oats advanced. Cross currents were also found in the dairy products, where butter gained, while eggs dropped to a new low for the year. Lard, although at a loss over the week, turned strong near the close in reflection of the Government's estimate on cotton, which forecast a smaller yield. On this theory spot cotton jumped 55 points over-week to 19.10 cents at the close. Metals were also irregular, lead alone advancing, while copper, zinc and tin declined. In the miscellaneous group hides improved, but rubber, gasoline and crude oil were unchanged. Groceries and other provisions were dull.

CONDITIONS FAIR IN WESTERN TRADE

COAL OUTPUT CURTAILED

Credit Conditions Are Reported Good—Grain Interests Lead Borrowing.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 25.—To have the steel business increase its activities in the month of July after the large business of June is one of the most encouraging features in the business situation, and to have it show a gain in operating capacity of around 25 per cent. over a year ago, when business was considered fairly good, tends to confirm predictions of trade leaders that business would be good for the third quarter.

As July is usually a quiet month and production is reduced by hot weather, the present situation suggests a most healthy condition of the steel industry.

In Chicago territory steel mills are operating at 85 to 90 per cent. capacity, despite a lull in the sheet production, as it is too hot to operate that unit at this season. The Illinois Steel Company received more orders last week than at any similar period in the company's history. Nineteen out of its twenty-four blast furnaces are in operation.

A little uneasiness is felt, however, as to the immediate future, as railroads, while preparing to buy rails and cars in September and later, are doing little new buying at present, and car builders have reached a point where, unless new orders develop within thirty days, some curtailment in operations will be necessary.

That consumption of steel, in a general way, is large is shown by production and shipments. Structural tonnage was good sized and plates and bars are being taken in a liberal way. While sheet buying was quiet, increases in the other lines more than made up for it. The automobile industry is going along with a high degree of activity and sales for this season. Consumption of gasoline is heavy, yet the market is easy.

Hot weather curtailed production and distribution of coal, but an average movement is on. Lumber mills are operating on a large scale and distribution of lumber is good. Production of cement is at capacity and consumption is also heavy. Building operations are not so heavy as a year ago, a feature being erection of homes in Chicago suburbs and throughout the West.

Hot weather stimulated sales of summer goods by retailers, and at the same time jobbers of dry goods managed to about hold their own, with sales and shipments about the same as last year.

Credit conditions in the West are generally good, with the banks in Kansas turning over their funds at a most rapid rate in moving the immense wheat crop. Some banks are buying paper in Chicago to keep funds employed. Grain interests are the best borrowers at present, with packers taking moderate amounts. In the Chicago Federal Reserve Bank conditions were different from those displayed by the entire Federal Reserve System. Loans and bills increased more than $5,000,000 for the week; deposits dropped more than $11,000,000 and reserves declined $15,965,000, making the ratio of 75 against 75.9 the previous week, and 79.2 last year, while in 1924 it was 84.5 per cent.

A feature of the expansion of the Pullman Company is the purchase of the United States Cast Iron Pipe and Foundry Company plant at Atlanta. It is to be used in repairing cars in the Southern District and employment will be given to from 500 to 1,000 men.

STEEL BOOKINGS HOLD UP.

PITTSBURGH, July 25.—Actual statistics of fabricated structural steel bookings continue to make this year show up substantially as well as the best previous years, despite predictions to the contrary. June lettings represented 75 per cent. of the fabricating shop capacity, which, except for the 76 per cent. of May, is the best showing for any month since last October.

For the six months of the year, the 1,250,500 net tons reported represent a decrease of only 1 per cent. from the half of last year, while there is a gain of 5 per cent. from the first half of 1924.

Shipments in the half year ran 14 per cent. above the bookings, and this divergence may be considered seasonal. Bookings this month seem to be running slightly below the average of June or the six months.

Several Western railroads are making up budgets contemplating freight car purchases in the next few months. As there has been no freight car buying of consequence for four months another spell of buying will soon be due, as retirement of obsolete cars has lately fallen into quite a steady gait.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE RATES.

The break-up of two French Cabinets, that of Briand's late on Saturday, in the preceding week, and of Herriot's, last Wednesday, provoked the most exciting market for the franc ever encountered in the history of that currency. An upshot of the varying fortunes of Ministry holding was the decline to 1.93¾ cents, a record low for all time. When M. Poincaré reformed lines with five former Premiers, beside himself, under the popular head of a Coalition Cabinet, the franc was returned to 2.46 cents at the week-end.

The erratic fluctuations precipitated by these events was the sole topic of discussion and held the attention of bankers and dealers to the exclusion of other currencies, with the exception of the Belgian and Italian, which slumped and strengthened with the French unit. Offerings of francs came in tremendous selling waves from abroad and were taken up here by local operators for the decline. Support appeared from no quarter except the "shorts," who were forced to cover at the termination of the Ministerial crisis by Poincaré.

A carry over of the weakness into the Belgian and Italian documents sent both to record lows, at 2.16½ and 3.17 cents, respectively. Selling of these was in less measure than the French bill and in most instances a stiff opposition to the decline was offered by official purchases.

Sterling held moderately firm throughout the kaleidoscopic changes in the Latins, but it wound up the week at a slight loss to $4.85⅞. Holland and Swiss exchanges were strong, but the Scandinavians remained firm. Spanish pesetas were weak. Japanese yen featured the Eastern on heavy purchases by the Chinese speculators who had previously sold the yen. Argentina and Brazil, in the South Americans, turned weak after a firm start.

ASKS RAIL OFFICIALS TO AID RATE FIGHT

Security Holders' Committee Says I. C. C. Decision Points Way for Northwestern Roads.

FAULTS IN PRESENT TARIFF

First Step Should Be to Correct Improper Rate Relations, Letter Asserts.

The New York Security Holders' Committee, organized by Roosevelt & Son for the purpose of obtaining a fair return for the Northwestern railroads, is today mailing a letter to all who supported its efforts. The committee, subsequent to the recent Western rate decision by the Interstate Commerce Commission, announced that it would continue the fight for a rate increase. In the committee's letter, announcement is made that the railroad executives will immediately be asked to take steps to correct improper rate relations in the Northwestern territory. The failure of the railroad executives to agitate for rate relief was largely responsible for the commission's refusal to grant the increase, according to a recent statement by the committee.

Excerpts from the committee's letter follow:

"The decision denies the application of the carriers, but takes a position regarding your special interests, which we regard as distinctly encouraging. It states 'in the Northwestern region and in Western trunk line territory the revenues of certain of the important carriers have not yielded 5.75 per cent. upon any rate bases that can reasonably be adopted in advance of the final determination of present values for rate-making purposes. The least favorable conditions in the district, so far as carrier revenues are concerned, appear to exist in Western trunk line territory.'

"The commission thus confirms our principal contentions, first, that the rate structure is inadequate; second, that it is unfair and discriminatory as between carriers in the Northwestern region and the carriers in the rest of the Western district, and further that the Western trunk line territory is in the most serious condition.

"The commission is explicit upon the point of the failure of the railway executives to initiate higher rates.

"'It is the right and duty of the carriers to take the steps necessary to correct improper rate relations. As a matter of fact, the carriers in the Northwestern region endorsed the proposal for a 5 per cent. advance in the whole of the Western territory and made no effort to rectify the conditions of inequality and discrimination in their own district which the commission has now plainly pointed out.

"We submit that your committee, in helping to secure this decision from the commission, has gained a step of considerable value to your interests. We feel justified in calling upon the railway executives of the Northwestern region promptly to take the 'steps necessary to correct improper rate relations' in that territory.

"We are sending a letter to the executives asking them to take such action, and we ask you personally to support us in that request by exerting, to that end, such influence as you may be able to exert by letter or by personal interview."

EXPECT CORN CROP TO MOVE SLOWLY

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 25.—A most unusual situation exists in corn. There has been crop damage in spots which makes farmers hold back their old corn. This should make a light movement for some time to come, as the crop outlook generally is too uncertain. No one in the trade has ever seen a cash situation like the present with No. 2 yellow selling in Chicago at ½c over September and the latter at almost 7 cents over the July, and December 10 cents above the July.

Cash corn at Chicago is relatively the cheapest in any market in the country and supplies are the largest. Feeders are paying more for No. 3 yellow corn in Nebraska than it is selling for in Chicago, with sales within the last few days at 84 cents to 85 cents. It costs the feeder, in the end, 94 cents.

Pacific coast and Western consumers of corn are buying in Nebraska, where country elevator stocks have been greatly reduced or are held for higher prices because of the new crop shortage. Corn is being shipped from Chicago to feeders in Missouri, as the corn can be laid down cheaper there than it can be bought for from the farmers. Speculators have largely evened up and the market is like the crop situation, uncertain, and dependent on weather conditions.

An analysis of fire and marine insurance business for 1925, as conducted by companies admitted in the State of New York, will appear in the report to be issued this week by James A. Beha, Superintendent of the Insurance Department of the State of New York. The report is the sixty-seventh issued by the department. It carries abstracts as well as summaries of the statements of fire and marine companies, Lloyds and inter-insurers, and is prefaced by the superintendent's report to the 1926 Legislature in the form of text and tables.

Ocean marine premiums received by joint-stock and mutual companies in New York totaled $22,744,310. Losses incurred were $16,355,775. All premiums other than fire and ocean marine received by joint-stock and mutual companies, including motor vehicle, inland navigation, hail, windstorm, sprinkler leakage, &c., were $32,941,004, and the losses incurred, $18,229,374.

Total fire risks written by joint-stock and mutual companies in New York during 1925 were $13,541,842,413, an increase of $755,260,925 over 1924. GRAIN CROPS POOR IN SOME DISTRICTS

CHICAGO, July 25.—Spring wheat crop conditions are more spotted than crop experts have known in a great many years. It is possible to find exceptions in the Northwest where crops are practically a failure and others where an average or above is expected to be harvested within the next few weeks.

North Dakota, west of the Red River, has a poor showing with a good prospect in the Red River territory, extending into Manitoba and along the northern counties of North Dakota, while in the light soil country west crops have been materially injured by drought and heat.

In the three Western Canadian Provinces the same spotted conditions are to be found that exist in the United States. Alberta and parts of Saskatchewan have been hurt by heat and drought, but there are some sections where kindly rains have rescued the crop and brought an improvement.

B. W. Snow, crop expert, estimates the yield in the three Provinces at 350,000,00 to 375,000,000 bushels, provided there are favorable conditions—cool weather with more moisture for the next few weeks—which will bring the crop to harvest. Last year the Provinces had 381,000,000 bushels, while the average is about 371,000,000 bushels.

Cutting of Spring wheat, oats and barley is on in South Dakota and Minnesota and is working rapidly northward, as much of the grain was prematurely ripened by heat and lack of moisture. Little is heard about black rust damage and prospects are that it will not be serious.

Corn has been hurt in Western Iowa, South Dakota and Southern Nebraska and possibly in Northern Kansas, by abnormally high temperatures, 100 to 108 prevailing in Southern Nebraska for about ten days. Corn that was in tassel is said to have been injured and when tassels are burned no amount of rain can save it. In some parts of Southern Nebraska corn has tasseled two feet high.

Indications are that a large part of the crop over the leading corn belt States will tassel on shorter stalk than usual. It will take favorable weather with more moisture to bring the crop through.

Feed crops, on the whole, promise to be short of last year and high prices are expected.

STATUS UNCHANGED IN SHEET MARKETS

PITTSBURGH, July 25.—In the sheet trade May was the lightest month in bookings since February, independents reporting bookings in May of 201,743 net tons. June this week was reported at 284,319 tons, or 41 per cent. increase. Sheet mill operations are now reflecting these heavier sales, having mounted to 75 per cent. or more. There is a good general line demand for sheets, and in the past few weeks shipments to automobile and body makers have increased in connection with new models being produced.

Sheet prices have shown no stiffening since their long decline ended a few weeks ago, but there is little, if any, evidence of further weakening. It requires almost a full operation of sheet mills to help prices, but there are some hopes of such a condition developing. The maintenance of the $36 price on sheet bars is expected to help. The mills that buy their sheet bars urged a lower price for the current quarter, but producers stood their ground and some contracts to the end of the quarter have lately been made.

There has been no change in the general tone of the market in the heavy rolled products, bars, shapes and plates, since the first of the month. There was a moderate degree of stiffening in these lines in June, though by no means the full $2 a ton advance in each product that mills attempted.

Shapes and bars are 2c and plates 1.90c as minimum prices, but carload prices are much the same. Large consumers are covered for a short time, and the crucial test will come when they have occasion to buy again.

Apart from seasonal trends, all the steel-consuming lines present much the same prospect as formerly, and, with very few exceptions, they are doing quite well.

Heavy melting steel scrap remains quotable at $16.75 to $17 delivered Pittsburgh district. Large dealers have been covering short contracts at a slight loss in some cases, evidently expecting higher prices, but consumers are strongly opposed to any further advance.

$783,000,000 IN DIVIDENDS

The Pennsylvania Railroad has paid since its incorporation eighty years ago cash dividends of more than $783,000,000, an average of 6.20 per cent. a year on the stock. These figures are given in a special circular, prepared by the New York Stock Exchange firm of Harvey Fisk & Sons, devoted to an analysis of the Pennsylvania System, which is described as the largest of American enterprises.

The total investment in the Pennsylvania stands at close to $2,500,000,000. Its closest competitor in this respect is the New York Central Railroad. The net tangible asset value of Pennsylvania stock, without taking into account Pennsylvania's equity in the undistributed surpluses of its subsidiaries, is about $87 a share.

MAINE CENTRAL EARNINGS.

PORTLAND, Me., July 25 (AP).—An increase of $92,000 in freight revenue over the corresponding month of 1925 featured the June report of operating results of the Maine Central Railroad Company, issued today by President Morris McDonald. Passenger revenue this year was $11,997 short of the total for June, 1925. Unsatisfactory tourist business is blamed for the decrease, railroad officials stated.

For the six months ended June 30, operating revenues were slightly ahead of the first six months of 1925, but the surplus after charges for the same period of 1926 shows a decrease of $129,844, due to greater expenditures.

'NEW COMPETITION' COSTS $30,000,000

ORDER-TAKING DAYS GONE

If the year 1926 does not break any building construction records by plans filed, it will be the most conspicuous for its efforts to divest itself of a lot of false ideas, policies and practices that it inherited from the war and post-war periods, says Allen E. Beals in the current Dow Service Daily Building Reports.

From now on a new kind of competition is going to manifest itself more and more. The building material manufacturing interests of the United States are not laying out $30,000,000 for promotional and educational development of their particular industries without providing for carrying the fight right to the site of the customers' building operation.

A partial list of appropriations set apart for giving the investing builder better service, better quality and better facilities for determining what material or equipment he wants to go into his building gives at least an idea of how keen this competition for orders for building material, equipment and appliances is going to be:

American Face Brick Assn.....	$200,000
Associated Tile Mfrs...........	75,000
Common Brick Mfrs. Assn.....	50,000
Portland Cement Assn..........	400,000
Hollow Building Tile Assn.....	50,000
Indiana Limestone Quarrymens' Association	75,000
National Lumber Association (5 year campaign)............	5,000,000

Merle Thorpe, editor of one of the leading magazines in the lumber industry, calls this "the new competition" and says that if the individual firms in the basic building material industry making large appropriations for the new competition, were to be included in the list, it would total $30,000,000.

The great significance in the foregoing abbreviated list of industries planning to meet the eventualities of the years' overlapping the forthcoming Presidential campaign months, as seen by the foresighted business men of New York and vicinity, is that it marks the beginning of the long-expected readjustment period.

In other words, orders in the building business from now on will be sought for and fought for. The buyer is going to have his market back and he has got to be sold.

The appropriation of large sums of industrial funds for the express purpose of reaching out for that business that heretofore has been handed to preferred sellers in consideration of getting service or even ordinary facilities, means simply that the building material manufacturers have decided that the best way to keep their plants as busy as they have been since the war is to complete the sales cycle.

They will reach out for the prospective buyer before he otherwise would drop in with his order, and when he places his order there will be equipment enough to give him the service he has hardly dared to expect during the runaway periods the building construction industrially has recently known.

Thirteen years elapsed after the close of the Civil War before building material prices and trade conditions in the building material industry returned to normal. When the Civil War closed the country was not anywhere near as prosperous as it has been since the close of the World War.

The United States was a debtor nation, not the creditor nation of the world. Eight years have elapsed since the armistice was signed, and it is only in the midsummer of 1926 that the first real signs of the return swing of the economic pendulum in the building material industry can be clearly discerned.

It all means that the building construction industry is fast getting back to stability. New York City is destined to be the world's market for building material for the simple reason that European countries have got to find a market for their products if they are going to pay off their war debts to us.

If Congress does not see fit to protect the American building material industry with a tariff wall high enough to keep European building materials away from the New York market there is only one way that that competition can be combated, and that is by giving the builders of New York and vicinity, as well as the country at large, service that the foreign competitor cannot very well give.

Salesmen Wanted.

SALESMEN.

Ours is not the biggest sales organization on earth just at the moment, but it is pretty generally conceded our three hundred hustling sales producers constitute the most highly organized, the most efficient, the most loyal and the most productive sales force in existence. All of our men are making money on commission, and there are several good reasons for it. Here they are:

1.—Our men are representing the oldest subdivision concern in America; founded in Cincinnati in 1887, it originated the sale of land on instalments.

2.—A concern that has owned, developed and sold over two hundred million dollars' worth of property in thirty-one cities, now worth close to a billion dollars.

3.—A concern that has developed two hundred and fifteen prosperous suburban communities.

4.—A concern that stands second to none in living up to its promises and in its ability to meet its obligations in the form of improvement programs, building programs, and so forth.

6.—A concern that is now selling to the grandchildren of its early customers, and will eventually be selling their great grandchildren.

7.—We are selling the finest property in Long Island—NASSAU SHORES—honestly priced; three miles of water front; golf course in operation now—not promised—much development work already completed, the balance going rapidly forward.

If you are not afraid of hard work, have faith in your own ability, and believe that you can sell the most talked about merchandise in the world today—real estate—provided, of course, that you get proper training and cooperation from your department and division managers, come in and see us. We promise you that your success will be assured to you if you have the proper stuff in you.

MEN.

It makes no difference what your occupation has been in the past, whether you are now employed or not. Whether you can devote all your time or part. If you have no previous experience we will teach and train you. Expert managers will work with you and for you, show you how and help you to close your sales. We will give you full 100% cooperation and pay you highest commissions and all expenses.

We are an old-established realty development corporation, with a long list of successes. All our previous purchasers have made money and are well satisfied. Our property is located on Long Island, 4 miles from New York City, between the two livest towns adjacent to Long Island Railroad now being electrified; 35 minutes from Pennsylvania Station; property is high and dry. Our lots are fully improved, with streets, cement sidewalks, gas, water and electricity ready for immediate building, at prices one-third less than other near-by property and sold at attractive easy-payment terms.

Section No. 1 of our present development, which has been on the market only six weeks, is over 90% sold, and we are now getting ready to open another section, and can use a few more men.

In this short period among our other sales we have sold over 100 lots to builders alone, and there are now under construction 25 homes, of which some have already been sold.

Come in and see us and learn how to become one of our successful salesmen. An interview will be your key to success and prosperity.

1925 OUR PEAK YEAR IN PRODUCTIVITY

Industry and Trade Even Surpassed War Times, Commerce Department Year Book Says.

DUE TO HIGHER EFFICIENCY

WASHINGTON, July 25 (AP).—Industrial and commercial activity of the United States during the calendar year 1925 "reached the highest levels ever attained in our history, not even excepting the years of abnormal war activity," says the Commerce Department Year Book, made public today. "Nevertheless, apart from heavy speculation in the securities market," a summary of the book declares, "the year was not one of credit inflation or boom psychology."

The great expansion was described as having "represented the continuance of conditions scarcely interrupted since the middle of 1922," and the basic reason given was the "increasing efficiency of industry and commerce."

Discussing agriculture, the book declares that while some branches have not yet recovered from the injury wrought from the great slump in prices of farm products in 1920 and 1921, the situation in general during the last two years "has been more satisfactory than before and on the whole the year 1925 witnessed some improvement as compared with 1924."

Increasing Efficiency.

Particularly characteristic of 1925 business, the book asserts, was its steadiness. Discussing manufacturing and mining, it says that the small loss in ground caused by a temporary recession in the Summer of 1924 was more than recovered last year when manufacturing increased in volume 10½ per cent. and mining production increased 5 per cent. over the preceding year.

"From a broad point of view," it continues, "the most impressive fact with regard to the recent history of American industry is its constantly advancing efficiency.

"Recent careful calculations indicate that whereas the number of wage earners in our factories increased about 27 per cent. between 1914 and 1923, the output—in terms of quantitative volume and not in money value—increased by at least 60 per cent. In other words, production per wage earner employed advanced by approximately one-fourth.

"The principal immediate factors contributing are greater efficiency of the wage earners themselves, improved management, more scientific methods and waste elimination and greater use of capital as an aid to human effort."

Index Prices Higher.

Due to a higher return on a number of farm products, an extraordinary rise in rubber prices and considerable advances in certain other important commodities, the average all-commodity wholesale price index for the year was placed 6 per cent. higher than in 1924.

Retail food prices, following the course of farm products, averaged about 8 per cent. higher, while the general cost-of-living index, representing retail prices of commodities entering into general consumption, was about 3 per cent. higher.

Save for the fact that part of the great increase in value of imports in 1925 was due to "unreasonable price advances brought about by foreign governmental control of commodities," the book says, in discussing foreign trade, the conditions of American foreign trade last year were "exceptionally favorable."

As to transportation and communication, the book asserts that railroad traffic last year was "equal to if not greater than that of the previous peak year in transportation history, 1923," and that the net railway operating income in 1925 was the highest ever reported, reaching, for Class 1 railways, $1,120,000,000.

HAMMOND NOT SLAIN.

Maritime Exchange Member Died From Natural Causes, Inquiry Shows.

Investigation yesterday of the death of John J. Hammond, a member of the Maritime Exchange, in the Metropolitan Hospital several hours after a policeman found him unconscious on the steps of a house at 303 West Fifty-second Street, indicated that he had not died from violence. Bruises on Hammond's face and contusions on his scalp raised suspicion that he had been attacked.

An autopsy by Dr. Benjamin M. Vance, an assistant medical examiner, revealed that Hammond had suffered from cirrhosis of the liver, which had caused his death, it was believed. The physician found that the injuries to his head had probably resulted from a sudden fall or when he fainted on the steps.

There was no trace found yesterday of Hammond's missing automobile, which he used in the management of his transportation business at 59 Pearl Street. At his home, 108 East 198th Street, Bronx, his son, John J. Hammond Jr., said the family did not know what had become of the car.

Only 4 Performances of Sesquicentennial Spectacle Thus Far.

Although bad weather has prevented all but four of the scheduled performances of "Freedom," the pageant produced by R. H. Burnside for the Sesquicentennial Exposition at Philadelphia, about 160,000 people have seen the spectacle, Mr. Burnside announced yesterday. Of the first seven scheduled performances of the show, which opened on July 3, six were cancelled or stopped by rain. An indoor vaudeville entertainment is given when bad weather makes the outdoor show impossible.

"Freedom" probably will run until the middle of October, Mr. Burnside said. The number of persons in the spectacle is 4,347, and it has a payroll of about $55,000 a week.

FOREIGN DIPLOMATS ARRIVE

Arriving yesterday on the United Fruit steamer Toloa from Colon via Havana were Dr. Ricardo J. Alfaro, Minister from the Republic of Panama to the United States, and Dr. E. A. Morales, Secretary of the Treasury, who have come to sign the new treaty between the two countries concerning the Panama Canal.

They declined to discuss the articles in the treaty and said they were leaving at once for Washington.

Also on the Toloa was Orestes Farrara, Cuban delegate to the League of Nations at Geneva and a member of the Cuban Senate.

Time for Outdoors

WHEREVER you go, up to the mountains or down to the sea, there is just one thing under the sun you don't want to worry about—and that's THE TIME.

Yet even the laziest vacation days move by the clock. A handy pocket timepiece helps you to measure the hours of pleasure that tick away all too fast.

Pocket Ben is just the fellow for this job. He is every bit as dependable as Big Ben, America, Sleep-Meter or any other Westclox.

Out under the blue sky, miles from town, Pocket Ben is a precious vacation companion, worth his weight in gold. Yet if you should accidentally damage or mislay him, it is a small loss. For almost wherever you may be at the time, you can get another Pocket Ben for only $1.50.

Glo-Ben is Pocket Ben's twin. The only difference is that Glo-Ben's luminous hands and numerals glow brightly in the dark—he tells night time as well as day time.
